RUSSIANS MAY GET STERN REPLY

Danube Pact Assailed By State Dept.

U. S. Delegation Refuses To Sign Moscow-Document

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18 (AP)—The State Department assailed the new Russian-dictated Danube River Convention today as evidence Moscow will continue its "enslavement" of the Soviet satellites in Eastern Europe.

The convention regulating traffic on the waterway was adopted today in Belgrade by the votes of Russia and her satellite states. Delegates of the U. S. and other Western Nations refused to sign it.

The State Department, in a bristling statement, said the new convention, drafted by Russia, was imposed by Russia with backing of the puppet states and "legalizes its monopoly of Danube shipping."

"The actions of the Soviet Delegation have made evident the determination of the Soviet Union to perpetuate its economic and political enslavement of the Danubian peoples" said the statement.

Predicts Actions

"Its refusal to accept provisions assuring genuine freedom of commerce and non-discrimination show that it intends to maintain vested interests which it has established for its own benefit through extortion from governments imposed by force against the will of the peoples of its satellites.

"The Soviet Union has by its conduct at this conference closed one of the principal doors for East-West trade. The lip service which the Soviet delegation has paid to 'freedom of navigation' is shadow. It has no substance."

The State Department served notice that the U. S. "of course" will refuse to recognize the authority of any commission set up to carry out the new Danube control machinery. It added this policy will apply to those parts of Austria and Germany under American control.

"In the view of the U. S., this instrument does not guarantee freedom and equality of trade," said the department. "It does not fulfill the mandate of the Council of Foreign Ministers."

The Belgrade meeting, at which 11 nations were represented, was called to put into effect a declaration made by the Big Four Foreign Ministers in the satellite peace treaties calling for freedom of navigation of the important Danube waterway.

Listing objections to the new convention, the State Department said it:

1. Destroys the whole concept of international waterways which has been public law of Europe for over 130 years.

2. Deprives Britain, France, Belgium, Greece, Italy and Germany of rights enjoyed under long-standing treaties. The U. S. regards them as still in force until terminated by agreement of all concerned.

Disregards Vital Interests

3. The Soviet bloc disregarded vital interests of Germany and Austria in the Danube.

4. Russia, despite its own membership in the UN, refused to allow any association between the Danube Administration and the UN.

This indictment was preceded by criticism of the manner in which "genuine negotiations" were rebuffed at Belgrade, "sometimes with the most abusive language."

The conference windup came after 20 days of arguments on Western Power motions to write into the new Danube Convention specific guarantees that the river will be open

Tobin Says Labor Act Is Impractical

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18—(AP)—The new Secretary of Labor, Maurice J. Tobin, said today in his first news conference that the Taft-Hartley Act is impractical and should be repealed.

He said he did not object to all its provisions but that two in particular are a "blow at unionism." These outlaw the closed shop and ban union spending in political campaigns.

Maritime 'Hiring Halls' Are Illegal

NLRB Gives Ruling For Great Lakes

Decision Serves As Guiding Post For Other Unions

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18 (AP) — The National Labor Relations Board, in a decision of profound importance to industry and labor, ruled unanimously today that "hiring halls" of the CIO National Maritime Union on the Great Lakes are illegal.

It ordered the union not to strike to keep them.

This ruling can be enforced by the federal courts. It thus opens the path for a possible new injunction to block a Great Lakes strike when an existing injunction expires early in September.

Provides Ready Weapon

Furthermore it seems to provide government attorneys a ready weapon to block indefinitely any strike to maintain union hiring halls—on the Pacific or Atlantic—if the board should find that the halls in question "discriminate" against non-union job applicants in the manner of those on the Great Lakes.

The halls are widespread throughout the Maritime industry. Not all of them operate exactly alike. The board's decision applies to only this one union in its relations with only four companies. But it serves as a guidepost to what the board would do in all cases where the circumstances are the same.

A hiring hall is an institution by which a union furnishes new employes when needed.

Mike Kearns, Lake area director of the union, commented in Cleveland that "in my estimation the NLRB is going to do things like this all along. I don't believe the board is fair to labor. They issue rulings without conducting fair hearings.

"The Taft-Hartley Act was drawn up with the intention of breaking labor unions and under that law the board can't be very fair."

Succeeded Lawrence

Kearns recently succeeded Josh Lawrence who was one of the union's three national directors and who was one of seven officers whom the board, headed by Paul M. Herzog, found guilty with the union

Ex-Yugo Army Chief Fatally Shot

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Aug. 18 (AP)—The former Chief of Staff of the Yugoslav army has been killed in an attempt to flee across the border into Romania, the government said today.

He is Gen. Arso Jovanovic, about 42, who was intimately associated with Marshal Tito in the days of partisan warfare against the Nazis.

The escape was the latest in the developments following the Cominform's recent attack on Tito and his "nationalistic" policies.

It touched off unofficial speculation in foreign diplomatic quarters that Jovanovic was trying to make his way to Russia perhaps to head up an external movement with Soviet support against Tito's government.

The Ministry of Interior disclosed no reason for the escape in giving the account to the newspapers.

Borba, official organ of the Communist Party, and other Belgrade newspapers said Jovanovic was killed by a border guard shortly after midnight August 12 in the district of Vrsac near the Yugoslav-Romanian border. They added:

Jovanovic and three others were hustling toward the border when the guard accosted them. They said they were in the area hunting wild boar.

One of the party pulled out a pistol and fired at the guard. The guard fired back, killing Jovanovic and another identified as Svetolik Arabjac, manager of a state farm in Montenegro.

The accounts said Maj. Gen. Brancko Petricevic had been cap-

Fourth Of U. S. Families Spending Beyond Income

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18 (AP)—On the eve of its new order curbing consumer credit, the Federal Reserve Board reported tonight that American families have been saving less money and in 28 per cent of the cases, spending beyond their income.

Savings were about nine per cent of income received by consumers in 1947 as against 12 per cent in 1946. The findings were part of the board's "1948 survey of consumer finances."

At the same time, a board spokesman reported that a retail credit control regulation, as authorized by the new Republican Anti-Inflation Law, will be issued tomorrow night, to take effect 30 days later.

The order is expected to require one-third down payments and a 15-month limit for "easy payment plans" on most retail items costing more than $50.

The survey of consumer savings was begun before the new law was passed. It was conducted for the Board by the Survey Research Center of the University of Michigan. It showed that about 13,500,000 families were "dissavers" last year—that is, they spent more than they took in. The board did not indicate alarm over the trend. It reported that most of the dissavers were "not in adverse circumstances during 1947 and did not have unbalanced budgets solely because of higher living expenses."

"The declining saving rate was indicative of a widespread consumer willingness to spend current income or accumulated savings, or to borrow, in order to purchase a record quantity of consumers goods and services at inflated prices," the report said. It went on:

"The ability to dissave presumes a certain degree of financial well

CONVERSION OF A FARM-- Part of an estimated crowd of 45,000 persons scattered over 175-acres watch a fish pond being scooped out on Mrs. Nellie Thrasher's farm at Jefferson, Md., yesterday. The demonstration by state and government agencies was the first in the east to show in eight hours what normally would require four to five years by an average farmer.

Food By Air For Berlin 'Successful'

BERLIN, Aug. 18. — (AP) — The American commander in Berlin today declared a Russian offer to supply 60,000 tons of coal to Berliners was a "propaganda distribution."

Col. Frank L. Howley said he had studied the Russian announcement and concluded:

"Obviously, either Soviet mathematics are bad, Soviet intent is bad, or both Soviet mathematics and intent are bad."

Explains Requirements

He explained the study showed "57,100 tons will be required to complete the distribution in the Soviet sector alone," leaving only 2,900 tons for western sectors residents. "Actually to make a full distribution to the west sectors would require not 2,900 tons but 96,400 tons," Howley said.

The Russian offer had several strings attached. The coal would be issued only to those west Berliners who had come to the Soviet sector to register for food ration cards. Payment would be required in Russian-sponsored currency.

Howley charged the coal offered by the Russians actually comes from an allotment which western authorities sent to the Soviet sector to heat households there before the Russians halted deliveries by the blockade.

Hails Air Supply

Hailing the British-American air supply operation as "without precedent," he said that in 55 days American and British cargo planes have brought more than 100,000 tons of food, coal, medical supplies and other vital matertals into besieged Berlin.

"Eacn resident of the three western sectors is receiving as much food as he did before the blockade," Howley said. "Vital medical supplies are on hand in the western sectors in more than sufficient quantities. Utilities are functioning, powered by air-borne coal. In short, the blockade has failed in its attempt to starve the Democratic people of Berlin into submission."

As a result, he said, the Soviets have opened a new campaign declaring they are "generously prepared to give food and coal to western sector residents willing to come on bended knee to the Soviet sector."

Truman Campaign To Include South

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18 (AP) — President Truman expects to be on the road most of the time between mid-September and the November election. His campaign will cover every section of the country.

This was disclosed by Senator J. Howard McGrath, Democratic National Chairman, late today after a two hour White House conference with Mr. Truman.

The President will include the south in his speaking itinerary, McGrath said. Time will not permit his speaking in every state, but he will appear in every section of the nation.

McGrath's conference was his final one with Mr. Truman before the latter's departure Friday afternoon on a nine-day cruise. On that trip the President will work on his addresses and take a rest before launching into his campaign.

The President will formally open his bid for a term in the White House in his own right with a Labor Day speech at Detroit and five other addresses in Michigan the same day.

While Mr. Truman is returning from the Detroit trip Tuesday, Sep-

Install Contour Cropping System

JEFFERSON, Md., Aug. 18 (AP) — Some 500 neighbors, armed with half a million dollars worth of equipment, installed a new system of contour cropping on Mrs. Nellie Thrasher's 175-acre farm today.

As dusk fell and the 25,000 spectators started home, Mrs. Thrasher's modest farm had doubled in value and she was well started on a coordinated system of soil conservation practice.

All the fields had been terraced, some for hay and permanent pasture, others for strip grain and legume crops. Almost a mile of diversion ditches and terraces dotted the landscape.

An earthen retaining dam had been piled between two hillocks, and a one-acre pond—stocked with bass—had formed in back of it. Excess surface water will flow into it from the diversion terraces instead of rushing down the hilly fields and washing away the top soil.

An oversize crew put the top on a new dairy barn for Mrs. Thrasher's 30 milk cows.

Secretary of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan, Maryland's Governor William Preston Lane, Jr., and representatives of many Washington embassies and Legations watched the demonstration, the first of its kind in the east.

The soil conservation experts who planned the $10,000 undertaking said increased production from the rebuilt land will more than make up for the loss of small grain acreage. Five years soil conservation work was accomplished during the 8-hour period.

A blimp circled the farm and swooped low over the more spectacular projects during the afternoon. Several planes criss-crossed the valley.

They were taking aerial pictures to go along with movie films and still photographs which are to be used for stimulation of soil conservation work throughout the world. One agency making a record in pictures and stories was the United Nations Food and Agricultural Organization.

Agreement Seen In East-West Talks

MOSCOW, Aug. 18 (AP)—Western Diplomats and the Soviet Union appeared today to be nearing agreement on the calling of a four-power top level conference on the whole problem of Germany.

A reliable source said the current talks on east-west differences were drawing to a close.

U. S. Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith, French Ambassador Yves Chataigneau and British Representative Frank Roberts were expected to meet with the Russians again—probably on Friday.

This would be the seventh meeting in the Kremlin since the diplomatic discussions started on July 31.

(French Foreign office sources in Paris were hesitant to predict a new four-power Foreign Ministers' Conference as a result of the Moscow talks. These sources said that even if a conference is arranged they have little hope of it producing any real results.)

Technical difficulties are believed to be holding up progress and agreements in the Moscow talks, but it can be reported on good authority that progress has been made.

One of the principal stumbling blocks is reported to be the western powers' action toward establishing a separate government in their occupation zones of Germany.

The Russians have expressed vigorous opposition to a west German government. The three western powers and Germany's smaller neighbors — Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxenbourg—are supporting the plan.

Berlin remains a problem, but not as complex as one might be-

Spy Probers Call 3 New Witnesses

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18 (AP)—The house unAmerican activities committee called three new witnesses today to answer some of the new questions raised in the Red Spy investigation.

Rep. Nixon (R-Calif) told reporters that three former government workers who knew accused Alger Hiss and Accuser Whittaker Chambers during the 1930's will be questioned here Friday and Saturday. All three are from New York, he said. The hearings will be behind closed doors.

Holds News Conference

Nixon held an informal news conference on returning from New York, where he had spent the day talking to other witnesses "on corroborative features of the case." He declined to identify the witnesses.

Chambers has sworn that Hiss belonged to a pre-war Red underground in Washington. Hiss — also under oath — has denied it; said he isn't a Communist and never has been.

Hiss is head of the Carnegie Foundation for International Peace. Before that he was a State Department official, and in 1945 served as Secretary-General of the conference which founded the United Nations.

Chambers, now a senior editor of Time Magazine, has testified he was a Communist from 1924 to 1937, and for several years served in its underground, where he met Hiss.

Recalls Chambers

The investigating committee brought the two key witnesses together last night in a New York hotel room, where Hiss recalled having known Chambers briefly, he said, about 13 years ago, under a diferent name.

This took the committee off the anxious seat. Hiss and Chambers, testifying separately, had flatly contradicted each other, Hiss claiming he knew no such Chambers. Some members had feared the investigation would suffer a blow if it turned out that Hiss had never known Chambers at all.

After the suspense-laden meeting, Rep. Nixon (R-Calif) stayed behind to question several witnesses in New York. The committee refused to identify the witnesses.

Prices To Truman Martin Lays High

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 18—(AP)—House Speaker Joseph W. Martin (R-Mass.) today assailed President Truman's record and blamed inflation on what he called an "orgy of spending" by the Democratic Administration.

Martin expressed his views at a news conference after conferring with Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, Republican Presidential nominee.

Hitting back at Mr. Truman's criticism of the GOP-controlled Congress on the inflation issue, Martin said the Credit Control Law enacted at the special session was a start toward checking prices. But he remarked that to do any real good there would have to be a stop "to this wild spending of government money—this orgy of spending." Martin added:

"The Truman Administration has never shown the slightest indication of wanting to check inflation. All they have done is try to check it in the headlines."

The GOP Congressional leader said he and Dewey had discussed the general political situation. Inflation and housing were among the specific topics, he said.

A reporter asked whether Martin

Marshall Gives Forewarning Of 'Stinging' U. S. Answer To Soviet 'Kidnap' Charges

First Draft Call Is Due Next Week

15,000 To Be In Army By November

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18 (AP)—The first draft call will be issued next week for 15,000 men expected to be in uniform in November, followed shortly by another call for 15,000 more for December, it was reported reliably today.

These will be the first quotas under the new peacetime Selective Service Law.

All will go into the Army, and most are expected to come from the older age brackets. Men 25 will be inducted first, men 24 next, 23 third, and so on.

Officials of the Navy, Marines and Air Force have said that volunteers in those branches have been adequate to fill all needs to date.

And, they said, if enlistments continue at the current pace it is probable that no draftees will be needed by those services in 1949.

The Army, boosting its current strength of nearly 600,000 to its authorized total of 790,000 by June, 30, 1949, also has received many volunteers but needs more men anyway.

After the beginning of 1949, the monthly draft calls are expected to total about 30,000, depending on voluntary enlistments at the time.

Registration of all men 18 through 25 will begin August 30 and continue through September 18. But only those 19 through 25 are subject to the draft.

Officials believe about 20,000 men of the 1-A classifications must be sorted to get the necessary 15,000 men.

Army recruitment for July was nearly 40,000, the highest since 1945. Volunteers through August 17 this month total 10,226.

Russ Teacher Is In Oxygen Tent

NEW YORK, Aug. 18. (AP)—The teacher who jumped from a window of the Russian Consulate and became the central figure in an international controversy was put in an oxygen tent and given a blood transfusion late today.

Critically hurt, Mrs. Oksana Stepanovna Kosenkina had been given several transfusions since she was taken to Roosevelt Hospital after her fall. She has many broken bones and other injuries.

The hospital said she was put in an oxygen tent when her breathing became "somewhat laborered" and her temperature rose to 103.4. Later the transfusion was administered.

The bulletin reporting the transfusion said she had a slight drop in temperature.

Meanwhile, Yakov M. Lomakin, Soviet Consul General, made another move to see the Russian teacher who has been quoted as saying she did not want to see anyone from the consulate.

His Vice Consul, Zot I. Chepurnykh, said Lomakin would ask police permission to visit Mrs. Kosenkina at the hospital. Police said, however, that permission must come from the hospital authorities.

Later hospital officials said no one could visit the teacher because of her critical condition.

The vice consul was asked if Mrs. Kosenkina had asked to see Lomakin.

"No", he replied. "She is too critical."

Last night Chepurnykh said police statements that the woman did not want to see the Soviet representatives were "pure fabrication."

He said she "is not in a position to freely express her wishes" because of the police guard around her.

May Ask Moscow To Recall Consul General From N. Y.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18 (AP) — Stern words from Secretary of State Marshall today foretold a stinging American rebuke to Russia within 24 hours for pressing its pack of charges against the United States in the refugee school teacher cases.

At a news conference, Marshall appeared fed-up with the Soviet diplomatic and propaganda campaigns built around the cases of Mrs. Oksana Stepanovna Kosenkina and Mr. and Mrs. Michael Samarine, Soviet citizens who don't want to go back.

The United States, he said, views with serious concern the Russian charges against this government and some of its officials involved in handling the refugee teachers. They have been promised U. S. protection.

Refutes Russian Charges

The concern arises, Marshall said, from the fact that evidence placed in the hands of the State Department by New York Police authorities does not bear out the Soviet claims. Moreover, he said, the action of Mrs. Kosenkina—who desperately jumped out of an embassy window last Thursday—itself refutes the Russian charges.

Mrs. Kosenkina, whose condition has been regarded as critical, was placed in an oxygen tent in a New York hospital late today. She has received several blood transfusions.

Meanwhile, the House Committee on Un-American Activities, which has received sharply contradictory testimony about alleged Communist spy ring operations in Washington before and during the war, tried to pin down some facts in advance of its next open hearing a week from today.

In particular, the investigators sought more information about the relations between Alger Hiss, a former State Department official, and Whittaker Chambers, who said he worked with Hiss in a Communist underground organization in the late 1930's. Chambers now is an editor of Time Magazine.

Testifying separately, Hiss flatly denied Chambers' charges. Finally a meeting of the two men was arranged by the committee in New York last night. Hiss then recalled knowing Chambers under the name of George Crosley, but insisted he was not and never has been a Communist.

The committee plans to bring Hiss and Chambers together publicly next Wednesday. Meanwhile the investigators are seeking to work out discrepancies in the stories told by the two thus far.

Against this background of developments, Secretary Marshall's news conference attracted exceptional interest.

It was unusual for the Secretary, normally a stickler for secrecy at such times, to discuss the line of an American position 24 hours before it is formally expressed to a foreign government in a note.

Reflects Indignation

His action apparently reflected the indignation felt by many officials here over Russia's repeatedly making charges of kidnaping, connivance, imprisonment and the like against the United States in spite of repeated American denials and the action of the school teachers themselves. Both Samarine and Mrs. Kosenkina have voluntarily sought to remain here and the State De-

Over 100 Phantom Fires Harass Ill. Farm Family

MACOMB, Ill., Aug. 18. — (AP) — Phantom fires that have driven them from building to building on their farm kept the Charles Willey family on the alert today.

A mysterious new fire interrupted the family's supper last night in their temporary dining room in the milk house. Paper attached to the milk house wall to shut out the wind burst into flame while they were in the room. They put out the blaze with only slight damage.

In the last 10 days between 100 and 200 small fires have started in the farmhouse. The last of these fires destroyed the farmhouse Saturday. A barn also was destroyed in a separate fire.

Since Saturday the family has slept in a garage and taken meals in the milk house.

The state fire marshall's office and local firemen are investigating the mysterious fires. Samples of wall paper and an insect spray have been taken to laboratories for chemical tests.

One unofficial theory is that insect spray used at the farm might have contained a chemical capable of causing spontaneous combustion. The farm is not electrically equipped.

The Willeys and their neighbors, who helped extinguish many of the fires, have not been able to advance any theories as to the cause of the blazes.

At first it seemed as if the fires started in the wallpaper. A patch would turn brown and burst into flame. Often the plaster behind was left intact.

Willey and his neighbors tore off the wall paper. Then the fires started in the wooden laths. One neighbor said he removed a window curtain and laid it on the head of the bed. While he was in the house, the curtain caught fire, he said.

It touched off unofficial speculation in foreign diplomatic quarters that Jovanovic was trying to make his way to Russia perhaps to head up an external movement with Soviet support against Tito's government.

The Ministry of Interior disclosed no reason for the escape in giving the account to the newspapers.

Borba, official organ of the Communist Party, and other Belgrade newspapers said Jovanovic was killed by a border guard shortly after midnight August 12 in the district of Vrsac near the Yugoslav-Romanian border. They added:

Jovanovic and three others were hustling toward the border when the guard accosted them. They said they were in the area hunting wild boar.

One of the party pulled out a pistol and fired at the guard. The guard fired back, killing Jovanovic and another identified as Svetolik Arabjac, manager of a state farm in Montenegro.

The accounts said Maj. Gen. Brancko Petricevic had been cap-

CONVERSION OF A FARM-- Part of an estimated crowd of 45,000 persons scattered over 175-acres watch a fish pond being scooped out on Mrs. Nellie Thrasher's farm at Jefferson, Md., yesterday. About 500 volunteers pitched in to make Mrs. Thrasher's mountain valley fields a model soil conservation project. The demonstration by state and government agencies was the first in the east to show in eight hours what normally would require four to five years by an average farmer.

Food By Air For Berlin 'Successful'

BERLIN, Aug. 18. — (AP) — The American commander in Berlin today declared a Russian offer to supply 60,000 tons of coal to Berliners was a "propaganda distribution."

Col. Frank L. Howley said he had studied the Russian announcement and concluded:

"Obviously, either Soviet mathematics are bad, Soviet intent is bad, or both Soviet mathematics and intent are bad."

Explains Requirements

He explained the study showed "57,100 tons will be required to complete the distribution in the Soviet sector alone," leaving only 2,900 tons for western sectors residents. "Actually to make a full distribution to the west sectors would require not 2,900 tons but 96,400 tons," Howley said.

The Russian offer had several strings attached. The coal would be issued only to those west Berliners who had come to the Soviet sector to register for food ration cards. Payment would be required in Russian-sponsored currency.

Howley charged the coal offered by the Russians actually comes from an allotment which western authorities sent to the Soviet sector to heat households there before the Russians halted deliveries by the blockade.

Hails Air Supply

Hailing the British-American air supply operation as "without precedent," he said that in 55 days American and British cargo planes have brought more than 100,000 tons of food, coal, medical supplies and other vital materials into besieged Berlin.

"Each resident of the three western sectors is receiving as much food as he did before the blockade," Howley said. "Vital medical supplies are on hand in the western sectors in more than sufficient quantities. Utilities are functioning, powered by air-borne coal. In short, the blockade has failed in its attempt to starve the Democratic people of Berlin into submission."

As a result, he said, the Soviets have opened a new campaign declaring they are "generously prepared to give food and coal to western sector residents willing to come on bended knee to the Soviet sector."

Truman Campaign To Include South

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18 (AP) — President Truman expects to be on the road most of the time between mid-September and the November election. His campaign will cover every section of the country.

This was disclosed by Senator J. Howard McGrath, Democratic National Chairman, late today after a two hour White House conference with Mr. Truman.

The President will include the south in his speaking itinerary, McGrath said. Time will not permit his speaking in every state, but he will appear in every section of the nation.

McGrath's conference was his final one with Mr. Truman before the latter's departure Friday afternoon on a nine-day cruise. On that trip the President will work on his addresses and take a rest before launching into his campaign.

The President will formally open his bid for a term in the White House in his own right with a Labor Day speech at Detroit and five other addresses in Michigan the same day.

While Mr. Truman is returning from the Detroit trip Tuesday, Sep-

Neighbors, Machinery Put Farm 5 Years Ahead In Day

Install Contour Cropping System

JEFFERSON, Md., Aug. 18 (AP) — Some 500 neighbors, armed with half a million dollars worth of equipment, installed a new system of contour cropping on Mrs. Nellie Thrasher's 175-acre farm today.

As dusk fell and the 25,000 spectators started home, Mrs. Thrasher's modest farm had doubled in value and she was well started on a coordinated system of soil conservation practice.

All the fields had been terraced, some for hay and permanent pasture, others for strip grain and legume crops. Almost a mile of diversion ditches and terraces dotted the landscape.

An earthen retaining dam had been piled between two hillocks, and a one-acre pond—stocked with bass—had formed in back of it. Excess surface water will flow into it from the diversion terraces instead of rushing down the hilly fields and washing away the top soil.

An oversize crew put the top on a new dairy barn for Mrs. Thrasher's 30 milk cows.

Secretary of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan, Maryland's Governor William Preston Lane, Jr., and representatives of many Washington embassies and Legations watched the demonstration, the first of its kind in the east.

The soil conservation experts who planned the $10,000 undertaking said increased production from the rebuilt land will more than make up for the loss of small grain acreage. Five years soil conservation work was accomplished during the 8-hour period.

A blimp circled the farm and swooped low over the more spectacular projects during the afternoon. Several planes criss-crossed the valley.

They were taking aerial pictures to go along with movie films and still photographs which are to be used for stimulation of soil conservation work throughout the world. One agency making a record in pictures and stories was the United Nations Food and Agricultural Organization.

Garbo Signs Contract With Film Company

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 18—(INS)—At long, long, long last, Greta Garbo has put her much sought after signature on a motion picture contract.

She made a percentage "deal" with Walter Wanger and Eugene Frenke, and under the name of a company to be known as Walter Wanger-International, she will make a picture in England, Italy and Hollywood.

Agreement Seen In East-West Talks

MOSCOW, Aug. 18 (AP)—Western Diplomats and the Soviet Union appeared today to be nearing agreement on the calling of a four-power top level conference on the whole problem of Germany.

A reliable source said the current talks on east-west differences were drawing to a close.

U. S. Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith, French Ambassador Yves Chataigneau and British Representative Frank Roberts were expected to meet with the Russians again—probably on Friday.

This would be the seventh meeting in the Kremlin since the diplomatic discussions started on July 31.

(French Foreign office sources in Paris were hesitant to predict a new four-power Foreign Ministers' Conference as a result of the Moscow talks. These sources said that even if a conference is arranged they have little hope of it producing any real results.)

Technical difficulties are believed to be holding up progress and agreements in the Moscow talks, but it can be reported on good authority that progress has been made.

One of the principal stumbling blocks is reported to be the western powers' action toward establishing a separate government in their occupation zones of Germany.

The Russians have expressed vigorous opposition to a west German government. The three western powers and Germany's smaller neighbors — Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxenbourg—are supporting the plan.

Berlin remains a problem, but not as complex as one might be-

Spy Probers Call 3 New Witnesses

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18 (AP)—The house unAmerican activities committee called three new witnesses today to answer some of the new questions raised in the Red Spy investigation.

Rep. Nixon (R.-Calif) told reporters that three former government workers who knew accused Alger Hiss and Accuser Whittaker Chambers during the 1930's will be questioned here Friday and Saturday. All three are from New York, he said. The hearings will be behind closed doors.

Holds News Conference

Nixon held an informal news conference on returning from New York, where he had spent the day talking to other witnesses "on corroborative features of the case." He declined to identify the witnesses.

Chambers has sworn that Hiss belonged to a pre-war Red underground in Washington. Hiss — also under oath — has denied it; said he isn't a Communist and never has been.

Hiss is head of the Carnegie Foundation for International Peace. Before that he was a State Department official, and in 1945 served as Secretary-General of the conference which founded the United Nations.

Chambers, now a senior editor of Time Magazine, has testified he was a Communist from 1924 to 1937, and for several years served in its underground, where he met Hiss.

Recalls Chambers

The investigating committee brought the two key witnesses together last night in a New York hotel room, where Hiss recalled having known Chambers briefly, he said, about 13 years ago, under a different name.

This took the committee off the anxious seat. Hiss and Chambers, testifying separately, had flatly contradicted each other, Hiss claiming he knew no such Chambers. Some members had feared the investigation would suffer a blow if it turned out that Hiss had never known Chambers at all.

After the suspense-laden meeting, Rep. Nixon (R-Calif) stayed behind to question several witnesses in New York. The committee refused to identify the witnesses.

Prices To Truman Martin Lays High

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 18—(AP)—House Speaker Joseph W. Martin (R-Mass.) today assailed President Truman's record and blamed inflation on what he called an "orgy of spending" by the Democratic Administration.

Martin expressed his views at a news conference after conferring with Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, Republican Presidential nominee.

Hitting back at Mr. Truman's criticism of the GOP-controlled Congress on the inflation issue, Martin said the Credit Control Law enacted at the special session was a start toward checking prices. But he remarked that to do any real good there would have to be a stop "to this wild spending of government money—this orgy of spending." Martin added:

"The Truman Administration has never shown the slightest indication of wanting to check inflation. All they have done is try to check it in the headlines."

The GOP Congressional leader said he and Dewey had discussed the general political situation. Inflation and housing were among the specific topics, he said.

A reporter asked whether Martin

First Draft Call Is Due Next Week

15,000 To Be In Army By November

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18 (AP)—The first draft call will be issued next week for 15,000 men expected to be in uniform in November, followed shortly by another call for 15,000 more for December, it was reported reliably today.

These will be the first quotas under the new peacetime Selective Service Law.

All will go into the Army, and most are expected to come from the older age brackets. Men 25 will be inducted first, men 24 next, 23 third, and so on.

Officials of the Navy, Marines and Air Force have said that volunteers in those branches have been adequate to fill all needs to date.

And, they said, if enlistments continue at the current pace it is probable that no draftees will be needed by those services in 1949.

The Army, boosting its current strength of nearly 600,000 to its authorized total of 790,000 by June, 30, 1949, also has received many volunteers but needs more men anyway.

After the beginning of 1949, the monthly draft calls are expected to total about 30,000, depending on voluntary enlistments at the time.

Registration of all men 18 through 25 will begin August 30 and continue through September 18. But only those 19 through 25 are subject to the draft.

Officials believe about 20,000 men of the 1-A classifications must be sorted to get the necessary 15,000 men.

Army recruitment for July was nearly 40,000, the highest since 1945. Volunteers through August 17 this month total 10,226.

Russ Teacher Is In Oxygen Tent

NEW YORK, Aug. 18. (AP)—The teacher who jumped from a window of the Russian Consulate and became the central figure in an international controversy was put in an oxygen tent and given a blood transfusion late today.

Critically hurt, Mrs. Oksana Stepanovna Kosenkina had been given several transfusions since she was taken to Roosevelt Hospital after her fall. She has many broken bones and other injuries.

The hospital said she was put in an oxygen tent when her breathing became "somewhat laborered" and her temperature rose to 103.4. Later the transfusion was administered.

The bulletin reporting the transfusion said she had a slight drop in temperature.

Meanwhile, Yakov M. Lomakin, Soviet Consul General, made another move to see the Russian teacher who has been quoted as saying she did not want to see anyone from the consulate.

His Vice Consul, Zot I. Chepurnykh, said Lomakin would ask police permission to visit Mrs. Kosenkina at the hospital. Police said, however, that permission must come from the hospital authorities.

Later hospital officials said no one could visit the teacher because of her critical condition.

The vice consul was asked if Mrs. Kosenkina had asked to see Lomakin.

"No", he replied. "She is too critical."

Last night Chepurnykh said police statements that the woman did not want to see the Soviet representatives were "pure fabrication."

He said she "is not in a position to freely express her wishes" because of the police guard around her.

May Ask Moscow To Recall Consul General From N. Y.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18 (AP) — Stern words from Secretary of State Marshall today foretold a stinging American rebuke to Russia within 24 hours for pressing its pack of charges against the United States in the refugee school teacher cases.

At a news conference, Marshall appeared fed-up with the Soviet diplomatic and propaganda campaigns built around the cases of Mrs. Oksana Stepanovna Kosenkina and Mr. and Mrs. Michael Samarine, Soviet citizens who don't want to go back.

The United States, he said, views with serious concern the Russian charges against this government and some of its officials involved in handling the refugee teachers. They have been promised U. S. protection.

Refutes Russian Charges

The concern arises, Marshall said, from the fact that evidence placed in the hands of the State Department by New York Police authorities does not bear out the Soviet claims. Moreover, he said, the action of Mrs. Kosenkina—who desperately jumped out of an embassy window last Thursday—itself refutes the Russian charges.

Mrs. Kosenkina, whose condition has been regarded as critical, was placed in an oxygen tent in a New York hospital late today. She has received several blood transfusions.

Meanwhile, the House Committee on Un-American Activities, which has received sharply contradictory testimony about alleged Communist spy ring operations in Washington before and during the war, tried to pin down some facts in advance of its next open hearing a week from today.

In particular, the investigators sought more information about the relations between Alger Hiss, a former State Department official, and Whittaker Chambers, who said he worked with Hiss in a Communist underground organization in the late 1930's. Chambers now is an editor of Time Magazine.

Testifying separately, Hiss flatly denied Chambers' charges. Finally a meeting of the two men was arranged by the committee in New York last night. Hiss then recalled knowing Chambers under the name of George Crosley, but insisted he was not and never has been a Communist.

The committee plans to bring Hiss and Chambers together publicly next Wednesday. Meanwhile the investigators are seeking to work out discrepancies in the stories told by the two thus far.

Against this background of developments, Secretary Marshall's news conference attracted exceptional interest.

It was unusual for the Secretary, normally a stickler for secrecy at such times, to discuss the line of an American position 24 hours before it is formally expressed to a foreign government in a note.

Reflects Indignation

His action apparently reflected the indignation felt by many officials here over Russia's repeatedly making charges of kidnaping, connivance, imprisonment and the like against the United States in spite of repeated American denials and the action of the school teachers themselves. Both Samarine and Mrs. Kosenkina have voluntarily sought to remain here and the State De-

MARSEILLE, France, Aug. 18—(AP)—Mrs. Richarda Morrow-Tait, a 24-year-old Englishwoman, landed her single engine plane here tonight, completing the first leg of a projected flight around the world.

The plane showed up with mechanical trouble that might keep her grounded here until Friday. Mrs. Morrow-Tait, a former artist's model, took off earlier in the day from Cambridge, England.

Fourth Of U. S. Families Spending Beyond Income

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18 (AP)—On the eve of its new order curbing consumer credit, the Federal Reserve Board reported tonight that American families have been saving less money and in 28 per cent of the cases, spending beyond their income.

Savings were about nine per cent of income received by consumers in 1947 as against 12 per cent in 1946. The findings were part of the board's "1948 survey of consumer finances."

At the same time, a board spokesman reported that a retail credit control regulation, as authorized by the new Republican Anti-Inflation Law, will be issued tomorrow night, to take effect 30 days later.

The order is expected to require one-third down payments and a 15-month limit for "easy payment plans" on most retail items costing more than $50.

The survey of consumer savings was begun before the new law was passed. It was conducted for the Board by the Survey Research Center of the University of Michigan. It showed that about 13,500,000 families were "dissavers" last year—that is, they spent more than they took in. The board did not indicate alarm over the trend. It reported that most of the dissavers were "not in adverse circumstances during 1947 and did not have unbalanced budgets solely because of higher living expenses."

"The declining saving rate was indicative of a widespread consumer willingness to spend current income or accumulated savings, or to borrow, in order to purchase a record quantity of consumers goods and services at inflated prices," the report said. It went on:

"The ability to dissave presumes a certain degree of financial well

Over 100 Phantom Fires Harass Ill. Farm Family

MACOMB, Ill., Aug. 18. — (AP) — Phantom fires that have driven them from building to building on their farm kept the Charles Willey family on the alert today.

A mysterious new fire interrupted the family's supper last night in their temporary dining room in the milk house. Paper attached to the milk house wall to shut out the wind burst into flame while they were in the room. They put out the blaze with only slight damage.

In the last 10 days between 100 and 200 small fires have started in the farmhouse. The last of these fires destroyed the farmhouse Saturday. A barn also was destroyed in a separate fire.

Since Saturday the family has slept in a garage and taken meals in the milk house.

The state fire marshall's office and local firemen are investigating the mysterious fires. Samples of wall paper and an insect spray have been taken to laboratories for chemical tests.

One unofficial theory is that insect spray used at the farm might have contained a chemical capable of causing spontaneous combustion. The farm is not electrically equipped.

The Willeys and their neighbors, who helped extinguish many of the fires, have not been able to advance any theories as to the cause of the blazes.

At first it seemed as if the fires started in the wallpaper. A patch would turn brown and burst into flame. Often the plaster behind was left intact.

Willey and his neighbors tore off the wall paper. Then the fires started in the wooden laths. One neighbor said he removed a window curtain and laid it on the head of the bed. While he was in the house, the curtain caught fire, he said.

Army Cpl., Wife Seek Way To Camp

OLD ORCHARD BEACH, Me., Aug. 18. (AP)—Happily reunited but still shy of funds, Army Corporal and Mrs. Tony Furio pondered today how to get the blonde "hitchhike mother" and her baby to Texas.

It was an urgent problem to the stocky soldier who flew from San Francisco to intercept his wife, because he must report to a Texas post August 25.

While the couple beamed joyously upon each other, Mrs. Magdalene Holland, astrologer at this seaside report, went into action. Mrs. Holland, known professionally as Miss Jackson, got the first contribution, $1 for a travel fund from an acquaintance, minutes after announcing the plan.

It was at Mrs. Holland's summer cottage that Mrs. Furio found haven after a day of hitchhiking from Bangor last Friday with her 22-months old son, Tony, Jr.

Lacking money, she started on the "thumbing" jaunt because she understood Furio was soon to be sent overseas. Worried, he came east with the financial aid of generous folks in California and New Jersey.

Furio, on leave from a San Francisco post, said he has money enough for his own fare to Texas.

He said the kindness of utter strangers all along his route was "what brought me here today."

NLRB Gives

of two unfair labor practices under the Taft-Hartley act:

1. Trying to cause four tanker companies to discriminate against non-union men. The board said the union did this by insisting upon a contract continuing the existing hiring halls.

2. Refusing to bargain in good faith. The board said the union did this by insisting on an illegal arrangement and refusing to enter into any agreement until the arrangement had been accepted.

It was the first time the five-man board has found any union guilty of those offenses — though NLRB trial examiners have done so in recommendations to the board.

In fact it was only the third ruling issued by the board against a union under the unfair labor practice sections of the Taft-Hartley law, now one year old.

Board Member J. Copeland Gray dissented from the decision in one respect, though concurring in the main findings. He held the union actions to be also a violation of the Taft-Hartley provision which prohibits a union from restraining or coercing employes in the exercise of their right to keep out of union activities.

A trial examiner, Howard Myers, who held hearings in the case, has also found a violation of this provision, along with the other two provisions.

But a four-man majority of the board dismissed the coercion charge which had been brought by NLRB General Counsel Robert N. Denham. They laid down the principle that neither refusal to bargain nor a strike for an illegal objective is necessarily restraint and coercion of employes.

Danube Pact

to vessels of all nations without discrimination.

The Communist Bloc, in the majority at an international meeting for the first time since the war's end, voted on more than 115 occasions to reject all Western attempts to revise the Russian plan. There was no substantial change in the draft presented originally by Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky, which gives each Danube nation sovereignty over its own portion of the river.

The conference ended officially tonight with the signing of the official document.

All the rest were there, including Anna Pauker, Romania's foreign minister, in a dress of "new look" length.

Before the final vote was taken, United States Ambassador Cavendish Cannon accused Russia of "deception" in its plan and claimed the Communist Bloc had been used with "cynical" solidarity to achieve the Soviet aim.

He aligned the U. S. with Britain, France and Austria, in saying America could not accept the pact as a basis for reopening the 1,800-mile waterway.

tured and that a fourth member of the party, Col. Vlado Dapcevic, "probably" managed to escape to Romania.

Speculation that Jovanovic might have been trying to escape to the Soviet Union stemmed in part from the fact that he had gone to Russia for a special military course after leaving the post of Yugoslav Army Chief of Staff. He held that high office four years.

Jovanovic was a former high ranking officer in the pre-Tito Yugoslav army who made the shift to the new regime and preserved his status.

Marshall Gives

partment has said they can do so.

Marshall left open at his news conference the possibility that the American government may ask Moscow to recall Jacob M. Lomakin, Soviet Consul General in New York, because of his part in the Kosenkina affair. The secretary replied no comment when asked about Lomakin's future. A request for his recall on the ground that he is no longer acceptable in the United States is under consideration by the State Department.

Lomakin figured in another development here today when New York Supreme Court Justice Samuel Dickstein conferred with Ernest Gross, Marshall's legal adviser, on a case involving the Soviet consul. Dickstein said afterward that he has the power to declare Lomakin in contempt for failing to answer last week a writ directing him to produce Mrs. Kosenkina in court.

Lomakin claimed immunity from legal action and refused to answer the writ. Shortly afterward Mrs. Kosenkina leaped from the third floor consulate window. She finished up in a New York hospital, gravely injured but out of his custody and under the protection of American police.

Dickstein said that Lomakin can't be expected to turn her over to the court now, but technically she may still be in his charge and if that is so he is still legally bound to go into court and reply to the writ.

If Lomakin persists in refusing to do so—as expected — he may be found guilty of contempt. Officials said that, if it happens, could be a point in asking his recall.

Almost three-fifths of the dissavers bought autos, furniture, radios or household appliances. Low-income families shared in this movement. The board says they were "active buyers of used cars and low-priced appliances," and spent almost as big a share of their income for durable goods as more prosperous families.

"The 80th Congress doesn't need any defending," Martin shot back. "We are going to brag about the 80th Congress."

Martin said that "after three barren years" the President "has nothing constructive to talk about, so he has to attack Congress."

Inflation and housing were the two problems on which Mr. Truman placed the most emphasis at the extra session. In neither case did the Chief Executive get what he sought.

Referring to the Housing Bill enacted, Martin said "we are quite proud the people are getting some housing." He added that a program launched by Mr. Truman after the war produced "only blue prints."

Martin said his criticism of Democratic administration spending did not necessarily call for a cut in Government expenditures for European recovery under the Marshall plan.

"We discussed campaign plans in considerable detail," McGrath told White House reporters.

He said he could not disclose any of the President's speaking engagements after his return from Michigan, until the itinerary had been completed. He said he would spend most of his time during the campaign in New York City headquarters, but travel back and forth between New York and Washington.

McGrath said the committee is working on the problem of coordinating the campaigns of President Truman and Sen. Alben W. Barkley, his Vice Presidential running mate.

He would not say whether Mr. Truman planned to address the American Legion Convention in Miami in October, referring that question to Presidential Press Secretary Charles G. Ross.

Army Cpl., Wife Seek Way To Camp

OLD ORCHARD BEACH, Me., Aug. 18. (AP)—Happily reunited but still shy of funds, Army Corporal and Mrs. Tony Furio pondered today how to get the blonde "hitchhike mother" and her baby to Texas.

It was an urgent problem to the stocky soldier who flew from San Francisco to intercept his wife, because he must report to a Texas post August 25.

While the couple beamed joyously upon each other, Mrs. Magdalene Holland, astrologer at this seaside resort, went into action. Mrs. Holland, known professionally as Miss Jackson, got the first contribution, $1 for a travel fund from an acquaintance, minutes after announcing the plan.

It was at Mrs. Holland's summer cottage that Mrs. Furio found haven after a day of hitchhiking from Bangor last Friday with her 22-months old son, Tony, Jr.

Lacking money, she started on the "thumbing" jaunt because she understood Furio was soon to be sent overseas. Worried, he came east with the financial aid of generous folks in California and New Jersey.

Furio, on leave from a San Francisco post, said he has money enough for his own fare to Texas.

He said the kindness of utter strangers all along his route was "what brought me here today."

NLRB Gives

of two unfair labor practices under the Taft-Hartley act:

1. Trying to cause four tanker companies to discriminate against non-union men. The board said the union did this by insisting upon a contract continuing the existing hiring halls.

2. Refusing to bargain in good faith. The board said the union did this by insisting on an illegal arrangement and refusing to enter into any agreement until the arrangement had been accepted.

It was the first time the five-man board has found any union guilty of those offenses — though NLRB trial examiners have done so in recommendations to the board.

In fact it was only the third ruling issued by the board against a union under the unfair labor practice sections of the Taft-Hartley law, now one year old.

Board Member J. Copeland Gray dissented from the decision in one respect, though concurring in the main findings. He held the union actions to be also a violation of the Taft-Hartley provision which prohibits a union from restraining or coercing employes in the exercise of their right to keep out of union activities.

A trial examiner, Howard Myers, who held hearings in the case, has also found a violation of this provision, along with the other two provisions.

But a four-man majority of the board dismissed the coercion charge which had been brought by NLRB General Counsel Robert N. Denham. They laid down the principle that neither refusal to bargain nor a strike for an illegal objective is necessarily restraint and coercion of employes.

Danube Pact

to vessels of all nations without discrimination.

The Communist Bloc, in the majority at an international meeting for the first time since the war's end, voted on more than 115 occasions to reject all Western attempts to revise the Russian plan. There was no substantial change in the draft presented originally by Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky, which gives each Danube nation sovereignty over its own portion of the river.

The conference ended officially tonight with the signing of the official document.

All the rest were there, including Anna Pauker, Romania's foreign minister, in a dress of "new look" length.

Before the final vote was taken, United States Ambassador Cavendish Cannon accused Russia of "deception" in its plan and claimed the Communist Bloc had been used with "cynical" solidarity to achieve the Soviet aim.

He aligned the U. S. with Britain, France and Austria, in saying America could not accept the pact as a basis for reopening the 1,800-mile waterway.

tured and that a fourth member of the party, Col. Vlado Dapcevic, "probably" managed to escape to Romania.

Speculation that Jovanovic might have been trying to escape to the Soviet Union stemmed in part from the fact that he had gone to Russia for a special military course after leaving the post of Yugoslav Army Chief of Staff. He held that high office four years.

Jovanovic was a former high ranking officer in the pre-Tito Yugoslav army who made the shift to the new regime and preserved his status.

U. S. Sets Delayed

STORNWAY, Scotland, Aug. 18—(AP)—Sixteen jet fighters of the United States Air Force, homeward bound after three weeks of training flights in Europe, were delayed tonight by weather conditions. The planes will take off for Iceland tomorrow, weather permitting.

Marshall Gives

partment has said they can do so.

Marshall left open at his news conference the possibility that the American government may ask Moscow to recall Jacob M. Lomakin, Soviet Consul General in New York, because of his part in the Kosenkina affair. The secretary replied no comment when asked about Lomakin's future. A request for his recall on the ground that he is no longer acceptable in the United States is under consideration by the State Department.

Lomakin figured in another development here today when New York Supreme Court Justice Samuel Dickstein conferred with Ernest Gross, Marshall's legal adviser, on a case involving the Soviet consul. Dickstein said afterward that he has the power to declare Lomakin in contempt for failing to answer last week a writ directing him to produce Mrs. Kosenkina in court.

Lomakin claimed immunity from legal action and refused to answer the writ. Shortly afterward Mrs. Kosenkina leaped from the third floor consulate window. She finished up in a New York hospital, gravely injured but out of his custody and under the protection of American police.

Dickstein said that Lomakin can't be expected to turn her over to the court now, but technically she may still be in his charge and if that is so he is still legally bound to go into court and reply to the writ.

If Lomakin persists in refusing to do so—as expected — he may be found guilty of contempt. Officials said that, if it happens, could be a point in asking his recall.

Six Are Held In Polk's Death

ATHENS, Aug. 18—(AP)—The Greek Press Ministry said today that six persons were being held for questioning in connection with the slaying of American Radio Correspondent George Polk.

Polk's bound and bullet riddled body was found May 16 in Salonika Harbor.

Almost three-fifths of the dissavers bought autos, furniture, radios or household appliances. Low-income families shared in this movement. The board says they were "active buyers of used cars and low-priced appliances," and spent almost as big a share of their income for durable goods as more prosperous families.

"The 80th Congress doesn't need any defending," Martin shot back. "We are going to brag about the 80th Congress."

Martin said that "after three barren years" the President "has nothing constructive to talk about, so he has to attack Congress."

Inflation and housing were the two problems on which Mr. Truman placed the most emphasis at the extra session. In neither case did the Chief Executive get what he sought.

Referring to the Housing Bill enacted, Martin said "we are quite proud the people are getting some housing." He added that a program launched by Mr. Truman after the war produced "only blue prints."

Martin said his criticism of Democratic administration spending did not necessarily call for a cut in Government expenditures for European recovery under the Marshall plan.

"We discussed campaign plans in considerable detail," McGrath told White House reporters.

He said he could not disclose any of the President's speaking engagements after his return from Michigan, until the itinerary had been completed. He said he would spend most of his time during the campaign in New York City headquarters, but travel back and forth between New York and Washington.

McGrath said the committee is working on the problem of coordinating the campaigns of President Truman and Sen. Alben W. Barkley, his Vice Presidential running mate.

He would not say whether Mr. Truman planned to address the American Legion Convention in Miami in October, referring that question to Presidential Press Secretary Charles G. Ross.

Advice To The Lovelorn

Watching National Guardsmen Drill And Chasing After Them Are Different Things

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Around my way there is an armory which is open to the National Guard every Monday, Wednesday and Thursday. On Thursday the Armory allows visitors to come in and watch the boys drill. Three of my girl friends go to watch them and and some people say they are chasing boys. I would like to go, but I want to know if it is chasing boys or not.

"TROUBLED"

Dear "Troubled":

Watching the boys drill and chasing them are two distinct and separate things. You don't have to chase them just because you like to go and watch them. It's up to you now to behave. If you would enjoy going to watch the drill, I see no harm in it whatever, if you conduct yourself properly. If you giggle and flirt and act like a silly girl, that's something else. Surely you have judgment enough yourself to know the difference.

Little Self-Respect Advised

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 15 and go with a boy 17. Two nights a week my girl friend and I go to watch him play baseball and he and his friend walk us home.

When I tell him to come up to see us he says he will, and tells me what time he will come, but he never shows up. I always go where he wants to go, but it's a different story when I want him to go somewhere. I like him too much to let him go, and I have heard that if he knows a girl likes him, he leaves her.

Would you help me decide whether I should forget him or keep going with him? If I do leave him, it is going to be an awful struggle to forget him.

"MISERABLE."

Dear "Miserable":

Why should it be such a struggle to forget somebody who doesn't care enough about you to do anything you ask him to do? I don't think boys really care very much about girls who are willing to be made fools of, and that's just what you're letting this boy do to you. My advice to you is to have a little self-respect, and let him know that if he doesn't want to take the trouble to please you at least part of the time, you're not going out of your way to please him.

Long-Held Belief About Our Mines Is Dispelled

Disasters are not uncommon. They happen almost every day, somewhere. As a result of many of them, men and women and, in some cases, children are killed or maimed. Many of those injured carry their deformities and disfigurations to their grave.

Disasters occur in spite of safety measures employed by industry to hold accidents to a minimum. Some are due to carelessness and neglect although employes realize the risk involved unless these safety rules are religiously adhered to.

When one reads of the devastation done and of the number of lives lost—which is sometimes appalling—a sickening feeling is experienced, for the moment. It is only when such catastrophes hit close home that one can appreciate the full meaning of it all. It came to the people of this section last Saturday when word was flashed that three men had died in a mine while on a mission to make the premises safe for fellow workers. One of the first thoughts to occur to many was, what exploded? Few were willing to attribute the accident to a gaseous formation because of a long-held belief that mines in the George's Creek region were free of such explosive elements.

As a result of minute inspection within the Waynesburg mine on the fringe of Lonaconing, that belief has now been dispelled—for good it is hoped. It was gas—methane—which existed in sufficient quantities to make possible its ignition by an electric spark, the investigation has disclosed.

It is the opinion of inspectors that those who were operating a rock duster with an open type motor did not check for gas before engaging in their operation. If they didn't, it is quite probable that they were laboring under the general belief that no gas existed.

It is most unfortunate that three lives had to be sacrificed to bring about this undisputed fact. It does not, of course, mean that all mines in this region are so affected, but the naked truth disclosed should serve as a stern warning that it cannot be taken for granted that gas is not present.

It goes without saying that greater precautions will be taken by miners, mine owners and welfare units to guard against a repetition of the disaster which has cast a gloom over the communities of Lonaconing, Gilmore and Zihlman, and the homes of the victims where eight children have been deprived of their fathers and eight others made orphans.

Fossils indicate the camel roamed Kansas 100,000 years ago, but the wets will again attempt to end prohibition in that state this fall.

Must Not Seek "Agreement For Agreement's Sake"—Marshall

The statement by Secretary of State Marshall that the United States must not seek "agreement for agreement's sake" should be reassuring to a public which has noted the prolonged secrecy at Moscow with growing apprehension.

Secretary Marshall was referring to the futile negotiations at Belgrade, where Russia controls a majority of the conference votes and is plainly determined to turn the Danube into a Red river. The United States was chiefly instrumental in calling that conference because we were eager, whatever the handicaps, to restore free commerce on Europe's most important waterway. It has now been made perfectly clear that Russia proposes to control Danubian commerce. That being true, the United States would be worse than foolish to sign a treaty in the fond hope of relieving East-West tension.

What Secretary Marshall said about the Danubian meeting applies with greater force to the secret conversation in Moscow over the Berlin crisis. Here, too, the Western Allies took the initiative in an effort to resume four-power negotiations. They did this for the sake of peace, even though they knew they would suffer some loss of diplomatic face by naming the first move. At the same time, Washington and London have repeatedly said that they would not negotiate under duress. It should be obvious to all that we would only make a bad situation worse by bribing Russia to lift her blockade of Berlin.

A genuine East-West agreement on Berlin would be universally welcome. But a paper agreement which masked a Russian victory would only encourage more radical Moscow demands.

Negotiation is valuable when both sides act in good faith. When one side regards it as a method of gaining its end through political pressure or trickery, a conference is worse than mutually suspicious silence.

In Samoa no one pays more than $5 a year in taxes, but the Samoa plan will never become popular with politicians in this country.

Gardener's Reward

The most enthusiastic amateur vegetable gardener has moments when he wishes he had selected a different hobby.

Rising early to dust his beans, he thinks longingly of the sleep he might have had. Hoeing in the hot sun on his day off, he sees in his mind's eye the maddening picture of a deck chair in the shade. Hand-weeding his rows in the evening, he slaps mosquitoes with unusual viciousness because he would rather be reading the newspaper.

There are hobbies, he well knows, that absorb all a man's thoughts and leave no room in the consciousness for yearning after something else.

The fisherman may be up before the sun but he is too eager to get his line in the water to regret his long rest. The tennis player forgets the heat, and the sweat in his eyes, as he puts an ace across the net. The twilight golfer hardly notices a bite or two when his drive goes arching down the fairway.

Gardening is not like that. The work a vegetable plot demands takes no particular skill and the satisfaction that comes as the weeds go down is sure to wear thin after a time. There is a great deal of plain drudgery in it. True, that leaves the fancy free—but when the fancy brings up visions of pleasanter pursuits it makes for gnawing discontent.

But what other hobby can yield the glow of triumph that comes when a stack of steaming ears of sweet corn stands on the table and the mere human who compelled nature to work this miracle watches the company sink their teeth into that golden goodness.

Are Americans slipping? So far no operator of a roadside sandwich stand has come out with a Deweyburger.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Re-learning To Walk

Apoplexy is one of the most common causes of disability in older persons and it is distressing because at the present time we have no remedy. But nature is usually kind, and spontaneous healing frequently occurs. Furthermore, the restorative processes can be hastened in several ways.

Dr. Van Dellen

A stroke usually means that one of the vessels of the brain is plugged by a clot or has ruptured, producing hemorrhage. In many instances, both symptoms and outcome depend upon how much of and what part of the brain is involved. The manifestations vary from deep coma to slight dizziness; paralysis may or may not be present. During the early stages, it is difficult to tell whether the effects will be temporary or permanent.

Since the majority of victims are confined to bed, good nursing is essential. By remaining quiet, the disturbance in the brain is more likely to be brought under control. This is true particularly if hemorrhage has occurred because rest encourages cessation of bleeding. In many instances, sedatives may be required to decrease irritability. Feeding is a problem and, during the early stages, it may be possible to administer only liquids or soft foods. Should difficulty in swallowing exist, care must be taken lest some of the material escape into the windpipe. The bed must be kept clean. A firm mattress helps to maintain good posture, or sagging can be prevented by placing a board beneath the mattress. Pillows under the shoulders and head are not only comfortable but ward off neck deformities. Sandbags may be used to keep the paralyzed limb in a good position.

Once the sufferer is out of danger, rehabilitation is necessary. While in bed, the arms and legs should be moved about with assistance until strength returns. When speech is affected, special training may be required. Ultimately the stage is reached when sitting up in bed is permitted. This aids in re-establishing balance and, once accomplished, the legs may hang over the edge of the bed with the feet on a stool. During this time, arm and leg exercises will strengthen the extremities. In addition, the afflicted individual should be coaxed to aid in his own feeding, washing, and dressing. Such maneuvers are not easy to perform and re-education takes time and patience. Some improve rapidly, others more slowly; but regardless of the pace the attendant should always be encouraging because cooperation will thus be increased.

The day comes ultimately when the invalid can get out of bed. Before attempting to walk, balancing in a standing position should be practiced for a week or two. If one leg is paralyzed, the best way to re-learn how to walk is to hold on to something. Many hospitals have special devices that are useful for this purpose. Others rely upon parellel bars which can be held while taking each step. At home, two kitchen chairs can be used. Crutches are useful also but require more skill to manage satisfactorily.

Much practice is demanded to regain the art of walking and, although it may seem hopeless, the outcome is good if the individual is willing to try. By doing a little each day, fatigue can be avoided. This is an important consideration, especially if other conditions coexist, such as heart disease.

Low Thyroid Activity

J. K. writes: If a person has a low basal metabolism, is this permanent or must thyroid extract be taken always?

Reply

This depends upon the individual. In some, thyroid must be continued thruout life; others can discontinue the hormone after a while and do well thereafter. Not every one with a minus basal metabolic reading lacks thyroid. The condition may represent low vitality and, in the circumstances, the glandular extract will produce nervousness and must be discontinued.

Erosion

K. L. writes: What causes a stomach ulcer to start bleeding?

Reply

Hemorrhage results from the erosion of a near-by blood vessel by the growing ulcer.

Attacks of Sleeping

H. W. writes: What causes narcolepsy?

Reply

This phenomenon is a symptom of a disturbance in the brain. In some instances, it follows encephalitis; others, a tumor. But in the majority of cases, no cause can be found. The afflicted individual is seized with an uncontrollable desire to sleep while he is active during the day.

SMALL INTESTINE

J. A. writes: What is acute ileitis?

Reply

Inflammation of the ileum, that portion of the small bowel which connects with the large intestine. It is located so close to the appendix that when it becomes involved appendicitis is often suspected.

NOT IN NERVE DISORDERS

T. H. writes: When an individual receives the electric shock treatment, how is it possible to determine which nerve is the base of the trouble?

Reply

This form of therapy is used in mental disturbances and not for any specific nerve lesion.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Says ROBERT S. ALLEN

(EDITOR'S NOTE—While Drew Pearson is on a brief vacation, The Washington Merry-Go-Round is being written by his old partner, Robert S. Allen.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18—Some of the cockeyed inconsistencies of Washington officialdom are verily wondrous to behold.

Here is the latest beaut:

On Tuesday, President Truman made an address ardently pleading for public support of the National Employ the Physically Handicapped Week, October 3-9. He pointed out two significant facts: (1) that industrial record shows conclusively that when given the opportunity to work, handicaps almost invariably prove above average in productivity, regularity and loyalty, and (2) that with the marked labor shortages existing in many fields, it is both good business and good humanity to give jobs to handicaps.

With deep feeling, Mr. Truman urged employers to give handicaps a chance to make themselves useful and self-supporting beings. The President's speech was moving, and a real credit to him.

Reverse Picture

Yet, at the same time the President was making this touching appeal to private employers, one of the biggest government employers was giving the cold shoulder to thousands of highly competent handicaps whom it had made.

This is the U. S. Army—of which the President, as Commander-In-Chief, is boss, and which is now moaning to the high heavens about a desperate shortage of officers to train the forthcoming draft levy.

The Army says it needs 37,000 additional officers for this purpose. To date, about 2,500 reserve officers have volunteered to return to active duty. The Army is talking of drafting officers to meet its urgent needs.

But at the same time that the Army is doing all this whining and blustering, it has on its rolls thousands of retired combat veterans who would make the finest type of training personnel. These officers were shelved because their battle-incurred impairments do not square with the Army's high, and in some respects archaic, physical requirements for field duty.

But the Army's immediate need is not officers for rigorous field duty. It needs officers to train men for such duty. This untapped reservoir of battle-experienced veterans is a matchless source for such trainers. These men have been through the mill. Their knowledge and skill can't be bought for love or money. Their very disabilities give them an added value as an inspiration.

When Gen. Dwight Eisenhower was Chief of Staff, he saw that clearly. He put through an order allowing disabled non-commissioned officers to enlist for limited duty in the regular Army. The Navy, today, has an admiral on active duty who lost a foot in battle.

But the Army has always been inane and extravagant in personnel matters. Last spring when Army brass were shrieking that they didn't have enough troops to man combat units, thousands of husky young soldiers were idling away their time doing wholly unnecessary sentry duty at posts in the U. S. They were just for show purposes, nothing more. There are hundreds of them doing this sort of thing right now in Washington.

Why the Army is not making use of its thousands of highly skilled disabled officers is a mystery only the tradition-bound brass can answer. It's true it would be something new, and that is a staggering objection. But if private employers can gainfully use handicaps, why not the U. S. Army?

Perhaps the President ought to deliver his speech again—to the Pentagon brass. Or, better still, as Commander-In-Chief he could order them to climb out of the cobwebs and do less than he is urging others to do.

Exit Griswold

Dwight Griswold is quitting as U. S. aid administrator in Greece. The former Nebraska Governor is now packing in Athens to return to the U. S. early next month. Griswold is resigning to take part in the Republican election campaign. He hopes to land in the Dewey cabinet—if there is one.

By dint of a combination of wheedling and booting, Griswold has effected some administrative reforms in the graft-ridden and incompetent Greek government. Its budget still remains to be balanced, and its heavily padded payrolls still remain to be pared down. But a little progress has been made toward efficiency and honesty.

However, there was one particularly smelly deal that Griswold was unable to block—thanks to the State Department.

As part of the "Aid Greece" program, the State Department put through a sale of 100 Liberty ships to Greek shipowners. The contention was that these vessels would improve Greece's dollar position. Actually, it was a lush bonanza to a small group of wealthy, royalist Greeks who live in New York, do their banking in New York, and pay little taxes either in the U. S. or Greece.

Not only did the State Department sell the ships to the millionaire Greeks for less than one-third of the original cost to U. S. taxpayers, but the Department also threw in special purchasing terms. The Greeks were allowed to pay only 25 per cent down and given 17 years to pay the remainder.

And the debt-loaded Greek government had to guarantee the mortgages on these ships.

Shipping experts estimate the vessels are earning $1,000 a day each for their Greek owners. But all the Greek government gets from these juicy profits is a paltry $15,000 a year in taxes.

That's the way the State Department is "aiding the dollar position" of Greece.

Unimpressed

An unpublished exchange took place when Marshal Sokolovsky, Soviet Commander in Germany, was arrested for speeding by a U. S. constabulary trooper, that graphically illustrates the high quality of this crack outfit.

Sokolovsky was very miffed when flagged down. He haughtily attempted to brush the trooper aside. "I am Marshal Sokolovsky," he announced. The U. S. soldier was unimpressed.

"Maybe you are and maybe you're not," he said, quietly but firmly. "You'll have to come to headquarters with me to prove it."

And that's exactly what the blustering Russian did.

Russian Government Proves Itself Clumsy, Inept, Stupid

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—In the broad game of propaganda or "psychological warfare," Russia has lost considerable ground and prestige in the last few days. The way the Soviet handled the "kidnapping" and then the attempted suicide of the Russian school teacher in New York is more convincing than all the evidence that can be derived from diplomacy's fiery debates that the Russian government is clumsy, inept and often stupid in its handling of its own affairs.

To allow the whole world to catch a Russian official in the very act of lying about so simple a case as a Russian subject trying to escape the clutches of her own government for fear of punishment, is to advertise the methods of totalitarianism and a police state so that everybody can understand.

It would have been much easier for the Russian government to have regarded the incident from the beginning as trivial and inconsequential. There is no evidence, for instance, that the teacher had any important testimony to give. If it had not been for the efforts of the Russian consulate to prevent the woman's sojourn on American soil, the episode would never have attracted any attention.

Next Blunder In Moscow

The next blunder was made in Moscow when the foreign office decided to make an issue of it. To contend that the American government was implicated is merely to bring down upon the Russians ridicule from all parts of the world. Certainly there must be men in the Kremlin with more sense and cleverness than has been exhibited in the handling of the recalcitrant teacher.

Coming as the affair does on top of a sensational story of a Communist spy ring and the news that the Russian government paid out $2,600 and decorated Miss Bentley for supplying confidential information about the American government's secrets, it does look as if the Soviet authorities in Moscow became unduly nervous about world opinion and then became entrapped in crude efforts to make it appear that the Russian teacher was really trying to get back to Russia or that an American naval attache was spying, too.

Russian propaganda palpably follows a naive pattern in assuming that outside of Russia people actually believe distortions and twisted stories about facts that can easily be understood. The most significant thing about all the Russian propaganda indeed is the fact that the Russians do seem to care what the rest of the world thinks.

It is not merely opinion in this hemisphere that counts with the Russians but opinion among the states of Europe where Communist organizations are active in trying to get political strength. Among the satellite states in particular the cause of Communism can be weakened if the Russian government gets entangled with the United States in any way that casts discredit on the communists.

Undoubtedly the stories of the spy ring and the investigation by the congressional committees are being used by anti-Communists in Europe to indicate the extent to which Communist infiltration has gone on even as far away from Russia as the United States and Canada.

Communism Suffers, Too

The Russian government cannot fight a war without the wholehearted support of her neighboring countries. Conversely, the satellite countries have within them movements that seek to rid their lands of Communist domination. Hence whatever causes a drop in prestige for Russia injures communism.

Thus the main issue for the western allies with respect to staying in Berlin has not been the strategic importance of remaining in the former German capital but the possibility that any form of retreat would be construed by European peoples as a defeat for the democracies and a rise in the prestige of the Soviets.

In the battle for prestige, an unnoticed school teacher leaping from the third floor of the Russian consulate where, she says, she had been kept a prisoner does much to impair Russia's position and to tell everybody that Russian subjects are not free from the totalitarian government even when they pursue so innocent a profession as teaching school in a foreign country.

Price Support, Under Existing Conditions, Contains Dangers

By MARK SULLIVAN

There is now imbedded in the statutes of the United States a policy which, as interpreted and carried out by the Department of Agriculture, asserts extraordinary principles, some might call them "anti-principles."

One is that keeping up the price of food is a proper function of government. Another: that the government, in order to keep up the price of food, may buy immense quantities and sell it at a loss, in some cases abroad, in other cases to manufacturers for uses other than food. Another, the most extraordinary of all: that the government, having bought food for the purpose of keeping up the price, may for the same purpose destroy it.

These practices are so novel and extraordinary as to be incredible to many. This explains widespread failure, until recently, to grasp the policy of price support. Moreover, the policy was originally put forward as price support for the sellers, the farmers who produce the food; now it is seen that price support in favor of one class, the farmer, is identical with price support against a much larger class, the consumer.

Future Dangers In Policy

Price support, under existing conditions, contains present harms and future dangers even greater than the oppression of the public as food consumers, it is an acute national peril. Prices of farm crops, food, are at a height greater than any other line of goods, put there by the government price support policy. This out-of-line height of farm crop prices, "must be considered"—I quote the New York Herald Tribune—"the most inflationary factor in the national economy."

It is tenable to say that the government practice of price support is and has been the most dynamic cause of high cost of living. It is further tenable to say, though this is in the field of historical "ifs"—that but for this government practice of supporting prices of food, the wartime rise in cost of living might have come toward an end two years ago, about the fall of 1946; our present danger of inflation might have been averted or much reduced.

The policy of price support—its purpose, technique and revolutionary nature—is illustrated by the example with which it was initiated. This was a purchase and destruction of hogs on an immense scale, in the first year of the Roosevelt Administration. I have alluded to this in a recent article; but no reiteration can put too much emphasis on it, and no newspaper article provide enough space; it would be a proper subject for scholars writing theses on American history. Whether they would treat this as a turning point in our economic evolution or as a folly destined to be abandoned, may be determined in the near future.

Revolutionary Action

What is here written is taken from an official document, "Report of Administration of the Agricultural Adjustment Act, May 1933 to February 1934." The Department knew exactly what it was doing and for what purpose: "Immediate action . . . was regarded as necessary in view of the acute hog price decline which seemed likely to take place if all the hogs then in the feed lots, or to be farrowed by sows already bred, were fattened out and marketed." The Department knew also that its action was revolutionary, "A purchasing program of this sort had never been tried in this country."

The program approved by the Secretary of Agriculture, Henry A. Wallace, included "purchasing . . . a maximum of 1,000,000 sows . . . due to farrow in the fall of 1933 . . . at the market price . . . plus a cash bonus of $4 per head." It included also "purchase of four million pigs and light-weight hogs . . ."

"Pigs weighing less than 80 pounds were . . . processed into the inedible products of grease and fertilizer tankage . . . The average yield of inedible grease per pig was about three to five pounds per animal . . . The yield of fertilizer tankage was approximately five pounds per animal . . . The residue was . . . dumped . . . burned . . buried, or consumed at public incinerators . . ." The cost was $34,000,000. In carrying out the program the number of pigs and light-weight hogs bought was 6,186,717; the number of sows, 222,149.

These Days

Art Without Money

SUPPOSE Billy Rose or some other Broadway impresario took over the management of the Metropolitan Opera House, what could he do that Oscar Hammerstein failed to do with his operatic venture? The answer, of course, is the same for opera as it is for the symphony and the ballet. These forms of art were never intended for commercial exploitation and the traditions that surround them and the needs that create them are different from other forms of human expression which do lend themselves to box office management. It is necessary to play the less popular as it is necessary to have a course in Indo-Iranian languages in a fully staffed university.

Such a musical play as "Oklahoma!" can run for several years, but suppose the Metropolitan were to attempt to give "Parsifal" a six months' run! Those who are most concerned with listening to opera want a varied fare and that is why they subscribe in advance to an entire season of opera. It is much the same with the symphony as is evidenced by this amazing spectacle of 7,000 persons coming up to the Berkshires to listen to an all-Tchaikowsky program and many of them motoring 50 or 100 miles back and forth to do it.

Actually the theater would be improved if the ancient stock company were restored. The Metropolitan put on 28 different operas last season. No theater in America does anything of the kind. Mr. Rose, for instance, may put on a show a season, with perhaps an interlude, at his "Diamond Horseshoe." In the good, old days of stock, the American actor learned the stage and he knew the theater, even as some British actors who come over do these days.

Most Americans actors are so narrow and circumspect in their theatrical experience that they become typed and limited and their acting is always of a kind.

No theatrical producer risks putting his money into a stock company, because union wages and union rules would kill him financially. Yet that is precisely what the Metropolitan has to do if it is to remain an opera house. It keeps an orchestra of 102 men; it maintains a payroll of 550 men and women. The average pay of its musicians in the orchestra is $5,600 for a 29-week season. During that period, the musician can teach, do other work, if he desires and is thrifty in the use of time; certainly, he can increase his earnings during the 23 weeks when he is not serving the Metropolitan. But the musicians are not the only factor; the Metropolitan has to deal with 12 unions.

But that is not as much the problem as it is that this country is growing increasingly musical and it wants good music, adequately conducted and produced. It is not altogether understandable that New York City maintains with difficulty one symphony orchestra; does not support a ballet of note; and now permits the leading opera house in the world to be threatened with a shutdown, largely because of internal politics in the unions—12 of them.

Even worse is the city of Washington, which is musically arid. Washington is probably the only capital in the Western world without an opera, and as I understand it, without a theater next season. For years, it ran with only one theater, which has declined to reopen because of a quarrel over the question of segregation.

Yet, when one sees America from the vantage point of Tanglewood, it is impossible not to recognize the hunger for music in this country. The other night, I picked up a couple of boys coming away from the Tchaikowsky concert. One was from Illinois; the other from Boston. Both were still students. We got into a discussion on the price of hot dogs, and the Illinois boy was an authority on the subject. He had made and sold them to pay his way through college. Yet he had come on to Tanglewood in Western Massachusetts for music.

What seems to be needed is a rational approach to the cultural needs of this country. They are as important surely as subsidies to potato-growers, and may even attract as many voters.

Today's Talk

Routine

Every once in a while we read in our newspaper about certain acts of the Army or Navy, or of Government itself. The reporter, who is always looking for some opening to a good news discovery, tries to get something from the official that will put attention matter to his story—but all too often he gets the mere answer that it's just "routine."

What is this routine, anyway? The dictionary says: "Regular course of procedure; unvarying round; blind adherence." In other words, there is nothing exciting about routine—it's just the regular thing, over and over again. Something often dull.

There is nothing very inspiring about routine work, or about a routine life, for that matter. Routine work is important and essential, but the great and stimulating things of life are those that suddenly spring out of routine ways. There is one there who thinks out something better and more efficient, something sensational, perhaps. And then the routine stops, takes breath, and climbs into an event!

There was nothing routine about the "Declaration of Independence" by those patriots who dreamed of a new nation at Philadelphia in 1776! Nor was there anything routine about the decision of Abraham Lincoln to give to the world his "Emancipation Proclamation." Nor was there anything routine about the English "Bill of Rights." History takes on lustre in its departure from the routine. Just the same as any life does.

How often we hear a person remark after some important act, "Now I shall go back to the old grind and routine." And with that the thrill of life, with its creative excitement, takes its departure! We can't live a routine life and be happy. Events and climaxes have spiritual sparkle to them. As if merely to live is life!

What a tragedy it is for any of us to become a slave to the humdrum or to the beaten path! Better to become a pioneer, to beat a new path to a new way of life, or to a new discovery, or indeed to make a new discovery about one's self.

Long-Held Belief About Our Mines Is Dispelled

Disasters are not uncommon. They happen almost every day, somewhere. As a result of many of them, men and women and, in some cases, children are killed or maimed. Many of those injured carry their deformities and disfigurations to their grave.

Disasters occur in spite of safety measures employed by industry to hold accidents to a minimum. Some are due to carelessness and neglect although employes realize the risk involved unless these safety rules are religiously adhered to.

When one reads of the devastation done and of the number of lives lost—which is sometimes appalling—a sickening feeling is experienced, for the moment. It is only when such catastrophes hit close home that one can appreciate the full meaning of it all. It came to the people of this section last Saturday when word was flashed that three men had died in a mine while on a mission to make the premises safe for fellow workers. One of the first thoughts to occur to many was, what exploded? Few were willing to attribute the accident to a gaseous formation because of a long-held belief that mines in the George's Creek region were free of such explosive elements.

As a result of minute inspection within the Waynesburg mine on the fringe of Lonaconing, that belief has now been dispelled—for good it is hoped. It was gas—methane—which existed in sufficient quantities to make possible its ignition by an electric spark, the investigation has disclosed.

It is the opinion of inspectors that those who were operating a rock duster with an open type motor did not check for gas before engaging in their operation. If they didn't, it is quite probable that they were laboring under the general belief that no gas existed.

It is most unfortunate that three lives had to be sacrificed to bring about this undisputed fact. It does not, of course, mean that all mines in this region are so affected, but the naked truth disclosed should serve as a stern warning that it cannot be taken for granted that gas is not present.

It goes without saying that greater precautions will be taken by miners, mine owners and welfare units to guard against a repetition of the disaster which has cast a gloom over the communities of Lonaconing, Gilmore and Zihlman, and the homes of the victims where eight children have been deprived of their fathers and eight others made orphans.

Fossils indicate the camel roamed Kansas 100,000 years ago, but the wets will again attempt to end prohibition in that state this fall.

Must Not Seek "Agreement For Agreement's Sake"–Marshall

The statement by Secretary of State Marshall that the United States must not seek "agreement for agreement's sake" should be reassuring to a public which has noted the prolonged secrecy at Moscow with growing apprehension.

Secretary Marshall was referring to the futile negotiations at Belgrade, where Russia controls a majority of the conference votes and is plainly determined to turn the Danube into a Red river. The United States was chiefly instrumental in calling that conference because we were eager, whatever the handicaps, to restore free commerce on Europe's most important waterway. It has now been made perfectly clear that Russia proposes to control Danubian commerce. That being true, the United States would be worse than foolish to sign a treaty in the fond hope of relieving East-West tension.

What Secretary Marshall said about the Danubian meeting applies with greater force to the secret conversation in Moscow over the Berlin crisis. Here, too, the Western Allies took the initiative in an effort to resume four-power negotiations. They did this for the sake of peace, even though they knew they would suffer some loss of diplomatic face by naming the first move. At the same time, Washington and London have repeatedly said that they would not negotiate under duress. It should be obvious to all that we would only make a bad situation worse by bribing Russia to lift her blockade of Berlin.

A genuine East-West agreement on Berlin would be universally welcome. But a paper agreement which masked a Russian victory would only encourage more radical Moscow demands.

Negotiation is valuable when both sides act in good faith. When one side regards it as a method of gaining its end through political pressure or trickery, a conference is worse than mutually suspicious silence.

In Samoa no one pays more than $5 a year in taxes, but the Samoa plan will never become popular with politicians in this country.

Gardener's Reward

The most enthusiastic amateur vegetable gardener has moments when he wishes he had selected a different hobby.

Rising early to dust his beans, he thinks longingly of the sleep he might have had. Hoeing in the hot sun on his day off, he sees in his mind's eye the maddening picture of a deck chair in the shade. Hand-weeding his rows in the evening, he slaps mosquitoes with unusual viciousness because he would rather be reading the newspaper.

There are hobbies, he well knows, that absorb all a man's thoughts and leave no room in the consciousness for yearning after something else.

The fisherman may be up before the sun but he is too eager to get his line in the water to regret his long rest. The tennis player forgets the heat, and the sweat in his eyes, as he puts an ace across the net. The twilight golfer hardly notices a bite or two when his drive goes arching down the fairway.

Gardening is not like that. The work a vegetable plot demands takes no particular skill and the satisfaction that comes as the weeds go down is sure to wear thin after a time. There is a great deal of plain drudgery in it. True, that leaves the fancy free—but when the fancy brings up visions of pleasanter pursuits it makes for gnawing discontent.

But what other hobby can yield the glow of triumph that comes when a stack of steaming ears of sweet corn stands on the table and the mere human who compelled nature to work this miracle watches the company sink their teeth into that golden goodness.

Are Americans slipping? So far no operator of a roadside sandwich stand has come out with a Deweyburger.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Re-learning To Walk

Apoplexy is one of the most common causes of disability in older persons and it is distressing because at the present time we have no remedy. But nature is usually kind, and spontaneous healing frequently occurs. Furthermore, the restorative processes can be hastened in several ways.

Dr. Van Dellen

A stroke usually means that one of the vessels of the brain is plugged by a clot or has ruptured, producing hemorrhage. In many instances, both symptoms and outcome depend upon how much of and what part of the brain is involved. The manifestations vary from deep coma to slight dizziness; paralysis may or may not be present. During the early stages, it is difficult to tell whether the effects will be temporary or permanent.

Since the majority of victims are confined to bed, good nursing is essential. By remaining quiet, the disturbance in the brain is more likely to be brought under control. This is true particularly if hemorrhage has occurred because rest encourages cessation of bleeding. In many instances, sedatives may be required to decrease irritability. Feeding is a problem and, during the early stages, it may be possible to administer only liquids or soft foods. Should difficulty in swallowing exist, care must be taken lest some of the material escape into the windpipe. The bed must be kept clean. A firm mattress helps to maintain good posture, or sagging can be prevented by placing a board beneath the mattress. Pillows under the shoulders and head are not only comfortable but ward off neck deformities. Sandbags may be used to keep the paralyzed limb in a good position.

Once the sufferer is out of danger, rehabilitation is necessary. While in bed, the arms and legs should be moved about with assistance until strength returns. When speech is affected, special training may be required. Ultimately the stage is reached when sitting up in bed is permitted. This aids in re-establishing balance and, once accomplished, the legs may hang over the edge of the bed with the feet on a stool. During this time, arm and leg exercises will strengthen the extremities. In addition, the afflicted individual should be coaxed to aid in his own feeding, washing, and dressing. Such maneuvers are not easy to perform and re-education takes time and patience. Some improve rapidly, others more slowly; but regardless of the pace the attendant should always be encouraging because cooperation will thus be increased.

The day comes ultimately when the invalid can get out of bed. Before attempting to walk, balancing in a standing position should be practiced for a week or two. If one leg is paralyzed, the best way to re-learn how to walk is to hold on to something. Many hospitals have special devices that are useful for this purpose. Others rely upon parellel bars which can be held while taking each step. At home, two kitchen chairs can be used. Crutches are useful also but require more skill to manage satisfactorily.

Much practice is demanded to regain the art of walking and, although it may seem hopeless, the outcome is good if the individual is willing to try. By doing a little each day, fatigue can be avoided. This is an important consideration, especially if other conditions coexist, such as heart disease.

Low Thyroid Activity

J. K. writes: If a person has a low basal metabolism, is this permanent or must thyroid extract be taken always?

Reply

This depends upon the individual. In some, thyroid must be continued thruout life; others can discontinue the hormone after a while and do well thereafter. Not every one with a minus basal metabolic reading lacks thyroid. The condition may represent low vitality and, in the circumstances, the glandular extract will produce nervousness and must be discontinued.

Erosion

K. L. writes: What causes a stomach ulcer to start bleeding?

Reply

Hemorrhage results from the erosion of a near-by blood vessel by the growing ulcer.

Attacks of Sleeping

H. W. writes: What causes narcolepsy?

Reply

This phenomenon is a symptom of a disturbance in the brain. In some instances, it follows encephalitis; others, a tumor. But in the majority of cases, no cause can be found. The afflicted individual is seized with an uncontrollable desire to sleep while he is active during the day.

SMALL INTESTINE

J. A. writes: What is acute ileitis?

Reply

Inflammation of the ileum, that portion of the small bowel which connects with the large intestine. It is located so close to the appendix that when it becomes involved appendicitis is often suspected.

NOT IN NERVE DISORDERS

T. H. writes: When an individual receives the electric shock treatment, how is it possible to determine which nerve is the base of the trouble?

Reply

This form of therapy is used in mental disturbances and not for any specific nerve lesion.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Says ROBERT S. ALLEN

(EDITOR'S NOTE—While Drew Pearson is on a brief vacation, The Washington Merry-Go-Round is being written by his old partner, Robert S. Allen.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18—Some of the cockeyed inconsistencies of Washington officialdom are verily wondrous to behold.

Here is the latest beaut:

On Tuesday, President Truman made an address ardently pleading for public support of the National Employ the Physically Handicapped Week, October 3-9. He pointed out two significant facts: (1) that industrial record shows conclusively that when given the opportunity to work, handicaps almost invariably prove above average in productivity, regularity and loyalty, and (2) that with the marked labor shortages existing in many fields, it is both good business and good humanity to give jobs to handicaps.

With deep feeling, Mr. Truman urged employers to give handicaps a chance to make themselves useful and self-supporting beings. The President's speech was moving, and a real credit to him.

Reverse Picture

Yet, at the same time the President was making this touching appeal to private employers, one of the biggest government employers was giving the cold shoulder to thousands of highly competent handicaps whom it had made.

This is the U. S. Army—of which the President, as Commander-In-Chief, is boss, and which is now moaning to the high heavens about a desperate shortage of officers to train the forthcoming draft levy.

The Army says it needs 37,000 additional officers for this purpose. To date, about 2,500 reserve officers have volunteered to return to active duty. The Army is talking of drafting officers to meet its urgent needs.

But at the same time that the Army is doing all this whining and blustering, it has on its rolls thousands of retired combat veterans who would make the finest type of training personnel. These officers were shelved because their battle-incurred impairments do not square with the Army's high, and in some respects archaic, physical requirements for field duty.

But the Army's immediate need is not officers for rigorous field duty. It needs officers to train men for such duty. This untapped reservoir of battle-experienced veterans is a matchless source for such trainers. These men have been through the mill. Their knowledge and skill can't be bought for love or money. Their very disabilities give them an added value as an inspiration.

When Gen. Dwight Eisenhower was Chief of Staff, he saw that clearly. He put through an order allowing disabled non-commissioned officers to enlist for limited duty in the regular Army. The Navy, today, has an admiral on active duty who lost a foot in battle.

But the Army has always been inane and extravagant in personnel matters. Last spring when Army brass were shrieking that they didn't have enough troops to man combat units, thousands of husky young soldiers were idling away their time doing wholly unnecessary sentry duty at posts in the U. S. They were just for show purposes, nothing more. There are hundreds of them doing this sort of thing right now in Washington.

Why the Army is not making use of its thousands of highly skilled disabled officers is a mystery only the tradition-bound brass can answer. It's true it would be something new, and that is a staggering objection. But if private employers can gainfully use handicaps, why not the U. S. Army?

Perhaps the President ought to deliver his speech again—to the Pentagon brass. Or, better still, as Commander-In-Chief he could order them to climb out of the cobwebs and do less than he is urging others to do.

Exit Griswold

Dwight Griswold is quitting as U. S. aid administrator in Greece. The former Nebraska Governor is now packing in Athens to return to the U. S. early next month. Griswold is resigning to take part in the Republican election campaign. He hopes to land in the Dewey cabinet—if there is one.

By dint of a combination of wheedling and booting, Griswold has effected some administrative reforms in the graft-ridden and incompetent Greek government. Its budget still remains to be balanced, and its heavily padded payrolls still remain to be pared down. But a little progress has been made toward efficiency and honesty.

However, there was one particularly smelly deal that Griswold was unable to block—thanks to the State Department.

As part of the "Aid Greece" program, the State Department put through a sale of 100 Liberty ships to Greek shipowners. The contention was that these vessels would improve Greece's dollar position. Actually, it was a lush bonanza to a small group of wealthy, royalist Greeks who live in New York, do their banking in New York, and pay little taxes either in the U. S. or Greece.

Not only did the State Department sell the ships to the millionaire Greeks for less than one-third of the original cost to U. S. taxpayers, but the Department also threw in special purchasing terms. The Greeks were allowed to pay only 25 per cent down and given 17 years to pay the remainder.

And the debt-loaded Greek government had to guarantee the mortgages on these ships.

Shipping experts estimate the vessels are earning $1,000 a day each for their Greek owners. But all the Greek government gets from these juicy profits is a paltry $15,000 a year in taxes.

That's the way the State Department is "aiding the dollar position" of Greece.

Unimpressed

An unpublished exchange took place when Marshal Sokolovsky, Soviet Commander in Germany, was arrested for speeding by a U. S. constabulary trooper, that graphically illustrates the high quality of this crack outfit.

Sokolovsky was very miffed when flagged down. He haughtily attempted to brush the trooper aside. "I am Marshal Sokolovsky," he announced. The U. S. soldier was unimpressed.

"Maybe you are and maybe you're not," he said, quietly but firmly. "You'll have to come to headquarters with me to prove it."

And that's exactly what the blustering Russian did.

Russian Government Proves Itself Clumsy, Inept, Stupid

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—In the broad game of propaganda or "psychological warfare," Russia has lost considerable ground and prestige in the last few days. The way the Soviet handled the "kidnapping" and then the attempted suicide of the Russian school teacher in New York is more convincing than all the evidence that can be derived from diplomacy's fiery debates that the Russian government is clumsy, inept and often stupid in its handling of its own affairs.

To allow the whole world to catch a Russian official in the very act of lying about so simple a case as a Russian subject trying to escape the clutches of her own government for fear of punishment, is to advertise the methods of totalitarianism and a police state so that everybody can understand.

It would have been much easier for the Russian government to have regarded the incident from the beginning as trivial and inconsequential. There is no evidence, for instance, that the teacher had any important testimony to give. If it had not been for the efforts of the Russian consulate to prevent the woman's sojourn on American soil, the episode would never have attracted any attention.

Next Blunder In Moscow

The next blunder was made in Moscow when the foreign office decided to make an issue of it. To contend that the American government was implicated is merely to bring down upon the Russians ridicule from all parts of the world. Certainly there must be men in the Kremlin with more sense and cleverness than has been exhibited in the handling of the recalcitrant teacher.

Coming as the affair does on top of a sensational story of a Communist spy ring and the news that the Russian government paid out $2,600 and decorated Miss Bentley for supplying confidential information about the American government's secrets, it does look as if the Soviet authorities in Moscow became unduly nervous about world opinion and then became entrapped in crude efforts to make it appear that the Russian teacher was really trying to get back to Russia or that an American naval attache was spying, too.

Russian propaganda palpably follows a naive pattern in assuming that outside of Russia people actually believe distortions and twisted stories about facts that can easily be understood. The most significant thing about all the Russian propaganda indeed is the fact that the Russians do seem to care what the rest of the world thinks.

It is not merely opinion in this hemisphere that counts with the Russians but opinion among the states of Europe where Communist organizations are active in trying to get political strength. Among the satellite states in particular the cause of Communism can be weakened if the Russian government gets entangled with the United States in any way that casts discredit on the communists.

Undoubtedly the stories of the spy ring and the investigation by the congressional committees are being used by anti-Communists in Europe to indicate the extent to which Communist infiltration has gone on even as far away from Russia as the United States and Canada.

Communism Suffers, Too

The Russian government cannot fight a war without the wholehearted support of her neighboring countries. Conversely, the satellite countries have within them movements that seek to rid their lands of Communist domination. Hence whatever causes a drop in prestige for Russia injures communism.

Thus the main issue for the western allies with respect to staying in Berlin has not been the strategic importance of remaining in the former German capital but the possibility that any form of retreat would be construed by European peoples as a defeat for the democracies and a rise in the prestige of the Soviets.

In the battle for prestige, an unnoticed school teacher leaping from the third floor of the Russian consulate where, she says, she had been kept a prisoner does much to impair Russia's position and to tell everybody that Russian subjects are not free from the totalitarian government even when they pursue so innocent a profession as teaching school in a foreign country.

Price Support, Under Existing Conditions, Contains Dangers

By MARK SULLIVAN

There is now imbedded in the statutes of the United States a policy which, as interpreted and carried out by the Department of Agriculture, asserts extraordinary principles, some might call them "anti-principles."

One is that keeping up the price of food is a proper function of government. Another: that the government, in order to keep up the price of food, may buy immense quantities and sell it at a loss, in some cases abroad, in other cases to manufacturers for uses other than food. Another, the most extraordinary of all: that the government, having bought food for the purpose of keeping up the price, may for the same purpose destroy it.

These practices are so novel and extraordinary as to be incredible to many. This explains widespread failure, until recently, to grasp the policy of price support. Moreover, the policy was originally put forward as price support for the sellers, the farmers who produce the food; now it is seen that price support in favor of one class, the farmer, is identical with price support against a much larger class, the consumer.

Future Dangers In Policy

Price support, under existing conditions, contains present harms and future dangers even greater than the oppression of the public as food consumers, it is an acute national peril. Prices of farm crops, food, are at a height greater than any other line of goods, put there by the government price support policy. This out-of-line height of farm crop prices, "must be considered"—I quote the New York Herald Tribune—"the most inflationary factor in the national economy."

It is tenable to say that the government practice of price support is and has been the most dynamic cause of high cost of living. It is further tenable to say, though this is in the field of historical "ifs"—that but for this government practice of supporting prices of food, the wartime rise in cost of living might have come toward an end two years ago, about the fall of 1946; our present danger of inflation might have been averted or much reduced.

The policy of price support—its purpose, technique and revolutionary nature—is illustrated by the example with which it was initiated. This was a purchase and destruction of hogs on an immense scale, in the first year of the Roosevelt Administration. I have alluded to this in a recent article; but no reiteration can put too much emphasis on it, and no newspaper article provide enough space; it would be a proper subject for scholars writing theses on American history. Whether they would treat this as a turning point in our economic evolution or as a folly destined to be abandoned, may be determined in the near future.

Revolutionary Action

What is here written is taken from an official document, "Report of Administration of the Agricultural Adjustment Act, May 1933 to February 1934." The Department knew exactly what it was doing and for what purpose: "Immediate action . . . was regarded as necessary in view of the acute hog price decline which seemed likely to take place if all the hogs then in the feed lots, or to be farrowed by sows already bred, were fattened out and marketed." The Department knew also that its action was revolutionary, "A purchasing program of this sort had never been tried in this country."

The program approved by the Secretary of Agriculture, Henry A. Wallace, included "purchasing . . . a maximum of 1,000,000 sows . . . due to farrow in the fall of 1933 . . . at the market price . . . plus a cash bonus of $4 per head." It included also "purchase of four million pigs and light-weight hogs . . ."

"Pigs weighing less than 80 pounds were . . . processed into the inedible products of grease and fertilizer tankage . . . The average yield of inedible grease per pig was about three to five pounds per animal . . . The yield of fertilizer tankage was approximately five pounds per animal . . . The residue was . . . dumped . . . burned . . buried, or consumed at public incinerators . . ." The cost was $34,000,000. In carrying out the program the number of pigs and light-weight hogs bought was 6,186,717; the number of sows, 222,149.

Art Without Money

SUPPOSE Billy Rose or some other Broadway impresario took over the management of the Metropolitan Opera House, what could he do that Oscar Hammerstein failed to do with his operatic venture? The answer, of course, is the same for opera as it is for the symphony and the ballet. These forms of art were never intended for commercial exploitation and the traditions that surround them and the needs that create them are different from other forms of human expression which do lend themselves to box office management. It is necessary to play the less popular as it is necessary to have a course in Indo-Iranian languages in a fully staffed university.

Such a musical play as "Oklahoma!" can run for several years, but suppose the Metropolitan were to attempt to give "Parsifal" a six months' run! Those who are most concerned with listening to opera want a varied fare and that is why they subscribe in advance to an entire season of opera. It is much the same with the symphony as is evidenced by this amazing spectacle of 7,000 persons coming up to the Berkshires to listen to an all-Tchaikowsky program and many of them motoring 50 or 100 miles back and forth to do it.

Actually the theater would be improved if the ancient stock company were restored. The Metropolitan put on 28 different operas last season. No theater in America does anything of the kind. Mr. Rose, for instance, may put on a show a season, with perhaps an interlude, at his "Diamond Horseshoe." In the good, old days of stock, the American actor learned the stage and he knew the theater, even as some British actors who come over do these days.

Most Americans actors are so narrow and circumspect in their theatrical experience that they become typed and limited and their acting is always of a kind.

No theatrical producer risks putting his money into a stock company, because union wages and union rules would kill him financially. Yet that is precisely what the Metropolitan has to do if it is to remain an opera house. It keeps an orchestra of 102 men; it maintains a payroll of 550 men and women. The average pay of its musicians in the orchestra is $5,600 for a 29-week season. During that period, the musician can teach, do other work, if he desires and is thrifty in the use of time; certainly, he can increase his earnings during the 23 weeks when he is not serving the Metropolitan. But the musicians are not the only factor; the Metropolitan has to deal with 12 unions.

But that is not as much the problem as it is that this country is growing increasingly musical and it wants good music, adequately conducted and produced. It is not altogether understandable that New York City maintains with difficulty one symphony orchestra; does not support a ballet of note; and now permits the leading opera house in the world to be threatened with a shutdown, largely because of internal politics in the unions—12 of them.

Even worse is the city of Washington, which is musically arid. Washington is probably the only capital in the Western world without an opera, and as I understand it, without a theater next season. For years, it ran with only one theater, which has declined to reopen because of a quarrel over the question of segregation.

Yet, when one sees America from the vantage point of Tanglewood, it is impossible not to recognize the hunger for music in this country. The other night, I picked up a couple of boys coming away from the Tchaikowsky concert. One was from Illinois; the other from Boston. Both were still students. We got into a discussion on the price of hot dogs, and the Illinois boy was an authority on the subject. He had made and sold them to pay his way through college. Yet he had come on to Tanglewood in Western Massachusetts for music.

What seems to be needed is a rational approach to the cultural needs of this country. They are as important surely as subsidies to potato-growers, and may even attract as many voters.

Today's Talk

Routine

Every once in a while we read in our newspaper about certain acts of the Army or Navy, or of Government itself. The reporter, who is always looking for some opening to a good news discovery, tries to get something from the official that will put attention matter to his story—but all too often he gets the mere answer that it's just "routine."

What is this routine, anyway? The dictionary says: "Regular course of procedure; unvarying round; blind adherence." In other words, there is nothing exciting about routine—it's just the regular thing, over and over again. Something often dull.

There is nothing very inspiring about routine work, or about a routine life, for that matter. Routine work is important and essential, but the great and stimulating things of life are those that suddenly spring out of routine ways. There is one there who thinks out something better and more efficient, something sensational, perhaps. And then the routine stops, takes breath, and climbs into an event!

There was nothing routine about the "Declaration of Independence" by those patriots who dreamed of a new nation at Philadelphia in 1776! Nor was there anything routine about the decision of Abraham Lincoln to give to the world his "Emancipation Proclamation." Nor was there anything routine about the English "Bill of Rights." History takes on lustre in its departure from the routine. Just the same as any life does.

How often we hear a person remark after some important act, "Now I shall go back to the old grind and routine." And with that the thrill of life, with its creative excitement, takes its departure! We can't live a routine life and be happy. Events and climaxes have spiritual sparkle to them. As if merely to live is life!

What a tragedy it is for any of us to become a slave to the humdrum or to the beaten path! Better to become a pioneer, to beat a new path to a new way of life, or to a new discovery, or indeed to make a new discovery about one's self.

The government of Venezuela has officially recognized love. It has just authorized the Post Office Department to handle all love letters at half price. In other words... in Venezuela, two can love as cheaply as one.

To distinguish these billet doux from the regular mail, they must be enclosed in a red envelope. So, in Venezuela, when a girl sees red... she knows it's love.

It's certainly lucky we don't have that system here in this country... Lana Turner would surely be investigated by Congress.

They're always using the wrong color, though... those Venezuelans. ...I always thought red meant stop. But then again, red's probably a good color for love letters. After all ...red always attracts the bull.

I hear the old maids down in Venezuela have found a way to beat the system, though... when they open their mail they use rose-colored glasses.

My brother's really making a fortune down there... He's got the red paint concession in the post office.

I received a letter sealed in red the other day... but it was from my grocer... my bill wasn't paid.

Juanita Brown Honored At Party By Elda McCracken

To Become Bride Of E. F. Mullan, Jr.

Miss Elda McCracken entertained with a miscellaneous bridal shower honoring Miss Juanita J. Brown on Tuesday night at her home, 41 Arch Street.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. O. Brown, 30 Arch Street, Miss Brown is to become the bride of Edward Francis Mullan, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Mullan, 621 Montgomery Avenue, Saturday.

Shower gifts were arranged upon a table beneath suspended sprinkling cans from which cascaded a shower of pink, green and white ribbons.

The same rainbow color scheme was carried out in the refreshment table which was centered with a tiered bridal cake decorated with pink and yellow icing rosebuds and topped with natural yellow rosebuds. Candelabra with four white tapers were at either side of the cake, which was encircled with fern. The same color scheme was repeated in the refreshments and table appointments. Miniature sprinkling cans were used at the place settings with the name of the guest written on the spouts, they also were tied with pastel colored ribbons.

Silver and white wedding bells were used with ferns on the chandeliers and throughout the house. A white throne with white streamers was arranged for the bride at the table. The hostess was assisted in serving by Miss Anna Hardy.

The evening was spent informally and other guests were Mrs. Robert Storer, Mrs. Gerald Malloy, Mrs. Edward McMahon, Mrs. Ted Stillwell, Mrs. Virginia Pealer, Mrs. Melvin Daniels, Miss Dorothy Mullan, Miss Betty Klosterman, Miss Joan Radcliffe, Miss Doris Brown, Mrs. O. O. Brown, Mrs. Michael Dugas, Pittsburgh; Mrs. Nell McCracken, Mrs. Lloyd McNeil and Mrs. Judene Cramett.

Methodist Young Adults To Have Weekend Camp

A Methodist Young Adult weekend camp is being held at Camp Frame, W. Va., August 27, 28 and 29. The camp is 10 miles northwest of Martinsburg, W. Va., on Route 9, and is being sponsored by the Martinsburg Sub-District Young Adults of the Hagerstown District, of which Cumberland is a part.

The program will begin at 2 o'clock Saturday. It is informal and includes fellowship, worship, periods of panel discussions and recreation.

Equipment to be brought by all campers consists of bedding, a flash light, Bible, "Sing It Again" song book, swim suit and other personal needs.

Reservations must be in the hands of Mrs. Betty Bloom, St. James, by August 21.

Those arriving before 2 o'clock Saturday will be required to furnish their own meals prior to that time.

Events In Brief

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Howell, Barton, celebrated their thirtieth anniversary August 10 with a buffet supper. Their friends and family attended.

There will be an ice cream social at Mt. Olive Church three and one-half miles east of Oldtown on Bear Hill Road, Saturday night beginning at 7 o'clock. Plate lunches will be served.

The annual picnic of the Potomac Park Homemakers Club will be held tomorrow at the Celanese pool. A basket lunch at 6 will be followed by a business meeting. Games and entertainment have been planned for adults and children. A vesper service will conclude the evening.

James W. Beacham, president of the VFW Winter Mixed Bowling League, has called a meeting for tonight at the VFW home.

Gertrude Garland, Oldtown Road, will entertain the Intermediate Girls of Davis Memorial Methodist Church tomorrow.

The American Legion weekly dance is to be held tomorrow night at the home with music from 9 until midnight by Joe Schupfer and his Rhythm Boys.

A well baby clinic will be held at 10 today at the community house, Central Avenue, by Dr. William McFarland, assistant health officer, and Mrs. Irma Morley, health nurse.

Our Flag of Cumberland Council 100, Daughters of America, will entertain Mrs. Annie Deetz, state councilor, and the state officers at 8 tonight at Junior Order Hall.

The Loyal Daughters Bible Class of Kingsley Methodist Church will meet at the home of Mrs. John R. Dorn, 607 Elm Street, at 8 tonight. Mrs. Almeda Curry and Miss Blanch Curry will be co-hostesses.

Today, 90 per cent of United States bituminous coal mined underground is mechanically cut.

CUTTING CAKE—Mr. and Mrs. Francis J. Crabtree are shown at the wedding reception Tuesday at the home of the bride, the former Miss Doris Jean Barnard, daughter of Mrs. Catherine Barnard, 532 Fairview Avenue. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Crabtree, 810 Shawnee Avenue.

Pfc. Robert Beck, Miss Elvie Rodell Wed In Pittsburgh

A beautiful wedding ceremony was solemnized in the home of Mr. and Mrs. James B. Malone, Pittsburgh, when their daughter, Miss Elvie Rodell, became the bride of Pfc. Robert R. Beck, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl D. Beck, Flintstone, August 14. Rev. Charles H. Stewart, Sr., performed the ceremony.

Mrs. David R. Stewart, sister of the bride, was her matron of honor and only attendant. J. Willis Beck, Cumberland, served as his brother's best man.

The bride wore a white street length dress with all white accessories, and a corsage of pink roses. Her attendant was atired in a yellow dress with which she wore white accessories and a corsage of yellow tea roses.

A reception was held after the ceremony after which the couple left for a short wedding trip in the south. Pfc. Beck will return to camp in Wyoming and Mrs. Beck will join him at a later date.

The bride is a graduate of Perryville High School, class of 1947. The bridegroom was graduated from Everett High School in 1947.

Out-of-town guests attending the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Earl D. Beck, O. S. Beck, Flintstone; Mr. and Mrs. J. Willis Beck and son, Kelly, Cumberland; and Tech. Sgt. and Mrs. Brice Malone, Washington, D. C.

The bridal party included Mrs. Burwell Ware, matron of honor; Miss Mary Herndon, Covington, Ky., Miss Charlotte Anne Dutrow, Charles Town; Mrs. Joseph Capelka, Rippon, W. Va.; and Miss Patricia Wynkoop, Berryville, Va., bridesmaids. John Simons, Frostburg, was best man and Paul Barr, Paul Cain, Charles Town; Henry Ramm, Hartford, Conn.; Lloyd Marshall, Grantsville, were the ushers.

The bride wore the traditional white satin trimmed with scallops of seed pearls. Her long veil was held by a halo of pearls and orange blossoms and she carried a prayer-book with orchid marker.

Her attendants were dressed in gowns with full skirts and fish-tail bustle with matching mitts. They wore summer flowers across the back of the head and carried matching bouquets. The matron of honor was in pink, and two of the bridesmaids in yellow and two in green.

Mrs. Ware wore dusty pink with Navy accessories; and Mrs. Ramey wore grey crepe with gold accessories.

The bride attended Shepherd College and was employed four years at the British Embassy in Washington and recently as secretary to Dr. W. E. Trussel, Charles Town. The bridegroom graduated from Beall High School, Frostburg, and is attending VPI, Blacksburg. He spent four years in the Navy and in the V-12 attended Emory and Henry and Hampden-Sydney colleges, and served in the Pacific.

A reception was held on the lawn at the home of the bride's mother following the ceremony. Of the 200 guests attending the following were from Frostburg: Mrs. William S. Jenkins, Mrs. Amer Suter, Dr and Mrs. Albert C. Cook, C. D. Jefries, Miss Jane Dock and D. I. Grifith.

said he was in his pool room when Mrs. Spriggs and her sister-in-law asked him to drive them to Cresaptown. He assumed that "everything was all right" and took them to the Mayair Tavern where they had a "couple of beers" before driving to Slatown.

Eitzell stated he thought the firs shot was a backfire but decided the second blast was gunfire. He didnot go back to the Bridges house to investigate.

After Bridges shot himself, he lay on the ground at his wife's feet until the physician arrived and died about three minutes later. The gun was found nearby.

Bridges' father said the couple, married three years, had been staying at his home prior to taking up housekeeping in Cresaptown. He added that his son had been taking "medicine for his hands."

The elderly Bridges stated that his son once remarked he "couldn't trust his wife."

According to the Bridges', their son was "thinking about going back into the Navy." A former steel worker, he had served with the Seabees in the Pacific 42 months during World War II.

Rites Are Planned

The shooting occurred about 25 feet from the home of Bridges' uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Logsdon, who reside at the old Bridges' homeplace with his grandfather, John L. Bridges. The victim's father lives about 150 feet from the road.

Surviving Bridges, besides his parents and sister, are five brothers, Raymond Bridges, Slabtown; Lawrence Bridges, Wilmington, Del.; Allen Bridges, Cresaptown, who married the dead woman's sister, the former Reatha Lease; Nevin Bridges, Barrelville, and Ralph Bridges, at home.

His wife is also survived by two brothers, Homer and Neal Lease, Cresaptown, and three other sisters, Mrs. Hazel Cecil and Mrs. Helen Smith, Cresaptown, and Bonnie Lee Lease, at home.

Both bodies were taken to the Hafer Funeral Home in Frostburg.

The bodies will be taken to the Bridges home near Slabtown this afternoon. A joint funeral service has been tentatively set for Saturday at 2 p. m. at the home. They will be buried in the same grave in Mt. Savage Methodist Cemetery.

School Enrollment In County Jumps

Arthur G. Ramey, supervisor of pupil personnel of the Allegany County Board of Education, said yesterday that preparations are being made for an increased enrollment in schools this fall, the increase is attributed to the effect of the wartime increase in the birth rate.

Ramey said the jump of between 200 and 300 in the lower grades will affect the county's whole elementary setup. Enrollment, he added, is nearing the pre-war average of 16,000.

During the war, employment inducements lowered the enrollment to 15,000, but last year the figure was to 15,549, a jump of 200 over the previous year.

Four new buses have been added to provide transportation for students living in rural sections where home-building has increased since the war. Eight other vehicles have been replaced with modern equipment, Ramey added.

This year 96 buses will cover 142 routes, the official stated. He said one of the new vehicles would be assigned to LaVale, two to Frostburg and one to McMullen Highway.

But contractors have submitted the names of their drivers to the board for approval, Ramey said. The drivers must pass a thorough physical examination, must be between the ages of 21 and 60, must pass state requirements for their jobs, and must be capable of maintaining discipline while in transit.

School buses carry 38 per cent of the county enrollment, Ramey said. Inspections of buses are scheduled to start on August 30.

The inspection schedule follows:

August 30: Flintstone, 8:30 a. m.; Piney Plains, 10:30 a. m.; and Oldtown, 1 p. m.

August 31: Fort Hill, 8:30 a. m. and Beall High, Frostburg, 1 p. m.

September 1: Bruce High, Westernport, 9 a. m.; Barton, 9:45 a. m. and Central High, Lonaconing, 10 a. m.

Railroad Earns More This Year

July earnings for the Western Maryland Railway will show an increase compared with last year because of a larger volume of coal traffic and increased freight rates.

The company estimated gross operating revenues for last month as $3,623,000, or 17 per cent above the total of $3,089,678 for the same period last year. This is somewhat lower than the June, 1948, record total of $3,878,543.

Coal freight revenues for July were put at $1,591,000, up 27 per cent over $1,248,180 for the similar 1947 month. Other freight revenues were around $1,902,000, a gain of 14 per cent over $1,672,605 for the same period a year earlier.

For the first seven months of this year, the company figured its gross operating revenues at approximately $25,071,000. This would be a gain of six per cent over gross of $23,743,149 reported for the same 1947 period. Coal freight revenues, at around $11,500,000, rose two per cent, and other freight revenues, at $12,698,000, were up 12 per cent as compared with a year earlier.

On the basis of tentative figures, net income for July was approximately $445,000 after provision for taxes and charges, as against $178,112 reported for the like month of last year.

For the first seven months of 1948, net income was estimated at around $3,205,000. This would compare with $2,837,632 for the similar 1947 period, equivalent to $15.99 a share on the 177,420 shares of seven per cent first preferred stock which is in arrears as to dividends.

During the first week of August, earnings from coal traffic dipped slightly under last year's level, but other freight revenues rose substantially and gross from all sources was up about 13 per cent over the 1947 period.

Celanese Profits And Sales Gain Sharply

Profits and sales disclosed by Celanese Corporation of America for the first half of 1948 were almost double those of the same period in 1947.

A consolidated net income of $20,768,862 or $3.49 a share on common stock was shown by the company and its domestic subsidiaries compared to $11,033,445 or $1.72 a common share for the 1947 period.

Net sales of $84,789,014 for the first six months of 1947 rose to $117,066,188 for the same period this year.

The 1948 six months profits before taxes aggregated $34,197,862 against $18,503,445, while provisions for Federal taxes on income amounted to $13,429,000 compared to $7,470,000.

Profits for the second quarter, the three months ending June 30, totaled $11,024,933 or $1.86 a common share, after all charges and taxes were deducted. The second quarter of 1947 netted $4,852,881 or 74 cents a share.

Second quarter sales were $59,713,809 contrasted with $57,352,379 for the 1947 second quarter.

Harold Blancke, president, said that steps were being taken to bring the new yarn plant at Rock Hill, S. C., into production, but added that volume production will not be reached until the fourth quarter of the year.

THAT LOOKS Good!

Yes sir, Rover, it sure does! But not only does it LOOK good, . . . it IS good! Of course, you know that it might not be the best food in the world for YOUR diet, but that eye - appealing golden crust and tempting freshness of McIntyre's Big Boy Bread, is enough to make you willing to trade all your bones for just that one slice Junior is holding. . . . And incidentally, Junior isn't so young that he doesn't know about the delicious, mouth-watering flavor of Big Boy Bread. You can tell that by the way he's clutching that slice of health and goodness. He knows when he's got a hold on something good.

So Rover, if you have any idea of being able to beg away a piece of that treasure from your pal, . . . you'd better forget all about it and get back to your bones, . . . 'cause Junior is not going to let go. . . . No sir! . . . Not when that soft-textured, tightly clutched treasure, is a slice of McIntyre's Enriched Big Boy Bread!

Dear Editor:

I am a visitor in your fair mountain city from the Hoosier State.

I am wondering what you Cumberlanders would think of the following witnessed (partially) act of brutality.

I was a supper guest of a new acquaintance. While assisting with the dishes, I looked out on the weedsy garden next door, and there was the gardner beating to death, with a lead pipe, a little half grown cat that had done nothing more than wander into the garden.

I hollered at him but he kept right on. As the door faces the garden, we couldn't stay in the kitchen and continue to witness such a brutal act.

How could a grown man get in such a temper over a little harmless cat, is quite a mystery to those who have heard about it.

I am told his father's dogs roam the garden, and adjoining property at will. Folks chase them, but they never think of killing them.

KILL is a dreadful word in any man's language, but to use it on other people's pets that do no harm to gardens at any time, is dreadful.

Too bad Cumberland has no S.P.C.A. It would know what to do with men like his ilk.

Most any outdoor cat will roam during mating time. If they roam unto the lot I am writing about the little fellows take a change of being beat to death.

Too bad there are no laws for such as he. The Man from above should step in and punish him. Maybe He will.

Respectfully,
MRS. MARTHA ANN BRADY,
Indianapolis, Indiana.

Russia Speeds Homes

MOSCOW (AP)—The Council of Ministers, announcing a home building program for rural teachers, said within the next three years 35,522 homes will be built in the Russian Federation. The local Soviets which are to carry out the program are now selecting projects of one, two, three and four family cottages for the village school teachers, and setting aside garden allotments with slightly over half an acre for each family.

Just Between Us

Plan Carefully To Get Most Enjoyment From College Life

By NANCY MOTTRAM

It's not going to be high school again for you this fall. You're leaving your home town, your friends and all the familiar places behind you and heading out for a new experience—college.

Nancy Mottram

All very suddenly, you're faced with things you never had to worry about before. Matters like clothes and allowance and the courses you're planning to take, plus the details of transportation and luggage. The list seems to go on and on. And if you haven't started those confabs with mother and dad, it's time you three got together. Fall isn't too far away, and this time, a last minute scramble to get everything in order isn't going to work. You're changing your address for longer than ever before, and you've got a lot of planning to do.

Before you rush off on a shopping spree to bolster up your wardrobe, and begin plotting the decor of your college room, get advice from someone who knows something about the place you're going to. Although you can get a good idea of what's new in college fashions from the magazines and the newspapers, confer with a gal who's been away to school, preferably to the same one where you're going. She'll be able to give you all the inside information about the type of duds most favored there, and all your cash for clothes will be put to good use, instead of spent on things you'll never wear.

You've been used to having your own room at home, too. It was your private castle, and outside of having mother lecture you if it wasn't kept ultra-neat, all the space, the decorations, the furniture, pictures and knick-knacks were fixed according to your whims. Now you'll have to share it with a girl you don't even know yet. She'll have her preferences and her own personal do-dads, and you'll have to get together on the interior decoration for your joint quarters. Save your funds and plans till you get there. Then, you can decide between you whether the scatter rugs should be green or rose, and what color drapes suit you both.

Your first days are likely to be hectic, and you'll be meeting many people who will be your friends later on. You can start off on the right foot, or you can set the stage for unfriendliness. It depends on you. To make yourself one of the crowd, earn a reputation for popularity and be able to remember your college days with pleasure, you're going to have to get along with people. You can't always have your own way, so don't insist on it. And when you learn to respect their rights and go along with them in a 50-50 partnership, your college years will be happier and you'll profit by your knowledge of human relations as well as by your book learning.

If you have a school, family or friend problem, Nancy can help you. Letters are answered in this column.

Plan Carefully To Get Most Enjoyment From College Life

By NANCY MOTTRAM

It's not going to be high school again for you this fall. You're leaving your home town, your friends and all the familiar places behind you and heading out for a new experience—college.

Nancy Mottram

All very suddenly, you're faced with things you never had to worry about before. Matters like clothes and allowance and the courses you're planning to take, plus the details of transportation and luggage. The list seems to go on and on. And if you haven't started those confabs with mother and dad, it's time you three got together. Fall isn't too far away, and this time, a last minute scramble to get everything in order isn't going to work. You're changing your address for longer than ever before, and you've got a lot of planning to do.

Before you rush off on a shopping spree to bolster up your wardrobe, and begin plotting the decor of your college room, get advice from someone who knows something about the place you're going to. Although you can get a good idea of what's new in college fashions from the magazines and the newspapers, confer with a gal who's been away to school, preferably to the same one where you're going. She'll be able to give you all the inside information about the type of duds most favored there, and all your cash for clothes will be put to good use, instead of spent on things you'll never wear.

You've been used to having your own room at home, too. It was your private castle, and outside of having mother lecture you if it wasn't kept ultra-neat, all the space, the decorations, the furniture, pictures and knick-knacks were fixed according to your whims. Now you'll have to share it with a girl you don't even know yet. She'll have her preferences and her own personal do-dads, and you'll have to get together on the interior decoration for your joint quarters. Save your funds and plans till you get there. Then, you can decide between you whether the scatter rugs should be green or rose, and what color drapes suit you both.

Your first days are likely to be hectic, and you'll be meeting many people who will be your friends later on. You can start off on the right foot, or you can set the stage for unfriendliness. It depends on you. To make yourself one of the crowd, earn a reputation for popularity and be able to remember your college days with pleasure, you're going to have to get along with people. You can't always have your own way, so don't insist on it. And when you learn to respect their rights and go along with them in a 50-50 partnership, your college years will be happier and you'll profit by your knowledge of human relations as well as by your book learning.

If you have a school, family or friend problem, Nancy can help you. Letters are answered in this column.

Brooklyn Moves Within One Game Of Loop Leading Braves

SPORTS GRILL

by Pat Robinson

International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—(INS)—Every club in both major leagues probably has a candidate for rookie of the year honors.

But on the basis of performance we think the choice could be narrowed down among three in the National League and two in the American.

In the American, we think the choice lies between two winners of the Purple Heart—Lou Brissie, left-handed pitcher of the Athletics and Gene Bearden, the equally left-handed young star of the Indians.

It may be that some of the others in this year's exceptionally good crop of rookies will go on to surpass those we've named. But on their performance to date these are the lads we must take.

Dark has been a ball of fire for the Braves, fielding well, handling the double play nicely and hitting well over .300. Rackley and Ashburn are both extremely fast and both are natural .300 hitters. Both also are ball hawks.

Both Brissie and Bearden have been winning pitchers for their respective teams, despite the handicap of war wounds and several operations.

We have asked players on various teams about all these players and we got varied answers. Some thought Brissie the better pitcher; others chose Bearden.

Here and there we find veterans who chose different players than those named as better future prospects.

For instance, Bill McKechnie, Cleveland coach, who is a master handler and developer of pitchers, is extremely high on Bob Rush, young Cub pitcher, as a coming star.

Others think Don Mueller, who recently broke in with the Giants, may make us forget some of the others who are better known. The Giants themselves are high on their rookie catcher, Wes Westrum.

The Braves also think highly of two of their rookie pitchers, Vern Bickford and Bob Hogue.

The Reds have three nice newcomers in pitcher Herman Wehmeier, first baseman Ted Kluszewski and shortstop Tom Stallcup, who is rather weak with the willow. Of course, if you want to consider Hank Sauer a rookie he would have to be considered for rookie of the year on his slugging.

The Phils have quite a crop of kids who can't miss—pitchers Robin Roberts and Curt Simmons, infielders Ralph Caballero and Granny Hamner and outfielder John Blatnik.

The Pirates have two hot numbers in pitcher Bob Chesnes and catcher Ed Fitzgerald, and the Cards have infielder Don Lang.

You can go down the list and find at least one classy newcomer on every club, including that 50-year-old rookie, Satch Paige of the Indians.

There have been better rookie crops perhaps, but we've all seen much worse.

Defenses May Be Thrown To Wind In All-Star Tilt

Pro Cards To Meet Strong Opponents

Begins At 6 P. M.; 20 Boys Entered

By CHARLES EINSTEIN
INS Sports Writer

CHICAGO, Aug. 18 (INS) — The ancient art of football defense has taken its hat and disappeared, some 48 hours this side of the annual All-Star stampede at Chicago's Soldier Field Friday night.

Parties of the first part in the 15th annual football spectacle are the Chicago Cardinals, champions of the National League and never ones to let defensive tactics, either their opponents' or their own, stand in the way.

Score Point-a-Minute

Parties of the second part are, to be sure, the All-Stars, 70 strong and said to be history's greatest single collection of football talent. In scrimmaging among themselves before 25,000 onlookers at Dyche Stadium in Evanston, Ill., last Saturday the stars managed to end up with a 33-28 score—a point a minute, and indicative that what tackling occurred was mostly of the afterthought brand.

A mild dilemma connected with Friday night's game on the Chicago lake front is that the All-Stars have the best passers and the Cardinals the best receivers. But even a poor receiver can catch a good pass, and a poor passer is often saved by ace receiving, so the air should be filled with footballs while 100,000 roar happily.

Layne of Texas, Chappius of Michigan and Lujack of Notre Dame are among those who'll create the passes for the All-Stars; Mal Kutner and Billy Dewell, the Cardinals' two wonder-type ends, will assist such as Charlie Trippi, Frank Liebel and Babe Dimancheff in snuggling Paul Christman's sometime-weird tosses for the N.F.L. titlists.

Odds Are Even

Even if the wrong team does the pass-catching, the final result should not be noticeably affected, since both clubs are equipped with open-field runners fully capable of running forever at any given point in time or space.

The odds on the game, at this time, are absolutely even. You give 6 to 5 no matter who you like; or, at even money, you give three points.

The National League team had been habitual favorite until the past two years, with the All-Stars winning 16 to 0 in 1946 and 16 to 0 in 1947. This has caused major revisions in pre-game philosophies, and is a standard platitude that, all other things being equal, the All-Stars, as individuals, have more at stake than the professionals.

It should not be surprising then, to see Frank Leahy's collegians go to the post as logical choice to succeed where the National Football League failed, and conquer Jim Conzelman's bizarre but potent Cards.

FORT WAYNE GETS SCARE BEFORE EDGING WESTVACO, 8 TO 5

WICHITA, Kas., Aug. 18 (AP) — The Enid, Okla., Cardinals eliminated the Ipswich, Mass., Legion team from national tournament competition here today, by a 6-3 triumph.

Ipswich furnished a slight scare in the seventh but failed to get in the needed runs.

The Fort Wayne, Ind., Electrics started their title defense in the tourney with a victory over an underrated Maryland champion, Westernport, 8 to 5, in the night opener.

Fort Wayne was on the ropes in the seventh and the Maryland team with luck could have pulled up.

MARINE RESERVES COP SECOND TILT FROM KLINE'S, 6-2

Copping their second straight decision in the best-of-five series for the Junior City Softball League championship, the Marine Reserves downed Kline's Market, 6-2, yesterday at Fort Hill.

Jim Close and Jim Lease paced the Reserves attack with two hits apiece, while Gibson had two hits including a double for the losers.

The Marines won the series opener Monday by an 8-7 score and the third game is scheduled today at Stitcher Field at 6 p. m. The score:

KLINE'S	010 100 0—2	6	4
MARINES	300 111 x—6	6	0

Three Steeler Stars On Injured List

CAMBRIDGE SPRINGS, Pa., Aug. 18. (AP)—Three players, dogged by slow-healing injuries, may be out of the Pittsburgh Steelers lineup in a pre-season game with the Chicago Bears Sunday.

Coach Johnny Michelson announced that halfback Bob Cifers, fullback Tony Compango and end Jim Montgomery will see only limited action if they play at all. Three more days of practice remain before the exhibition contest at Pittsburgh's Forbes Field.

Babe Ruth Cancer Fund Suggested

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Aug. 18. (AP)—A baseball Babe Ruth cancer fund was suggested today by Joe Engel, president of the Chattanooga Lookouts of the Southern Association.

Engel sent telegrams suggesting the fund to Baseball Commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler, Ford Frick and William Harridge, presidents of the two major leagues; George Trautman, head of the minors, and Clark Griffith, owner of the Washington Senators.

SUNDAY, Aug. 22—Westvaco at Frostburg—C. Warnick and Layman; Mt. Savage at Queen City—Thompson and Lowery; Midland at Hyndman—G. Warnick and Atkinson; Keyser at Amvets—Johnson and Kelly; Lonaconing at Barton—Middleton and Diaz.

Rain Hampers Play In Tennis Tourney

3 Teams Advance In Doubles Play

MANCHESTER-BY-THE-SEA, Mass., Aug. 18 (INS)—Three doubles teams entered the quarter finals today in the 21st Essex County women's tennis tournament.

Play was limited to doubles after an overnight rain washed out the morning singles matches.

First to enter the quarter final brackets were Shirley Fry, Akron, Ohio, and Mrs. Shiela Summers, Johannesburg, South Africa, who defeated Mrs. Dorothy Cheney, Santa Monica, Calif., and Betty Rosenquest, South Orange, N. J., 3-6, 6-1, 8-6.

Mrs. Virginia Kovacs, Oakland, Calif., and Mrs. Marjorie Buck, New York, defeated Mrs. Magda Rurac, Romania, and Dorothy Head, Alameda, Calif., 7-5, 6-0.

Mrs. Barba Madden Lewis, Tulsa, Okla., and Marta Barnett, New York, defeated Mrs. Virginia Johnson, Chestnut Hill, and Mrs. Helen Rihbany, Boston, 6-4, 6-4.

The fourth match between Mrs. Patricia Canning Todd and Doris Hart against Mrs. Louise Snow Isaacs and Mrs. Eleanor Cushingham, was postponed until tomorrow to allow Mrs. Todd more time to recuperate from a slight arm injury.

Potomac Valley Plays Phone Workers Here

Four games are on tap in the County Softball League today.

Potomac Valley's second place Cubs invade Cumberland to play the Phone Workers at Taylor Field, the third place Hyndman Firemen test Bedford Road on the latter's field, Corriganville's at Allegany Grove and Narrows Park Cardinals are hosts to Ellerslie.

Wellersburg is idle and wins by forfeit from the Corner Merchants.

Final Drawings Completed For Frostburg Derby

Final drawings have been made and preparations completed for the Frostburg soap-box derby to be held tonight beginning at 6 p. m. in conjunction with the Mountain District American Legion convention scheduled for Frostburg this weekend, Arthur G. Ramey, director of the event announced last night.

In Class A (boys under 12) drawings are as follows:

Entries 1 and 2—George Beall and William Davis.

Entries 3 and 4—Gerald McKenzie and Arthur Gehauf.

Entries 5 and 6—Paul Doolan and Vic Dormio.

Entries 7 and 8—Roy Niner and Kenneth Jeffries.

Winners of each heat will compete in quarter finals, semi-finals and finals.

Trial heat No. 1—Billy Eichhorn and Leonard Keys.

Trial heat No. 2—Pinky Holmes and James Rooney.

Trial heat No. 4—Crandall Gibbons and Roy Lewis.

In the quarter finals the winners of trial heats 1 and 2 will compete; the winners of 3 and 4 will meet and Bobby McKenzie and John Bowser will meet in another quarter-final race. Richard Hawkins and Gerald Jackson will race in the final quarter-final match. Semi-final and finals will then be run off with the winners of Class A and Class B racing to see who is the champion of the convention.

Prizes of $110 in cash will be distributed among the winners, Ramey said.

Chairman of arrangements is Harold Blocker; Ramey is director; Judges are James Kenny, Westernport, Sam Graham, Cumberland, and William H. Lemmert, Frostburg; Finish clerk is Robert W. Jones; Starter — Frank Bowers; Starting clerk — Fred Rowe and assistants Olin Spiker and Harold Blocker.

Ramey said that all contestants are requested to report to Fred Rowe promptly at 5:30 p. m. at West College Avenue and Chestnut street to be ready for the derby which will get under way at 6 p. m.

Babe Ruth Receives Posthumous Award

NEW YORK, Aug. 18. (INS)—The U. S. Polo Association awarded its first annual "Tommy Hitchcock Jr. Memorial Award" posthumously today to the late George Herman (Babe) Ruth.

Robert Strawbridge, chairman of the association, explained that Ruth had been selected as recipient several weeks ago and was to have been present to receive the trophy. Ford Frick, president of the National League, accepted on behalf of the Ruth family. The award will be presented annually to that person who best typifies the ideals of fair play and sportsmanship in American athletics.

Aristocrats Cinch Second; Stoop's Win

The Aristocrats cinched second place in the Frostburg City Softball League yesterday by edging Peck's 4-1 in nine innings at Community Ball Park. The last place Moose dropped a 6-5 decision to Stoop's in the other tilt at State Teachers' field.

All of the Aristocrats runs were the result of homeruns with Carter hitting for the circuit in the fifth to knot the count 1-1 and Waites clouting his four-bagger in the bottom of the ninth with two mates aboard for the winning blow. C. Taylor hurled four-hit ball for the winners.

In the other tilt a five-run rally in the sixth inning gave Stoop's the edge on the Moose in a ding-dong battle The losers got away to a 4-1 lead with four runs in the third. The scores:

Colts Cut Squad; Release Six Rookies

SUN VALLEY, Idaho, Aug. 18 (AP)—Coach Cecil Isbell cut six rookie candidates from his Baltimore Colt squad today.

Released by the All-America Conference team were Rex Olson, Brigham Young, quarterback; ends Carl Schiller from Western Michigan and Henry Olshanski from Wisconsin; Fred Chaffin, Southwest Missouri halfback; Ray Bostrom, North Dakota tackle, and Elmer Jackson, Arkansas guard.

Only Jackson said he had any immediate further football plans. He said he would report to Jersey City in the American Association.

Robinson, Gavilan Signed For Bout By Mike Jacobs

War Between Fight Promoters Continues

By MURRAY ROSE

NEW YORK, Aug. 18 (AP) — The battle lines were drawn today for the first big showdown between New York's warring boxing promoters.

Mike Jacobs' well-established 20th Century Sporting Club today completed the arrangements for the second half of its fistic double-header by signing welterweight champion Ray Robinson to meet Kid Gavilan, the Cuban clouter, in a non-title ten rounder.

Now the 20th and its newcomer rival, the Tournament of Champions, were all set to go all out for Gus Fan's buck with shows one day apart, Sept. 21 and 22.

Two Fight Cards

Here's the way the twin bills compare:

Sept. 21—Tournament of Champions at Roosevelt Stadium, Jersey Ciyt, N. J.:

Heavyweight Jersey Joe Walcott, Camden, N. J., vs. Gus Lesnevich, Cliffside Park, N. J., 15 rounds.

Sept. 22—20th Century Sporting Club at Yankee Stadium, New York:

Lightweight champion Ike Williams, Trenton, N. J., vs. Jess Flores, Stockton, Calif., title bout, 15 rounds.

Robinson vs. Gavilan, non-title, 10 rounds.

The Tournament of Champions is charging from $5 to $40 for reserved seats. The show will not be televized but will be broadcast.

Jacobs' outfit will announce its prices later. The 20th will air its show and probably will televize it although no decision has been reached regarding video yet.

The 20th thus has a 2-1 edge in champions with Williams and Robinson as against Zale.

Both of the 20th's fights shape up as corkers, bringing together four of the finest battlers among the middle divisions.

Jacobs Has Edge

Zale and Cerdan are virtually certain to put up a whale of a fight with an early knockout likely but the Walcott-Lesnevich tussle could either be a sleep-producer or a sizzler depending on the veterans' attitude.

The 20th has two other edges over the T. of C. First it has the most favorable location and secondly it has gone into hock far less than the T. of C.

The T. of C. has guaranteed its four star performers a total of $270,000. The 20th probably didn't have to guarantee more than $25,000 apiece to Williams and Robinson. Flores and Gavilan undoubtedly agreed to minor percentages.

Rain on the 21st could pit the two against each other on the 22nd, thus bringing the rivalry to an out-and-out cut-throat battle.

Grid Associations Schedule Meeting

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Aug. 18 (AP)—Representatives of the West Virginia, North Carolina and Virginia state high school athletic associations will discuss 1948 high school football rules at a meeting here next Wednesday.

West Virginia schools use the National Federation of State High School Athletic Associations rules, while the North Carolina and Virginia schools follow the collegiate code.

H. V. Porter, executive secretary of the national federation and secretary of its football rules committee, will lead discussions of the scholastic code which is official for high schools in 31 states.

The conference here will be sponsored by the federation.

Hockey All-Star Game Set Nov. 3

MONTREAL, Aug. 18—(INS)—The National Hockey League announced today that its second annual all-star game will be played at Chicago Stadium the evening of Nov. 3.

The game—proceeds from which are directed toward a players' pension fund—involves the Toronto Maple Leafs, 1947-48 Stanley Cup champions, and members from the first and second all-star teams selected by league coaches.

Kretz Seeks Fourth Motorcycle Title

LANGHORNE, Pa., Aug. 18 (AP)—Eddie Kretz, only man ever to win the 100-mile national motorcycle title three times, leads the California contingent in the renewal of the championship race at Langhorne Speedway, Sept. 5.

Kretz, victor in 1937, 38 and 40, has his guns trained on wresting the title from the eastern and midwestern riders including Ed Guill, Danville, Va., last year's winner, and Johnny Spiegelhoff, 1946 champion from Milwaukee, Wis.

Salem Manager Will Resign After Season

SALEM, Ore., Aug. 18. (AP)—Jack Wilson, manager of Salem's Western International League baseball team, said today he would resign at the end of the season.

Wilson said he would enter business here. It will end 18 years in baseball for the former American League pitcher, who has been manager here for two years.

Athletics Drop To Third Place As Bosox Win

Mackmen Defeated By 10 To 2 Score

BOSTON, Aug. 18 (AP)—Boston's Red Sox climbed over Philadelphia into second place today with a 17 hit attack and a 10-2 decision over the Athletics, who dropped into third place in the everchanging American League pennant fight.

A paid crowd of 24,178 yelped in glee as the Sox battered the offerings of three Philadelphia pitchers. Ted Williams and Birdie Tebbette paced the cannonading with three hits each.

Eddie Joost, shortstop of the amazing A's, was forced to leave the game in the third inning when he aggravated his injured right hand in swinging at a third strike.

Joost, who jammed his hand while sliding into third base at St. Louis Aug. 8, was sent to Philadelphia for X-rays and treatment by the club physician.

Hank Majeski moved over to short and Don White was inserted at third base.

A walk to Joost, Barney McCosky's single and a fly out gave the A's a run in the first and they were held scoreless by the Sox until the eighth when they tallied their only other run off veteran Boston pitcher Denny Galehouse, who won his sixth victory.

The Sox went ahead in their side of the first with a pair of runs—the second made possible by the hustle of Williams—and added three more in the third, four in the fifth, and their last in the eighth. Score:

Lacy's, Astor Cab Win City Contests

Lacy's Delicatets climbed into a tie for second place two games behind the league-leading Amvets in the City Softball League yesterday by defeating Astor Restaurant 11-7 at Taylor Field.

In the only other game reported Astor Cab downed Ballard's 8 to 3 at East Side as Billy Underdonk racked up his 21st pitching triumph of the season.

Hardy, Decker and Giles each had two hits for Lacy's while Penner and Hardy banged out homers in the 11-hit assault. Cramblitt collected three bingles for the losers.

Baker had three hits including a double for Astor Cab and Humbertson hit a circuit blow while Winebrenner had two of the losers' four bingles.

The Amvet-Reed's Electricians and Joe's Crusaders-North End games scheduled yesterday were unreported. The scores:

Thousands Pay Homage At Bier Of Homerun King

Funeral Services Set For 10 A. M.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18—(AP)—An elderly white-haired man lifted up his grandson to look into a casket in Yankee Stadium today.

"Take a good look, sonny," he said. "You'll never see another man like him."

The bier was Babe Ruth's. The old man and the little boy were two of thousands of persons, many of whom journeyed hundreds of miles to pay homage to the king of baseball. They looked on his face for the last time at the rate of 100 a minute.

They came by the thousands in jalopies and limousines, taxis and chartered buses. The throng of New Yorkers was swelled by many who came from distant places from Maine to Maryland.

Funeral services will be held in St. Patrick's Roman Catholic Cathedral at 10 a. m. (EST) tomorrow. Francis Cardinal Spellman, one of Ruth's myriad admirers, will preside at the requiem mass.

Mrs. Claire Ruth, the Babe's widow, has asked that the public be admitted to the Gate of Heaven Cemetery, Westchester County, where the body will be placed in a receiving vault. As many of the public as can crowd in will be permitted to enter towering St. Patrick's Cathedral for the funeral services.

It is the way the Babe would have wanted it, Mrs. Ruth said.

The 57 honorary pallbearers, headed by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, include noted athletes and newspaper men who knew Ruth well.

Police, anticipating one of the largest throngs ever gathered at St. Patrick's, arranged a special detail of 300 men.

Ruth's funeral cortege is scheduled to leave the Universal Funeral Chapel at 52d Street and Lexington Avenue and move toward the cathedral at 50th Street and Fifth Avenue at 9:45 a. m. (EST).

Ruth, racked by pain and wasted by cancer, died at the age of 53 Monday night in Memorial Hospital after a long illness.

Yesterday and last night about 50,000 persons passed his bier. It lay in the stadium lobby about 200 feet behind the home plate from which he smashed many of the home runs that won him baseball immortality.

Wellersburg Girls Drop Doubleheader

The Wellersburg girls' softball team dropped a doubleheader at Wellersburg yesterday to Ellerslie by the scores of 8-5 and 7-5.

The losers banged out 17 hits in the opener but couldn't connect with runners on base. Wellersburg also outhit the winners in the second tilt, 7-4, but again couldn't connect when scoring opportunities presented themselves. Louise Murray, the losing hurler, had 12 strikeouts in the two games and allowed only 10 hits but was the victim of faulty fielding and hitting.

Wellersburg will tangle with Barrelville tonight at 6:30 p. m. on the Wellersburg diamond. The scores:

First Game

ELLERSLIE	8	6	7
WELLERSBURG	5	17	5

Albright and See. Murray and Folk.

Second Game

Barney Tosses One-Hitter At Philadelphia

Wild Pitch Wins 1 To 0 Contest

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 18 (AP) — The Brooklyn Dodgers moved to within one game of the league leading Boston Braves tonight as they defeated the Philadelphia Phillies 1-0 with Rex Barney hurling one-hit ball. Robin Roberts wild pitched Marv Rackley home with the game's only run in the first inning.

Ralph Caballero got the only hit off Barney—a single with one out in the fifth inning. The 27-year-old Brooklyn righthander walked three men and fanned five, three in the last inning.

Rackley opened the game with a single. After Jackie Robinson rolled out, Gene Hermanski walked. Trying to catch Rackley napping at second, Roberts threw the ball into centerfield and both men advanced.

Duke Snider fanned but with Pee Wee Reese at bat, the Philadelphia rookie let loose a wild pitch and Rackley scored. Score:

GIANTS DEFEAT BRAVES

NEW YORK, Aug. 18 (AP) — The Giants put together some good pitching and hitting — a rare combination for the New Yorkers these days — to whip the league-leading Boston Braves, 8-2, today.

Sheldon Jones, strong-armed New York righthander, held the Braves to eight hits to rack up his 12th victory against six defeats.

Meanwhile the Giants combed Vern Bickford and Bob Hogue for ten hits, including homers by Sid Gordon and Johnny Mize. Veteran Ernie White finished up in the eighth after the Giants had nicked Hogue for three runs. The giants got another run off White on a sacrifice.

The four-run eighth inning splurge was highlighted by Buddy Kerr's two-run single. Box:

Brooklyn Moves Within One Game Of Loop Leading Braves

SPORTS GRILL

by Pat Robinson

International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—(INS)—Every club in both major leagues probably has a candidate for rookie of the year honors.

But on the basis of performance we think the choice could be narrowed down among three in the National League and two in the American.

In the National we believe the choice lies among Alvin Dark, the Braves' snappy, hard-hitting shortstop; Richie Ashburn, the Phillies' speedy young outfielder; and Marvin Rackley, the brilliant young Dodger outfielder.

In the American, we think the choice lies between two winners of the Purple Heart—Lou Brissie, left-handed pitcher of the Athletics and Gene Bearden, the equally left-handed young star of the Indians.

It may be that some of the others in this year's exceptionally good crop of rookies will go on to surpass those we've named. But on their performance to date these are the lads we must take.

Dark has been a ball of fire for the Braves, fielding well, handling the double play nicely and hitting well over .300. Rackley and Ashburn are both extremely fast and both are natural .300 hitters. Both also are ball hawks.

Both Brissie and Bearden have been winning pitchers for their respective teams, despite the handicap of war wounds and several operations.

We have asked players on various teams about all these players and we got varied answers. Some thought Brissie the better pitcher; others chose Bearden.

Here and there we find veterans who chose different players than those named as better future prospects.

For instance, Bill McKechnie, Cleveland coach, who is a master handler and developer of pitchers, is extremely high on Bob Rush, young Cub pitcher, as a coming star.

Others think Don Mueller, who recently broke in with the Giants, may make us forget some of the others who are better known. The Giants themselves are high on their rookie catcher, Wes Westrum.

The Braves also think highly of two of their rookie pitchers, Vern Bickford and Bob Hogue.

The Reds have three nice newcomers in pitcher Herman Wehmeier, first baseman Ted Kluszewski and shortstop Tom Stallcup, who is rather weak with the willow. Of course, if you want to consider Hank Sauer a rookie he would have to be considered for rookie of the year on his slugging.

The Phils have quite a crop of kids who can't miss—pitchers Robin Roberts and Curt Simmons, infielders Ralph Caballero and Granny Hamner and outfielder John Blatnik.

The Pirates have two hot numbers in pitcher Bob Chesnes and catcher Ed Fitzgerald, and the Cards have infielder Don Lang.

You can go down the list and find at least one classy newcomer on every club, including that 50-year-old rookie, Satch Paige of the Indians.

There have been better rookie crops perhaps, but we've all seen much worse.

Defenses May Be Thrown To Wind In All-Star Tilt

Pro Cards To Meet Strong Opponents

By CHARLES EINSTEIN
INS Sports Writer

CHICAGO, Aug. 18 (INS) — The ancient art of football defense has taken its hat and disappeared, some 48 hours this side of the annual All-Star stampede at Chicago's Soldier Field Friday night.

Parties of the first part in the 15th annual football spectacle are the Chicago Cardinals, champions of the National League and never ones to let defensive tactics, either their opponents' or their own, stand in the way.

Score Point-a-Minute

Parties of the second part are, to be sure, the All-Stars, 70 strong and said to be history's greatest single collection of football talent. In scrimmaging among themselves before 25,000 onlookers at Dyche Stadium in Evanston, Ill., last Saturday the stars managed to end up with a 33-28 score—a point a minute, and indicative that what tackling occurred was mostly of the afterthought brand.

A mild dilemma connected with Friday night's game on the Chicago lake front is that the All-Stars have the best passers and the Cardinals the best receivers. But even a poor receiver can catch a good pass, and a poor passer is often saved by ace receiving, so the air should be filled with footballs while 100,000 roar happily.

Layne of Texas, Chappius of Michigan and Lujack of Notre Dame are among those who'll create the passes for the All-Stars; Mal Kutner and Billy Dewell, the Cardinals' two wonder-type ends, will assist such as Charlie Trippi, Frank Liebel and Babe Dimancheff in snuggling Paul Christman's sometime-weird tosses for the N.F.L. titlists.

Odds Are Even

Even if the wrong team does the pass-catching, the final result should not be noticeably affected, since both clubs are equipped with open-field runners fully capable of running forever at any given point in time or space.

The odds on the game, at this time, are absolutely even. You give 6 to 5 no matter who you like; or, at even money, you give three points.

The National League team had been habitual favorite until the past two years, with the All-Stars winning 16 to 0 in 1946 and 16 to 0 in 1947. This has caused major revisions in pre-game philosophies, and is a standard platitude that, all other things being equal, the All-Stars, as individuals, have more at stake than the professionals.

It should not be surprising then, to see Frank Leahy's collegians go to the post as logical choice to succeed where the National Football League failed, and conquer Jim Conzelman's bizarre but potent Cards.

FORT WAYNE GETS SCARE BEFORE EDGING WESTVACO, 8 TO 5

WICHITA, Kas., Aug. 18 (AP) — The Enid, Okla., Cardinals eliminated the Ipswich, Mass., Legion team from national tournament competition here today, by a 6-3 triumph.

Ipswich furnished a slight scare in the seventh but failed to get in the needed runs.

The Fort Wayne, Ind., Electrics started their title defense in the tourney with a victory over an underrated Maryland champion, Westernport, 8 to 5, in the night opener.

Fort Wayne was on the ropes in the seventh and the Maryland team with luck could have pulled up.

MARINE RESERVES COP SECOND TILT FROM KLINE'S, 6-2

Copping their second straight decision in the best-of-five series for the Junior City Softball League championship, the Marine Reserves downed Kline's Market, 6-2, yesterday at Fort Hill.

Jim Close and Jim Lease paced the Reserves attack with two hits apiece, while Gibson had two hits including a double for the losers.

The Marines won the series opener Monday by an 8-7 score and the third game is scheduled today at Stitcher Field at 6 p. m. The score:

3 Teams Advance In Doubles Play

MANCHESTER-BY-THE-SEA, Mass., Aug. 18 (INS)—Three doubles teams entered the quarter finals today in the 21st Essex County women's tennis tournament.

Play was limited to doubles after an overnight rain washed out the morning singles matches.

First to enter the quarter final brackets were Shirley Fry, Akron, Ohio, and Mrs. Shiela Summers, Johannesburg, South Africa, who defeated Mrs. Dorothy Cheney, Santa Monica, Calif., and Betty Rosenquest, South Orange, N. J., 8-6, 6-1, 8-6.

Mrs. Virginia Kovacs, Oakland, Calif., and Mrs. Marjorie Buck, New York, defeated Mrs. Magda Rurac, Romania, and Dorothy Head, Alameda, Calif., 7-5, 6-0.

Mrs. Barba Madden Lewis, Tulsa, Okla., and Marta Barnett, New York, defeated Mrs. Virginia Johnson, Chestnut Hill, and Mrs. Helen Rihbany, Boston, 6-4, 6-4.

The fourth match between Mrs. Patricia Canning Todd and Doris Hart against Mrs. Louise Snow Isaacs and Mrs. Eleanor Cushingham, was postponed until tomorrow to allow Mrs. Todd more time to recuperate from a slight arm injury.

Potomac Valley Plays Phone Workers Here

Four games are on tap in the County Softball League today.

Potomac Valley's second place Cubs invade Cumberland to play the Phone Workers at Taylor Field, the third place Hyndman Firemen test Bedford Road on the latter's field, Corriganville's at Allegany Grove and Narrows Park Cardinals are hosts to Ellerslie.

Wellersburg is idle and wins by forfeit from the Corner Merchants.

Final Drawings Completed For Frostburg Derby

Final drawings have been made and preparations completed for the Frostburg soap-box derby to be held tonight beginning at 6 p. m. in conjunction with the Mountain District American Legion convention scheduled for Frostburg this weekend, Arthur G. Ramey, director of the event announced last night.

In Class A (boys under 12) drawings are as follows:

Entries 1 and 2—George Beall and William Davis.

Entries 3 and 4—Gerald McKenzie and Arthur Gehauf.

Entries 5 and 6—Paul Doolan and Vic Dormio.

Entries 7 and 8—Roy Niner and Kenneth Jeffries.

Winners of each heat will compete in quarter finals, semi-finals and finals.

Trial heat No. 1—Billy Eichhorn and Leonard Keys.

Trial heat No. 2—Pinky Holmes and James Rooney.

Trial heat No. 4—Crandall Gibbons and Roy Lewis.

In the quarter finals the winners of trial heats 1 and 2 will compete; the winners of 3 and 4 will meet and Bobby McKenzie and John Bowser will meet in another quarter-final race. Richard Hawkins and Gerald Jackson will race in the final quarter-final match. Semi-final and finals will then be run off with the winners of Class A and Class B racing to see who is the champion of the convention.

Prizes of $110 in cash will be distributed among the winners, Ramey said.

Chairman of arrangements is Harold Blocker; Ramey is director; Judges are James Kenny, Westernport, Sam Graham, Cumberland, and William H. Lemmert, Frostburg; Finish clerk is Robert W. Jones; Starter — Frank Bowers; Starting clerk — Fred Rowe and assistants Olin Spiker and Harold Blocker.

Ramey said that all contestants are requested to report to Fred Rowe promptly at 5:30 p. m. at West College Avenue and Chestnut street to be ready for the derby which will get under way at 6 p. m.

Babe Ruth Receives Posthumous Award

NEW YORK, Aug. 18. (INS)—The U. S. Polo Association awarded its first annual "Tommy Hitchcock Jr. Memorial Award" posthumously today to the late George Herman (Babe) Ruth.

Robert Strawbridge, chairman of the association, explained that Ruth had been selected as recipient several weeks ago and was to have been present to receive the trophy. Ford Frick, president of the National League, accepted on behalf of the Ruth family. The award will be presented annually to that person who best typifies the ideals of fair play and sportsmanship in American athletics.

Aristocrats Cinch Second; Stoop's Win

The Aristocrats cinched second place in the Frostburg City Softball League yesterday by edging Peck's 4-1 in nine innings at Community Ball Park. The last place Moose dropped a 6-5 decision to Stoop's in the other tilt at State Teachers' field.

All of the Aristocrats runs were the result of homeruns with Carter hitting for the circuit in the fifth to knot the count 1-1 and Waites clouting his four-bagger in the bottom of the ninth with two mates aboard for the winning blow. C. Taylor hurled four-hit ball for the winners.

In the other tilt a five-run rally in the sixth inning gave Stoop's the edge on the Moose in a ding-dong battle The losers got away to a 4-1 lead with four runs in the third. The scores:

Colts Cut Squad; Release Six Rookies

SUN VALLEY, Idaho, Aug. 18 (AP)—Coach Cecil Isbell cut six rookie candidates from his Baltimore Colt squad today.

Released by the All-America Conference team were Rex Olson, Brigham Young, quarterback; ends Carl Schiller from Western Michigan and Henry Olshanski from Wisconsin; Fred Chaffin, Southwest Missouri halfback; Ray Bostrom, North Dakota tackle, and Elmer Jackson, Arkansas guard.

Only Jackson said he had any immediate further football plans. He said he would report to Jersey City in the American Association.

Robinson, Gavilan Signed For Bout By Mike Jacobs

War Between Fight Promoters Continues

By MURRAY ROSE

NEW YORK, Aug. 18 (AP) — The battle lines were drawn today for the first big showdown between New York's warring boxing promoters.

Mike Jacobs' well-established 20th Century Sporting Club today completed the arrangements for the second half of its fistic double-header by signing welterweight champion Ray Robinson to meet Kid Gavilan, the Cuban clouter, in a non-title ten rounder.

Now the 20th and its newcomer rival, the Tournament of Champions, were all set to go all out for Gus Fan's buck with shows one day apart, Sept. 21 and 22.

Two Fight Cards

Here's the way the twin bills compare:

Sept. 21—Tournament of Champions at Roosevelt Stadium, Jersey Ciyt, N. J.:

Heavyweight Jersey Joe Walcott, Camden, N. J., vs. Gus Lesnevich, Cliffside Park, N. J., 15 rounds.

Sept. 22—20th Century Sporting Club at Yankee Stadium, New York:

Lightweight champion Ike Williams, Trenton, N. J., vs. Jess Flores, Stockton, Calif., title bout, 15 rounds.

Robinson vs. Gavilan, non-title, 10 rounds.

The Tournament of Champions is charging from $5 to $40 for reserved seats. The show will not be televized but will be broadcast.

Jacobs' outfit will announce its prices later. The 20th will air its show and probably will televize it although no decision has been reached regarding video yet.

The 20th thus has a 2-1 edge in champions with Williams and Robinson as against Zale.

Both of the 20th's fights shape up as corkers, bringing together four of the finest battlers among the middle divisions.

Jacobs Has Edge

Zale and Cerdan are virtually certain to put up a whale of a fight with an early knockout likely but the Walcott-Lesnevich tussle could either be a sleep-producer or a sizzler depending on the veterans' attitude.

The 20th has two other edges over the T. of C. First it has the most favorable location and secondly it has gone into hock far less than the T. of C.

The T. of C. has guaranteed its four star performers a total of $270,000. The 20th probably didn't have to guarantee more than $25,000 apiece to Williams and Robinson. Flores and Gavilan undoubtedly agreed to minor percentages.

Rain on the 21st could pit the two against each other on the 22nd, thus bringing the rivalry to an out-and-out cut-throat battle.

Grid Associations Schedule Meeting

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Aug. 18 (AP)—Representatives of the West Virginia, North Carolina and Virginia state high school athletic associations will discuss 1948 high school football rules at a meeting here next Wednesday.

West Virginia schools use the National Federation of State High School Athletic Associations rules, while the North Carolina and Virginia schools follow the collegiate code.

H. V. Porter, executive secretary of the national federation and secretary of its football rules committee, will lead discussions of the scholastic code which is official for high schools in 31 states.

The conference here will be sponsored by the federation.

Hockey All-Star Game Set Nov. 3

MONTREAL, Aug. 18—(INS)—The National Hockey League announced today that its second annual all-star game will be played at Chicago Stadium the evening of Nov. 3.

The game—proceeds from which are directed toward a players' pension fund—involves the Toronto Maple Leafs, 1947-48 Stanley Cup champions, and members from the first and second all-star teams selected by league coaches.

Kretz Seeks Fourth Motorcycle Title

LANGHORNE, Pa., Aug. 18 (AP)—Eddie Kretz, only man ever to win the 100-mile national motorcycle title three times, leads the California contingent in the renewal of the championship race at Langhorne Speedway, Sept. 5.

Kretz, victor in 1937, 38 and 40, has his guns trained on wresting the title from the eastern and midwestern riders including Ed Guill, Danville, Va., last year's winner, and Johnny Spiegelhoff, 1946 champion from Milwaukee, Wis.

Salem Manager Will Resign After Season

SALEM, Ore., Aug. 18. (AP)—Jack Wilson, manager of Salem's Western International League baseball team, said today he would resign at the end of the season.

Wilson said he would enter business here. It will end 18 years in baseball for the former American League pitcher, who has been manager here for two years.

Athletics Drop To Third Place As Bosox Win

Mackmen Defeated By 10 To 2 Score

BOSTON, Aug. 18 (AP)—Boston's Red Sox climbed over Philadelphia into second place today with a 17 hit attack and a 10-2 decision over the Athletics, who dropped into third place in the everchanging American League pennant fight.

A paid crowd of 24,178 yelped in glee as the Sox battered the offerings of three Philadelphia pitchers. Ted Williams and Birdie Tebbette paced the cannonading with three hits each.

Eddie Joost, shortstop of the amazing A's, was forced to leave the game in the third inning when he aggravated his injured right hand in swinging at a third strike.

Joost, who jammed his hand while sliding into third base at St. Louis Aug. 8, was sent to Philadelphia for X-rays and treatment by the club physician.

Hank Majeski moved over to short and Don White was inserted at third base.

A walk to Joost, Barney McCosky's single and a fly out gave the A's a run in the first and they were held scoreless by the Sox until the eighth when they tallied their only other run off veteran Boston pitcher Denny Galehouse, who won his sixth victory.

The Sox went ahead in their side of the first with a pair of runs—the second made possible by the hustle of Williams—and added three more in the third, four in the fifth, and their last in the eighth. Score:

Lacy's, Astor Cab Win City Contests

Lacy's Delicatets climbed into a tie for second place two games behind the league-leading Amvets in the City Softball League yesterday by defeating Astor Restaurant 11-7 at Taylor Field.

In the only other game reported Astor Cab downed Ballard's 8 to 3 at East Side as Billy Underdonk racked up his 21st pitching triumph of the season.

Hardy, Decker and Giles each had two hits for Lacy's while Penner and Hardy banged out homers in the 11-hit assault. Cramblitt collected three bingles for the losers.

Baker had three hits including a double for Astor Cab and Humbertson hit a circuit blow while Winebrenner had two of the losers' four bingles.

The Amvet-Reed's Electricians and Joe's Crusaders-North End games scheduled yesterday were unreported. The scores:

Thousands Pay Homage At Bier Of Homerun King

Funeral Services Set For 10 A. M.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18—(AP)—An elderly white-haired man lifted up his grandson to look into a casket in Yankee Stadium today.

"Take a good look, sonny," he said. "You'll never see another man like him."

The bier was Babe Ruth's. The old man and the little boy were two of thousands of persons, many of whom journeyed hundreds of miles to pay homage to the king of baseball. They looked on his face for the last time at the rate of 100 a minute.

They came by the thousands in jalopies and limousines, taxis and chartered buses. The throng of New Yorkers was swelled by many who came from distant places from Maine to Maryland.

Funeral services will be held in St. Patrick's Roman Catholic Cathedral at 10 a. m. (EST) tomorrow. Francis Cardinal Spellman, one of Ruth's myriad admirers, will preside at the requiem mass.

Mrs. Claire Ruth, the Babe's widow, has asked that the public be admitted to the Gate of Heaven Cemetery, Westchester County, where the body will be placed in a receiving vault. As many of the public as can crowd in will be permitted to enter towering St. Patrick's Cathedral for the funeral services.

It is the way the Babe would have wanted it, Mrs. Ruth said.

The 57 honorary pallbearers, headed by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, include noted athletes and newspaper men who knew Ruth well.

Police, anticipating one of the largest throngs ever gathered at St. Patrick's, arranged a special detail of 300 men.

Ruth's funeral cortege is scheduled to leave the Universal Funeral Chapel at 52d Street and Lexington Avenue and move toward the cathedral at 50th Street and Fifth Avenue at 9:45 a. m. (EST).

Ruth, racked by pain and wasted by cancer, died at the age of 53 Monday night in Memorial Hospital after a long illness.

Yesterday and last night about 50,000 persons passed his bier. It lay in the stadium lobby about 200 feet behind the home plate from which he smashed many of the home runs that won him baseball immortality.

Wellersburg Girls Drop Doubleheader

The Wellersburg girls' softball team dropped a doubleheader at Wellersburg yesterday to Ellerslie by the scores of 8-5 and 7-5.

The losers banged out 17 hits in the opener but couldn't connect with runners on base. Wellersburg also outhit the winners in the second tilt, 7-4, but again couldn't connect when scoring opportunities presented themselves. Louise Murray, the losing hurler, had 12 strikeouts in the two games and allowed only 10 hits but was the victim of faulty fielding and hitting.

Wellersburg will tangle with Barrelville tonight at 6:30 p. m. on the Wellersburg diamond. The scores:

ELLERSLIE	8	7
WELLERSBURG	5	6

Albright and See. Murray and Folk.

Second Game

Barney Tosses One-Hitter At Philadelphia

Wild Pitch Wins 1 To 0 Contest

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 18 (AP) — The Brooklyn Dodgers moved to within one game of the league leading Boston Braves tonight as they defeated the Philadelphia Phillies 1-0 with Rex Barney hurling one-hit ball. Robin Roberts wild pitched Marv Rackley home with the game's only run in the first inning.

Ralph Caballero got the only hit off Barney—a single with one out in the fifth inning. The 27-year-old Brooklyn righthander walked three men and fanned five, three in the last inning.

Rackley opened the game with a single. After Jackie Robinson rolled out, Gene Hermanski walked. Trying to catch Rackley napping at second, Roberts threw the ball into centerfield and both men advanced.

Duke Snider fanned but with Pee Wee Reese at bat, the Philadelphia rookie let loose a wild pitch and Rackley scored. Score:

GIANTS DEFEAT BRAVES

NEW YORK, Aug. 18 (AP) — The Giants put together some good pitching and hitting — a rare combination for the New Yorkers these days — to whip the league-leading Boston Braves, 8-2, today.

Sheldon Jones, strong-armed New York righthander, held the Braves to eight hits to rack up his 12th victory against six defeats.

Meanwhile the Giants combed Vern Bickford and Bob Hogue for ten hits, including homers by Sid Gordon and Johnny Mize. Veteran Ernie White finished up in the eighth after the Giants had nicked Hogue for three runs. The giants got another run off White on a sacrifice.

The four-run eighth inning splurge was highlighted by Buddy Kerr's two-run single. Box:

KEEPING UP WITH

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 18.—(INS)—Darryl Zanuck is on a vacation—my eye! He's been on that telephone to the 20th Century-Fox studio from Rome every two minutes.

Babe Ruth

Now it's Tyrone Power he's putting in the first Nunnally Johnson picture. It is—"Battle Royal," a romantic comedy about a refugee king who comes to America and goes into the wrestling game. He wears his crown, jewels and robes into the ring. Sounds orfully, orfully like Gorgeous George.

Darryl has decided that Ty ought to make a comedy because he's been in so many costume dramas lately.

Nunnally Johnson's contract, also settled over the phone from Rome, calls for two pictures and an option on another.

The true story of Major Vincent Evans will interest all Ex-soldiers. The major was flying in the famous Memphis Belle when the first bomb was dropped over Germany. He was also a bombardier in Dauntless Dottie when Tokyo received its first evidence that Uncle Sam wasn't fooling.

With all this war record, the major still was jobless. Then he wrote a story of his experiences called "Dearest Kay." Jack Warner bought Major Evans' story, engaged him as a writer and technical advisor, and here's the happy sequel. Under the title of "These Many Years," "Dearest Kay" is ready to go, with Eleanor Barker as the star.

Last time I saw Frances and Edgar Bergen was in Paris and now they are back with stories of their visits to Berlin, Frankfurt and Heidelburg, so that Charlie McCarthy could entertain the boys.

Frances said they flew over the corridor in Germany and saw "operation vittles." Charlie McCarthy was photographed with one of the planes carrying flour to the boys. She said their plane had to wait for 12 planes to pass by and she felt they saw history being made.

Chit-Chat: John Fontaine, the young actor under contract to Selznick, blames the crack-up of his marriage to Barbara Lawrence on attempting to push his career too fast to keep up with her success.

Johnny says, "striving to keep apace of Barbara, I was pressing too hard and trying to step into roles I was not yet prepared to do."

Well, the young man is honest, at least, and now he is practically starting all over. He has enrolled in Ben Bard's dramatic school and will study right with the beginners.

Babe Ruth, who was always a terrific spender and never one to save his pennies, was happy before he died in the thought that he left his wife what amounts to an annuity in the movie he made, "The Babe Ruth Story." Babe already received $100,000 and Mrs. Ruth will get at least $300,000 more.

Sick as the Bambino was when he was in Hollywood, he did a show with me, the only one he did here. I also went with him and Mrs. Ruth to 20th Century-Fox, where Betty Grable and Dan Dailey and Mrs. Darryl Zanuck, all asked for his autograph. I prize a large autographed picture, his favorite, and his book which he sent me—also his letter of thanks for the Sunday pictorial I wrote about him.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Reginald Denny's daughter, Barbara, is a polio victim and is in an iron lung at General Hospital. Her condition last night showed a slight improvement. She and Jim Simmons, the press agent, recently separated.

Bob Walker, who left for Ogden Utah, following the split with Barbara Ford, is remaining until his father is better. The elder Walker had a recurrence of a respiratory ailment.

Charles Laughton will visit his native England for the first time in ten years. He goes to Paris first, of course, to make "The Man In The Eifel Tower."

Dick Haymes has gifted the Bill Burtons with tickets for a trip around the world. That's because Burton did such a swell job with Dick's current personal appearance tour.

Gene Tierney is spending the time until her baby is born on a farm in Pennsylvania.

Marie McDonald telephones that Friday, the 13th, was her lucky day. She and her husband, Harry Karl, finally were able to buy the Bill Bendix place in Encino, after waiting for ten months for a home.

That's all today.

The higher reaches of the Bitterroot mountain range in Idaho are a maze of dazzling and barren white granite.

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 18.—(INS)—Darryl Zanuck is on a vacation—my eye! He's been on that telephone to the 20th Century-Fox studio from Rome every two minutes.

Babe Ruth

Now it's Tyrone Power he's putting in the first Nunnally Johnson picture. It is—"Battle Royal," a romantic comedy about a refugee king who comes to America and goes into the wrestling game. He wears his crown, jewels and robes into the ring. Sounds orfully, orfully like Gorgeous George.

Darryl has decided that Ty ought to make a comedy because he's been in so many costume dramas lately.

Nunnally Johnson's contract, also settled over the phone from Rome, calls for two pictures and an option on another.

The true story of Major Vincent Evans will interest all Ex-soldiers. The major was flying in the famous Memphis Belle when the first bomb was dropped over Germany. He was also a bombardier in Dauntless Dottie when Tokyo received its first evidence that Uncle Sam wasn't fooling.

With all this war record, the major still was jobless. Then he wrote a story of his experiences called "Dearest Kay." Jack Warner bought Major Evans' story, engaged him as a writer and technical advisor, and here's the happy sequel. Under the title of "These Many Years," "Dearest Kay" is ready to go, with Eleanor Barker as the star.

Last time I saw Frances and Edgar Bergen was in Paris and now they are back with stories of their visits to Berlin, Frankfurt and Heidelburg, so that Charlie McCarthy could entertain the boys.

Frances said they flew over the corridor in Germany and saw "operation vittles." Charlie McCarthy was photographed with one of the planes carrying flour to the boys. She said their plane had to wait for 12 planes to pass by and she felt they saw history being made.

Chit-Chat: John Fontaine, the young actor under contract to Selznick, blames the crack-up of his marriage to Barbara Lawrence on attempting to push his career too fast to keep up with her success.

Johnny says, "striving to keep apace of Barbara, I was pressing too hard and trying to step into roles I was not yet prepared to do."

Well, the young man is honest, at least, and now he is practically starting all over. He has enrolled in Ben Bard's dramatic school and will study right with the beginners.

Babe Ruth, who was always a terrific spender and never one to save his pennies, was happy before he died in the thought that he left his wife what amounts to an annuity in the movie he made, "The Babe Ruth Story." Babe already received $100,000 and Mrs. Ruth will get at least $300,000 more.

Sick as the Bambino was when he was in Hollywood, he did a show with me, the only one he did here. I also went with him and Mrs. Ruth to 20th Century-Fox, where Betty Grable and Dan Dailey and Mrs. Darryl Zanuck, all asked for his autograph. I prize a large autographed picture, his favorite, and his book which he sent me—also his letter of thanks for the Sunday pictorial I wrote about him.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Reginald Denny's daughter, Barbara, is a polio victim and is in an iron lung at General Hospital. Her condition last night showed a slight improvement. She and Jim Simmons, the press agent, recently separated.

Bob Walker, who left for Ogden Utah, following the split with Barbara Ford, is remaining until his father is better. The elder Walker had a recurrence of a respiratory ailment.

Charles Laughton will visit his native England for the first time in ten years. He goes to Paris first, of course, to make "The Man In The Eifel Tower."

Dick Haymes has gifted the Bill Burtons with tickets for a trip around the world. That's because Burton did such a swell job with Dick's current personal appearance tour.

Gene Tierney is spending the time until her baby is born on a farm in Pennsylvania.

Marie McDonald telephones that Friday, the 13th, was her lucky day. She and her husband, Harry Karl, finally were able to buy the Bill Bendix place in Encino, after waiting for ten months for a home.

That's all today.

Mountain District Legion Meeting To Open Today

Soap Box Derby Is Scheduled Tonight

FROSTBURG.—The first annual convention of the Mountain District, American Legion and American Legion Auxiliary, will open here today and continue through August 22. Registration of early arrivals will be held at the Legion Home, East Main Street, at 3 p. m.

The Soap Box Derby, sponsored by the Green Chevrolet Company as a feature of the convention, will be staged at 6 p. m. on West College Avenue, with Arthur G. Ramey in charge. Prizes will be awarded to the winners at the Legion Home.

The entries so far received include two residents of Cumberland, Bobby McKenzie, 13, and Arthur Gehauf, 11; one from Lonaconing, Paul Doolin, 11, and 13 boys from Frostburg, Gerald McKenzie, William Davis, Nicholas Dormio and Roy Niner, II year olds; Billy Eichhorn, Crandall Givens, Pinkney Holmes and Richard Hawkins, 12 year olds; Leonard Keyes, 13, and Roy Lewis, John Bowser, Charles J. Hout and Gerald Lee Jackson, all 14 years old.

No parking will be permitted on the avenue from 4 p. m. until the conclusion of the races. In case of rain the derby will be held Saturday at 6 p. m.

Substituting for Mayor Marshall C. Skidmore, who is away on vacation, City Commissioner Jesse Jacobs will deliver the address of welcome at the opening Legion meeting scheduled for 8 p. m. today in St. Michael's Hall.

The speakers will include Harry S. Allen, Baltimore, department commander; J. Nelson Tribby, department adjutant and Mrs. T. Frank Lynch, president of the Legion Auxiliary of Maryland.

A concert by the Arion Band will follow on the church grounds.

Beginning at 5:30 p. m. Friday, meetings will be held at the Post Home and reports will be given by the various committees, followed by the grand parade which will form at 7:30 at West Main and High Streets.

Dancing and entertainment will be held Friday and Saturday at the Post Home, and Thursday at St. Michael's Hall.

The final meetings will begin at 2 p. m. Sunday when a Mountain District vice commander and executive chairman will be elected.

Legion auxiliary members will follow the same program as the Legionnaires.

The bicycle parade, scheduled for Saturday at 7 p. m. as a street feature of the convention, is attracting the interest of many young people of the community.

There will be 10 prizes for this event. The first award will be a bicycle to the girl or boy who has the best decorated bicycle; second prize will be a tire and tube, donated by the Frostburg Auto Company, and the third prize will be a headlight, donated by the Lemmert Hardware Company.

Other prizes will be as follows: most "old fashioned" bike, a horn, donated by the Prichard Company; oldest person riding bicycle in parade, a horn, donated by Lyle's Auto Store; youngest person in line, fender flap from Lou's Auto store; smallest bicycle, a pen knife from Layman's Hardware Store; most comical rider, dollar's worth of merchandise from Murphy's; second most comical, $1, from Citizen's Garage, and oldest bicycle, $1, from St. Cloud Motor Company.

Judges will be John Goldsworthy, Allegany County's champion bicycle rider; Woodrow Layman, Rudolph Nickel, Thomas Elias and Frederick Morton.

The executive committee of Farrady Post No. 24, American Legion, in charge of all phases of the convention is as follows:

Arthur Norris, general chairman; Helen Blocher, Auxiliary general chairman; Alfred Drew, treasurer; Frank Powers, assistant treasurer; Thomas Winters, secretary; Fred Rowe and Helen Blocher, reception and registration; Thomas Winters and William Harden, program.

Clothing Is Sought For Needy Children

FROSTBURG—Mrs. J. C. Cobey, chairman of the Frostburg branch of the Red Cross, reports that there is need for clothing for children of indigent families who will enter school in September. She reports that requests have been coming in from all sections of this area.

Mrs. Cobey stated that large families whose income is barely enough to provide food and housing, will have difficulty in providing their children with clothing unless help from other sources is received.

The chairman, who is being assisted in the drive by Mrs. Kathleen Todd, announced that all types of wearing apparel are needed for children from 6 to 14 years of age.

Contributions may be left either at the City Health Center, City Hall, or at the home of Mrs. Cobey, West Main Street. The request is made for good used clothing as there is no agency functioning to do reconditioning before distribution.

Legion Steward Posts $500 Bond

KEYSER, W. Va. — William Frantz, steward of Knobley Mountain Post, American Legion, Ridgeley, posted $500 bond for his appearance before the October Grand Jury after waiving a preliminary hearing before Justice of the Peace Madalyn Bazzle yesterday afternoon on a charge of maintaining four slot machines at the Legion home.

Frantz was arrested by Mineral County Sheriff James A. Dixon and State Trooper W. F. Bowley Monday night when the slot machines were confiscated in a raid on the Legion home.

Miss Toni Dayton, Westernport, who is registering the entrants, is anxious for more persons to enter. Entrants must be 16 years of age or older. They should contact Miss Dayton.

A Junior Queen and King will be selected from the girls and boys attending the swimming classes conducted by Miss Dayton and Tracy Riggins, which were concluded this morning.

The prize for the Senior Queen will be given by The Style Shop of Piedmont, to the Junior Queen by The Tri-Towns Dress Shop, Westernport, and to the King by Joe's Men and Boys Store of Westernport. The judges will be Browne Kooken, Rodney Baker and Mrs. Helene Poland.

Anna Marie Small, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Small, Westernport, and Ralph Wayne Salesky, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Salesky, were selected at the baby show conducted last Friday by the Tri-Towns Recreational Association to act as princess and prince at the water carnival tomorrow night.

A presentation of the various styles of swimming will be given. Racing and diving contests will be held for the senior age group (16 years and over) and the junior age group (under 16).

In the junior group the events will include 80 yard relay race for teams of two swimmers each; under water swimming for distance and 40 yards and free style race.

Contests in the senior races will be underwater swimming for distance, 40 yard free style and 120 yard relay for teams of three swimmers each.

In the junior division, the events will be an 80 yard relay race for teams of two swimmers each; underwater swimming for distance and 40 yard free style.

The diving competition for both the senior and junior divisions will include the jackknife, swan, half-twist, back dive and an optional dive. If enough girls are interested, separate contests will be arranged for them. Anyone desiring to do so may enter the comic dive competition. Entrants for the swimming and diving events will register at the pool.

The final presentation will be the water ballet given by Nelle McCoy, Jane Kelly, Dorothy Jean Grove, Dorothy Lee Umstot, Leona Flick, Susie Ours, Joan Lambert, Joyce Nelson, Jennie Serpone and Lila Lee McDonald. Any girl desiring a try out for the water ballet should contact Miss Dayton.

Medals will be given for first place in aquatic contests and ribbons for second and third places.

Miss Dayton and Riggins will be the judges in the water contests.

W. Va. Firemen's Convention Will Start Thursday

31 Companies To Send Delegates

KEYSER, W. Va.—Plans for the 20th annual West Virginia State Firemen's Convention to be held here August 26-28 are nearing completion, according to William Miller, general chairman of the committee on arrangements. The announcement was made following a recent special meeting of the committee heads.

Thirty-one fire companies have signified that their delegates will be on hand to register when the convention gets under way next Thursday morning at 9 o'clock at convention headquarters in the building formerly occupied by Snider Brothers, North Mineral Street.

A meeting of all delegates will follow, with a banquet scheduled for 6 p. m. the same day at the Odd Fellows Hall. Many more fire companies are expected to send delegates, Miller said, as more than 200 invitations were issued to West Virginia fire companies and nearby out-of-state companies.

Following the banquet boxing bouts will be staged at Keyser High School gymnasium. A baseball game between the Keyser Athletic Club and out-of-town team will feature the entertainment Thursday afternoon. Street dances will be held at two different locations Friday night, chairman Miller said.

Climaxing the activities will be a mammoth parade Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, when prizes amounting to $1,650 will be awarded. Bands that have indicated they will participate in the parade are the 51st Army Band, Fort Meade, Md.; Central City Band, Central City, Pa.; Martinsburg Junior High School Band of 64 pieces, and Martinsburg High School Band; Oakland Fire Company Band, Grantsville City Band, Wardensville High School Band, Lonaconing City Band, and Mt. Savage Junior Order Band. Many other bands are expected to participate.

The parade route, announced by Chairman Miller, follows: South Keyser on Main to Armstrong Street, to Mineral, to Piedmont, to Gilmore, to St. Cloud and down St. Cloud to Davis Street, where the parade will disband. The drill contest will be held following the parade in front of the Honor Roll on Piedmont Street.

The firemen's convention is being held in connection with the annual V-J Day celebration which will open Monday night with a water fight at 6 o'clock at the Baltimore and Ohio ball field, to be followed by an amateur contest on Davis Street. Talented persons of all ages are invited to enter the contest, chairman Miller said.

A beauty pageant to name "Miss Keyser of 1948" will be held at Keyser High School auditorium Tuesday night at 8 o'clock. This event is being sponsored by the Keyser Junior Chamber of Commerce. The winner will reign over the festivities for the rest of the week.

The hook-up contest which had been scheduled for Tuesday night will be held Wednesday night on Armstrong Street. The contest will be staged by members of Mineral County and Allegany County, Maryland, fire companies. Prizes will be offered the winning team. An auction sale of the contents of a lady's purse will also be held Wednesday night.

A prize will be awarded to the best decorated home in Keyser, Miller said, adding that the judging of the homes will take place Friday at 6 p. m.

Members of the Vigilant Reel and Hose Company will hang the recently-purchased store front decorations on local stores and business houses in preparation for the convention, it was announced by Edgell L. Grayson, president of the Keyser Business and Professional Association.

Merchants who have called for their decorations at the Keyser Sporting Goods and Camera Shop are requested by Grayson to return them to the Shop so that they will be available for the Firemen to pick up. The decorations will be put up some time during the weekend, he said.

Dr. E. E. Church, president of Potomac State School, has promised firemen the use of 125 beds in the campus dormitories for visiting delegates. However, Miller said, more rooms are needed. Residents having spare rooms are requested to get in touch with Chairman Miller or any member of the Vigilant Reel and Hose Company.

An air show, sponsored by Ludwick's Airport, Keyser, will be staged Saturday morning at 11 o'clock.

Fire companies that have indicated they will be on hand for the celebration include Wiley Ford, Terra Alta, Parsons, Thomas, White Sulphur Springs, Tunnelton, Rynea, and Westfall Hose Companies, both of Martinsburg; Ridgeley, Romney, Benwood, Elkins, Citizens Fire Company, Charles Town; Capon Valley, Wardensville; Vienna, Rowlesburg, Moorefield, Montgomery, Grafton, Mt. Savage, Corriganville, Potomac Fire Company, Westernport; Cresaptown, Shaft, Barton, Cumberland Hose Company No. 1, Cumberland; Grantsville, Oakland, Bowman's Addition, Cumberland; McCoole, and Friendship Fire Company, Harpers Ferry. The Ladies Auxiliary to the Barton Fire Company has also indicated it will attend.

Mountain District Legion Meeting To Open Today

Soap Box Derby Is Scheduled Tonight

FROSTBURG.—The first annual convention of the Mountain District, American Legion and American Legion Auxiliary, will open here today and continue through August 22. Registration of early arrivals will be held at the Legion Home, East Main Street, at 3 p. m.

The Soap Box Derby, sponsored by the Green Chevrolet Company as a feature of the convention, will be staged at 6 p. m. on West College Avenue, with Arthur G. Ramey in charge. Prizes will be awarded to the winners at the Legion Home.

The entries so far received include two residents of Cumberland, Bobby McKenzie, 13, and Arthur Gehauf, 11; one from Lonaconing, Paul Doolin, 11, and 13 boys from Frostburg, Gerald McKenzie, William Davis, Nicholas Dormio and Roy Niner, 11 year olds; Billy Eichhorn, Crandall Givens, Pinkney Holmes and Richard Hawkins, 12 year olds; Leonard Keyes, 13, and Roy Lewis, John Bowser, Charles J. Hout and Gerald Lee Jackson, all 14 years old.

No parking will be permitted on the avenue from 4 p. m. until the conclusion of the races. In case of rain the derby will be held Saturday at 6 p. m.

Substituting for Mayor Marshall C. Skidmore, who is away on vacation, City Commissioner Jesse Jacobs will deliver the address of welcome at the opening Legion meeting scheduled for 8 p. m. today in St. Michael's Hall.

The speakers will include Harry S. Allen, Baltimore, department commander; J. Nelson Tribby, department adjutant and Mrs. T. Frank Lynch, president of the Legion Auxiliary of Maryland.

A concert by the Arion Band will follow on the church grounds.

Beginning at 5:30 p. m. Friday, meetings will be held at the Post Home and reports will be given by the various committees, followed by the grand parade which will form at 7:30 at West Main and High Streets.

Dancing and entertainment will be held Friday and Saturday at the Post Home, and Thursday at St. Michael's Hall.

The final meetings will begin at 2 p. m. Sunday when a Mountain District vice commander and executive chairman will be elected.

Legion auxiliary members will follow the same program as the Legionnaires.

The bicycle parade, scheduled for Saturday at 7 p. m. as a street feature of the convention, is attracting the interest of many young people of the community.

There will be 10 prizes for this event. The first award will be a bicycle to the girl or boy who has the best decorated bicycle; second prize will be a tire and tube, donated by the Frostburg Auto Company, and the third prize will be a headlight, donated by the Lemmert Hardware Company.

Other prizes will be as follows: most "old fashioned" bike, a horn, donated by the Prichard Company; oldest person riding bicycle in parade, a horn, donated by Lyle's Auto Store; youngest person in line, fender flap from Lou's Auto store; smallest bicycle, a pen knife from Layman's Hardware Store; most comical rider, dollar's worth of merchandise from Murphy's; second most comical, $1, from Citizen's Garage, and oldest bicycle, $1, from St. Cloud Motor Company.

Judges will be John Goldsworthy, Allegany County's champion bicycle rider; Woodrow Layman, Rudolph Nickel, Thomas Elias and Frederick Morton.

The executive committee of Farrady Post No. 24, American Legion, in charge of all phases of the convention is as follows:

Arthur Norris, general chairman; Helen Blocher, Auxiliary general chairman; Alfred Drew, treasurer; Frank Powers, assistant treasurer; Thomas Winters, secretary; Fred Rowe and Helen Blocher, reception and registration; Thomas Winters and William Harden, program.

Clothing Is Sought For Needy Children

FROSTBURG—Mrs. J. C. Cobey, chairman of the Frostburg branch of the Red Cross, reports that there is need for clothing for children of indigent families who will enter school in September. She reports that requests have been coming in from all sections of this area.

Mrs. Cobey stated that large families whose income is barely enough to provide food and housing, will have difficulty in providing their children with clothing unless help from other sources is received.

The chairman, who is being assisted in the drive by Mrs. Kathleen Todd, announced that all types of wearing apparel are needed for children from 6 to 14 years of age.

Contributions may be left either at the City Health Center, City Hall, or at the home of Mrs. Cobey, West Main Street. The request is made for good used clothing as there is no agency functioning to do reconditioning before distribution.

Legion Steward Posts $500 Bond

KEYSER, W. Va. — William Frantz, steward of Knobley Mountain Post, American Legion, Ridgeley, posted $500 bond for his appearance before the October Grand Jury after waiving a preliminary hearing before Justice of the Peace Madalyn Bazzle yesterday afternoon on a charge of maintaining four slot machines at the Legion home.

Frantz was arrested by Mineral County Sheriff James A. Dixon and State Trooper W. F. Bowley Monday night when the slot machines were confiscated in a raid on the Legion home.

W. Va. Firemen's Convention Will Start Thursday

31 Companies To Send Delegates

KEYSER, W. Va.—Plans for the 20th annual West Virginia State Firemen's Convention to be held here August 26-28 are nearing completion, according to William Miller, general chairman of the committee on arrangements. The announcement was made following a recent special meeting of the committee heads.

Thirty-one fire companies have signified that their delegates will be on hand to register when the convention gets under way next Thursday morning at 9 o'clock at convention headquarters in the building formerly occupied by Snider Brothers, North Mineral Street.

A meeting of all delegates will follow, with a banquet scheduled for 6 p. m. the same day at the Odd Fellows Hall. Many more fire companies are expected to send delegates, Miller said, as more than 200 invitations were issued to West Virginia fire companies and nearby out-of-state companies.

Following the banquet boxing bouts will be staged at Keyser High School gymnasium. A baseball game between the Keyser Athletic Club and out-of-town team will feature the entertainment Thursday afternoon. Street dances will be held at two different locations Friday night, chairman Miller said.

Climaxing the activities will be a mammoth parade Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, when prizes amounting to $1,650 will be awarded. Bands that have indicated they will participate in the parade are the 51st Army Band, Fort Meade, Md.; Central City Band, Central City, Pa.; Martinsburg Junior High School Band of 64 pieces, and Martinsburg High School Band; Oakland Fire Company Band, Grantsville City Band, Wardensville High School Band, Lonaconing City Band, and Mt. Savage Junior Order Band. Many other bands are expected to participate.

The parade route, announced by Chairman Miller, follows: South Keyser on Main to Armstrong Street, to Mineral, to Piedmont, to Gilmore, to St. Cloud and down St. Cloud to Davis Street, where the parade will disband. The drill contest will be held following the parade in front of the Honor Roll on Piedmont Street.

The firemen's convention is being held in connection with the annual V-J Day celebration which will open Monday night with a water fight at 6 o'clock at the Baltimore and Ohio ball field, to be followed by an amateur contest on Davis Street. Talented persons of all ages are invited to enter the contest, chairman Miller said.

A beauty pageant to name "Miss Keyser of 1948" will be held at Keyser High School auditorium Tuesday night at 8 o'clock. This event is being sponsored by the Keyser Junior Chamber of Commerce. The winner will reign over the festivities for the rest of the week.

The hook-up contest which had been scheduled for Tuesday night will be held Wednesday night on Armstrong Street. The contest will be staged by members of Mineral County and Allegany County, Maryland, fire companies. Prizes will be offered the winning team. An auction sale of the contents of a lady's purse will also be held Wednesday night.

A prize will be awarded to the best decorated home in Keyser, Miller said, adding that the judging of the homes will take place Friday at 6 p. m.

Members of the Vigilant Reel and Hose Company will hang the recently-purchased store front decorations on local stores and business houses in preparation for the convention, it was announced by Edgell L. Grayson, president of the Keyser Business and Professional Association.

Merchants who have called for their decorations at the Keyser Sporting Goods and Camera Shop are requested by Grayson to return them to the Shop so that they will be available for the Firemen to pick up. The decorations will be put up some time during the weekend, he said.

Dr. E. E. Church, president of Potomac State School, has promised firemen the use of 125 beds in the campus dormitories for visiting delegates. However, Miller said, more rooms are needed. Residents having spare rooms are requested to get in touch with Chairman Miller or any member of the Vigilant Reel and Hose Company.

An air show, sponsored by Ludwick's Airport, Keyser, will be staged Saturday morning at 11 o'clock.

Fire companies that have indicated they will be on hand for the celebration include Wiley Ford, Terra Alta, Parsons, Thomas, White Sulphur Springs, Tunnelton, Rynea, and Westfall Hose Companies, both of Martinsburg; Ridgeley, Romney, Benwood, Elkins, Citizens Fire Company, Charles Town; Capon Valley, Wardensville; Vienna, Rowlesburg, Moorefield, Montgomery, Grafton, Mt. Savage, Corriganville, Potomac Fire Company, Westernport; Cresaptown, Shaft, Barton, Cumberland Hose Company No. 1, Cumberland; Grantsville, Oakland, Bowman's Addition, Cumberland; McCoole, and Friendship Fire Company, Harpers Ferry. The Ladies Auxiliary to the Barton Fire Company has also indicated it will attend.

Miss Kooken To Speak At W.S.C.S. Meeting

PIEDMONT.—Miss Nellie Kooken, member of Bruce High School faculty, Westernport, will be the guest speaker at the monthly meeting of the W.S.C.S. August 26 at 7:30 p. m. in the recreation hall of Trinity Methodist Church. She will discuss "To Make Thy Way Known in Puerto Rica."

Mrs. Robert Derham will conduct the devotionals. Miss Toni Dayton will read a prayer poem and Mrs. John W. Fisher will be in charge of the program.

Following the meeting a social will be held and movies taken at their picnic held at the cottage of Dr. Raymond W. Reeves last month will be shown.

Boyd Is Installed Legion Official At Huntington

Selected As Tenth District Commander

PIEDMONT, W. Va.—Glenn Boyd, a past commander of Kelly-Mansfield Post No. 52 here, who was recently elected Tenth District commander at Charles Town, was installed at the American Legion state convention held in the City Auditorium at Huntington, August 13-16, by Charles Booth, past national vice commander and past department commander. He installed all elected officers at the convention and district officers previously elected.

Sam W. Widmer, past Tenth District commander and past commander of Kelly-Mansfield Post, was appointed historian of the 40 and 8 by Ben J. Lubion, Huntington, chef de gare.

State officers of the American Legion who were elected include Don Wilson, Clarksburg, department commander, succeeding William Guggitt, Beckley; S. H. Stone, Charles Town, formerly Tenth District commander, first vice commander; Dr. Ralph D. Watkins, Chester, second vice commander; Harry W. Miller, Fayettesville, third vice commander; Rev. Maher, Parkersburg, chaplain; Ed Galloway, vice commander at large; Frank Everhardt, Terra Alta, judge advocate; Frank Greenlee, Charleston, finance officer; C. B. Altman, Moundsville, historian, and Robert Lester, member of the state police, sergeant-at-arms.

Celebration Profit Amounts To $1,054

LONACONING.—The "Community Celebration" net profit was $1,054.41, it was announced yesterday by the Community Decorating Committee.

Receipts from the celebration totaled $1,545.57. Expenses amounted to $491.16.

The town of Lonaconing has set up this Community Decorating fund to provide for holiday decorations in the town.

The Community Celebration marked the White Way system of lighting inaugurated in the business district and a four-day celebration was held for the benefit of the Community Decorating fund.

Fred Waring Will Feature "Arch Of Triumph" Music

By GEORGE TUCKER
(For C. E. Butterfield)

NEW YORK, Aug. 19. (AP)—The Artists League of America in a communication to this department today says it has polled its members in an effort to ascertain who has the "ten most provocative faces in the world."

The League did not say what is meant by provocative whether these faces inspired hatred, fear, passion, love, gratitude, revulsion, hunger, melancholia, laughter, good will, greed, or envy.

Coming up: Fred Waring makes quite a thing of "Long After Tonight," from the picture "Arch of Triumph," in the Fred Waring show, NBC, tonight, 10:30.

Also tonight, CBS, 6 p. m., in the drama "Suspense," Martha Scott as a distraught mother who is tempted to bring about the death of an infant son.

Mutual's "The Better Half" returns to the network tonight as a regular feature, 8:30 p. m. "The Talent Jackpot," now occupying that spot, moves back half an hour to 8 p. m.

Doubtless with an eye to the meat shortage, Kate Smith has fenced in a portion of Lake Placid, near her docs, on Buck Island, and uses it as a private fish pool. Kate spents a good deal of spare time fishing. All she catches are placed in the fishery. Last count was 72 noses.

RADIO IN REVIEW

By RUSSELL MALONEY

(John Crosby's guest columnist, Russell Maloney, left Newton Centre, Mass., in 1934 to seek his fortune in New York. Between 1934 and 1945 he wrote more than 2,000,000 words for "The New Yorker," and in February, 1948, became a regular critic on C.B.S.'s "Of Men and Books." He is author of the book "It's Still Maloney," a collection of his New Yorker casuals.)

The Ad-Lib

In radio circles, the knack of extemporе speech—the ability to invent on the spot, and speak aloud, a sentence that has not been previously written down on paper—is regarded with almost superstitious awe. There is a special word for it: ad-libbing.

Ad-libbing, of course, is nothing new. Quite a few years before radio was even thought of as an entertainment medium, lovers were ad-libbing love scenes in parlors all over the nation; matrons made little of marching into the grocer's and ad-libbing an order for some groceries; two friends, chancing to meet on the street, would ad-lib suitable greetings.

In pre-radio days, the actual term "ad-lib" applied specifically only to the vague murmurs permitted to small-part actors in big scenes, actors of such unimportance that the dramatist deemed it beneath his dignity to write out parts for them. For example: "GUARDSMEN. COURIERS, LADIES-IN-WAITING (ad-lib): Her Highness has fainted! Stand back! Give her air! Call a doctor! Etc."

Nowadays, on the other hand, ad-libbing is the prerogative of the star of a radio show. On Fred Allen's show, the ad-libbing is done by Mr. Allen—needless to say, very entertainingly. In fact, Allen's ability to take a so-so script and ad-lib it into really superior entertainment has encouraged some dubious experiments among the other top-ranking comedians. Not all of them have very flexible minds, and this has given rise to a cynical maxim often heard in the studios, "The best ad-lib is the one that has been written the day before."

Audience - participation shows, panel discussions, book - review shows, informal interviews, and the telephone - answering disc jockey, none of whom uses a script—these are all relatively new phenomena. Plenty of men are now alive who remember the terrific impact of a show called "Information, Please!" The reason for the impact was simply the fact that this was the first ad-lib show to go on a big network with the prestige of commercial sponsorship.

Speaking as a man who not infrequently finds himself committed to helping kill half an hour of somebody's air time without the aid of a script, I can tell you that the ad-lib speaker very soon stops worrying about the other people on the show. That is, there is at first a morbid fear that you yourself are going to dry up or, worse, say something indecent, illogical, irrelevant or counter to network policy. This fear passes, and is replaced by a more substantially grounded fear—namely, that you will not, while on the air, get a chance to put a word in edgewise. Relatively brief as my experience has been, I can roughly catalogue the major ad-lib menaces:

1. The point-grabber is the worst. As soon as the trend of your sentence becomes apparent, he interrupts, finishes it (getting the laugh, if you've been building up a joke) and goes on from there.

2. The punster is distinguished by an insane tenacity of purpose. Any person is proud and happy if he happens upon a reasonably good pun. The punster believes that any pun is better than no pun at all and that a near miss is better than no try at all.

3. The topper is convinced that he can make another, and better, joke on whatever you have just made a joke about; at any rate, he will try. You soon learn not to make jokes in his presence.

4. There is no name—none printable, at least, for the performer who switches moods on you. If you start out being jovial, he will contrive to remind the audience that people are starving on three continents. If you are serious, he will be right there with jokes.

5. The studio-laugh getter. This specimen will cheerfully take a chance on alienating a radio audience of a million people in order to make a joke, for the benefit of the studio audience about the pattern in your necktie.

I do not, by the way, believe that ad-libbing is going to be the salvation of television. It's too bad that a man in the process of thinking up a clever line doesn't look clever, but there it is—let's face the fact. Being clever and looking clever are both highly difficult and specialized functions, and it is probably no accident that they are divided traditionally between gag-writer and comedian.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X E
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Feeble Buying Flame Dies Out After Early Spurt In Market

NEW YORK, Aug. 18—(AP)—A feeble buying flame snuffed out after a brief early flicker in the stock market today.

Final prices showed plus and minus signs in close balance, and few quotations more than fractionally away from the previous finish.

Volume contracted to 640,000 shares from 690,000 Tuesday.

Airline issues as a group did fairly well. Marked up fractionally were Eastern Airlines, United Airlines, Pan American Airways, American Airlines, and Transcontimental & Western Air.

Also higher were General Motors 63¼, Firestone Tire 47, Montgomery Ward 54½, Douglas Aircraft 53, Schenley 28⅞, American Telephone 152⅝, Du Pont 174¾, U. S. Gypsum 105¼, United Fruit 53¾, Superior Oil of California 195 (up 3), and Warner Bros. 10⅞.

Losers included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem Steel, Chrysler, U. S. Rubber, Consolidated Natural Gas, Phelps Dodge Copper, American Tobacco, N. Y. Central, Pennsylvania, Northern Pacific, Nickel Plate, Sinclair Oil, Standard Oil (NJ), and Gulf Oil.

In the curb gains were scored by Aluminum Co. American Gas & Electric, Brown-Forman Distillers, Marion Power Shovel, and Sherwin-Williams. Cities Service and Pantepec slipped a notch. Sales of 220,000 shares compared with 230,000 Tuesday.

Investment demand expanded again in the bond market and selected items pushed forward fractions to around 2 points.

Some of the best gains were recorded by railroad issues.

Sales volume continued its rebound from a 31-year low reached on Monday. Although the day's total of $2,630,000 was relatively light, it was up from the $2,355,000 registered yesterday.

Missouri Pacific issues showed the way for rails. The convertible 5s were up 1 at 26⅝, the series 'F' 5s ahead 1½ at 84 and the series 'I' 5s up 2 at 84. Central of Georgia 4½s climbed a point to 50 and Central Railroad of New Jersey 4s gained 1½ at 59½. Other corporate gainers included Universal Pictures 3¾s at 91, Union Electric of Missouri 2¾s at 96⅝, and bonds of American Telephone, American Tobacco, American & Foreign Power, Canada Southern and St. Louis, San Francisco.

Backing down a point or so were Seaboard Air Line income 4½s at 71½, Katy Adjustment 5s at 71⅞, Saguenay Power 3s at 96, Santa Fe stamped adjustment 4s at 113 and Texas & New Orleans 3¾s at 98.

U. S. Government obligations were firm in over-the-counter dealings. On the exchange World Bank 2¾s were up 10-32 at 96 12-32.

Shakespeare Statue Is Full Of Lead

LONDON (AP)—A "plaster" statue of William Shakespeare which stood on the portico of the Theater Royal, Drury Lane, London, for more than a hundred years has been found to be made of lead.

During repair work, workmen had to remove the statue and its unexpected weight led to the discovery. Repeated paintings had formed an outer crust about half an inch thick, when this was removed, a spokesman for the theater said, "a beautiful leaden statue of Shakespeare was laid bare."

Mrs. Arundell Esdaile, a leading writer on the history of sculpture, identified it as the work of John Cheere, a British sculptor who worked much in lead and who died in 1787. The statue is to stand in the vestibule of the theater.

Panama, one of the middle American republics, has authorized $7,-000,000 for education, which is one-fourth of her total budget.

Fred Waring Will Feature "Arch Of Triumph" Music

By GEORGE TUCKER
(For C. E. Butterfield)

NEW YORK, Aug. 19. (AP)—The Artists League of America in a communication to this department today says it has polled its members in an effort to ascertain who has the "ten most provocative faces in the world."

The League did not say what is meant by provocative — whether these faces inspired hatred, fear, passion, love, gratitude, revulsion, hunger, melancholia, laughter, good will, greed, or envy.

Coming up: Fred Waring makes quite a thing of "Long After Tonight," from the picture "Arch of Triumph," in the Fred Waring show, NBC, tonight, 10:30.

Also tonight, CBS, 6 p. m., in the drama "Suspense," Martha Scott as a distraught mother who is tempted to bring about the death of an infant son.

Mutual's "The Better Half" returns to the network tonight as a regular feature, 8:30 p. m. "The Talent Jackpot," now occupying that spot, moves back half an hour to 8 p. m.

Doubtless with an eye to the meat shortage, Kate Smith has fenced in a portion of Lake Placid, near her dock, on Buck Island, and uses it as a private fish pool. Kate spents a good deal of spare time fishing. All she catches are placed in the fishery. Last count was 72 noses.

SALLY'S SALLIES

RADIO IN REVIEW

By RUSSELL MALONEY

(John Crosby's guest columnist, Russell Maloney, left Newton Centre, Mass., in 1934 to seek his fortune in New York. Between 1934 and 1945 he wrote more than 2,000,000 words for "The New Yorker," and in February, 1948, became a regular critic on C.B.S.'s "Of Men and Books." He is author of the book "It's Still Maloney," a collection of his New Yorker casuals.)

The Ad-Lib

In radio circles, the knack of extemjore speech—the ability to invent on the spot, and speak aloud, a sentence that has not been previously written down on paper—is regarded with almost superstitious awe. There is a special word for it: ad-libbing.

Ad-libbing, of course, is nothing new. Quite a few years before radio was even thought of as an entertainment medium, lovers were ad-libbing love scenes in parlors all over the nation; matrons made little of marching into the grocer's and ad-libbing an order for some groceries; two friends, chancing to meet on the street, would ad-lib suitable greetings.

In pre-radio days, the actual term "ad-lib" applied specifically only to the vague murmurs permitted to small-part actors in big scenes, actors of such unimportance that the dramatist deemed it beneath his dignity to write out parts for them. For example: "GUARDSMEN, COURIERS, LADIES-IN-WAITING (ad-lib): Her Highness has fainted! Stand back! Give her air! Call a doctor! Etc."

Nowadays, on the other hand, ad-libbing is the prerogative of the star of a radio show. On Fred Allen's show, the ad-libbing is done by Mr. Allen—needless to say, very entertainingly. In fact, Allen's ability to take a so-so script and ad-lib it into really superior entertainment has encouraged some dubious experiments among the other top-ranking comedians. Not all of them have very flexible minds, and this has given rise to a cynical maxim often heard in the studios, "The best ad-lib is the one that has been written the day before."

Audience - participation shows, panel discussions, book - review shows, informal interviews, and the telephone - answering disc jockey, none of whom uses a script—these are all relatively new phenomena. Plenty of men are now alive who remember the terrific impact of a show called "Information, Please!" The reason for the impact was simply the fact that this was the first ad-lib show to go on a big network with the prestige of commercial sponsorship.

Speaking as a man who not infrequently finds himself committed to helping kill half an hour of somebody's air time without the aid of a script, I can tell you that the ad-lib speaker very soon stops worrying about the other people on the show. That is, there is at first a morbid fear that you yourself are going to dry up or, worse, say something indecent, illogical, irrelevant or counter to network policy. This fear passes, and is replaced by a more substantially grounded fear—namely, that you will not, while on the air, get a chance to put a word in edgewise. Relatively brief as my experience has been, I can roughly catalogue the major ad-lib menaces:

1. The point-grabber is the worst. As soon as the trend of your sentence becomes apparent, he interrupts, finishes it (getting the laugh, if you've been building up a joke) and goes on from there.

2. The punster is distinguished by an insane tenacity of purpose. Any person is proud and happy if he happens upon a reasonably good pun. The punster believes that any pun is better than no pun at all and that a near miss is better than no try at all.

3. The topper is convinced that he can make another, and better, joke on whatever you have just made a joke about; at any rate, he will try. You soon learn not to make jokes in his presence.

4. There is no name—none printable, at least, for the performer who switches moods on you. If you start out being jovial, he will contrive to remind the audience that people are starving on three continents. If you are serious, he will be right there with jokes.

5. The studio-laugh getter. This specimen will cheerfully take a chance on alienating a radio audience of a million people in order to make a joke, for the benefit of the studio audience about the pattern in your necktie.

I do not, by the way, believe that ad-libbing is going to be the salvation of television. It's too bad that a man in the process of thinking up a clever line doesn't look clever, but there it is—let's face the fact. Being clever and looking clever are both highly difficult and specialized functions, and it is probably no accident that they are divided traditionally between gag-writer and comedian.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X E
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Feeble Buying Flame Dies Out After Early Spurt In Market

NEW YORK, Aug. 18—(AP)—A feeble buying flame snuffed out after a brief early flicker in the stock market today.

Final prices showed plus and minus signs in close balance, and few quotations more than fractionally away from the previous finish.

Volume contracted to 640,000 shares from 690,000 Tuesday.

Airline issues as a group did fairly well. Marked up fractionally were Eastern Airlines, United Airlines, Pan American Airways, American Airlines, and Transcontinental & Western Air.

Also higher were General Motors 63¼, Firestone Tire 47, Montgomery Ward 54⅜, Douglas Aircraft 53, Schenley 28⅝, American Telephone 152⅝, Du Pont 174⅜, U. S. Gypsum 105¼, United Fruit 53⅜, Superior Oil of California 195 (up 3), and Warner Bros. 10⅞.

Losers included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem Steel, Chrysler, U. S. Rubber, Consolidated Natural Gas, Phelps Dodge Copper, American Tobacco, N. Y. Central, Pennsylvania, Northern Pacific, Nickel Plate, Sinclair Oil, Standard Oil (NJ), and Gulf Oil.

In the curb gains were scored by Aluminum Co., American Gas & Electric, Brown-Forman Distillers, Marion Power Shovel, and Sherwin-Williams. Cities Service and Pantepec slipped a notch. Sales of 220,000 shares compared with 230,000 Tuesday.

Investment demand expanded again in the bond market and selected liens pushed forward fractions to around 2 points.

Some of the best gains were recorded by railroad issues.

Sales volume continued its rebound from a 31-year low reached on Monday. Although the day's total of $2,630,000 was relatively light, it was up from the $2,355,000 registered yesterday.

Missouri Pacific issues showed the way for rails. The convertible 5s were up 1 at 26⅜, the series 'F' 5s ahead 1½ at 84 and the series 'I' 5s up 2 at 84. Central of Georgia 4½s climbed a point to 50 and Central Railroad of New Jersey 4s gained 1⅛ at 59½. Other corporate gainers included Universal Pictures 3⅜s at 91, Union Electric of Missouri 2¾s at 96⅞, and bonds of American Telephone, American Tobacco, American & Foreign Power, Canada Southern and St. Louis San Francisco.

Backing down a point or so were Seaboard Air Line income 4½s at 71½, Katy Adjustment 5s at 71⅝, Saguenay Power 3s at 96, Santa Fe stamped adjustment 4s at 113 and Texas & New Orleans 3¼s at 98.

U. S. Government obligations were firm in over-the-counter dealings. On the exchange World Bank 2¼s were up 10-32 at 96 12-32.

Cheese 415,261; steady, prices unchanged.

Shakespeare Statue Is Full Of Lead

LONDON (AP)—A "plaster" statue of William Shakespeare which stood on the portico of the Theater Royal, Drury Lane, London, for more than a hundred years has been found to be made of lead.

During repair work, workmen had to remove the statue and its unexpected weight led to the discovery. Repeated paintings had formed an outer crust about half an inch thick, when this was removed, a spokesman for the theater said, "a beautiful leaden statue of Shakespeare was laid bare."

Mrs. Arundell Esdaile, a leading writer on the history of sculpture, identified it as the work of John Cheere, a British sculptor who worked much in lead and who died in 1787. The statue is to stand in the vestibule of the theater.

Panama, one of the middle American republics, has authorized $7,-000,000 for education, which is one-fourth of her total budget.

It Still Isn't So!!

It still goes on, this talk that in our negotiations with the UPA-CIO, this Company is trying to cut away at the protection of our older employees.

For example, here are quotes from two recent UPA-CIO bulletins:

"There can't be but one answer, they want to send the old people across the bridge and keep people with one or two weeks seniority."

"For six days union and management representatives sat across the conference table to negotiate a contract which will determine the working conditions of some 4,000 workers for the coming year. In all of that time we could not reach agreement that senior employees in the Williamsburg, Luke and Covington Mills must be given the most job security. In all of that time we could not convince the company that years of faithful service should be given first consideration where the jobs of such employees are to be abolished, or when new machines may come in to displace many or all of them."

COMPARE THIS WITH THE FACTS

EXAMPLE: Under the present contract, if a general cut-back should become necessary, lay-off would have to be by departmental seniority. Suppose Joe X has been around the mill fifteen years but is still the youngest man in his department. Joe would have to go. There might be a lot of people left in other departments, holding jobs Joe can do, even beginner jobs, without anything like fifteen years mill seniority. Still, the way the contract's now written, the company could do nothing about it. It has no right to remove any of these younger people to make room for Joe.

The Company proposed new wording which would improve Joe's protection. This new wording would enable the Company, in case of either a shut-down of a particular department or a general cut-back, to take care of older people like Joe (everybody with more than five years mill seniority) by moving them over to appropriate or beginner jobs in other departments, "bumping" out people with less mill seniority.

As nearly as we can tell from our records, this would, in effect, protect almost everybody with more than five years mill seniority from lay-off even if we cut back to five days a week

Driver Files Appeal From $10 Fine

KEYSER, W. Va. — Brooke D. Crites, local cab driver who was arrested over the weekend by City Police on a charge of reckless driving following an accident at the intersection of Water and Armstrong Streets, has filed an appeal from a $10 fine assessed by City Judge A. A. Jordan at a hearing Monday.

The taxi, driven by Crites, was hit by a car driven by Victor Buckholtz, Cumberland. Buckholtz was fined $5 on a charge of failing to give the right-of-way at the intersection.

Crites was represented by Attorney H. G. Shores.

Westernport Firemen Plan Parade Tonight

WESTERNPORT.—A firemen's parade tonight will feature the street carnival being held all week on the lot of Victory Post No. 155, American Legion, by Potomac Fire Company No. 2.

The parade will form at Jake's Place at 7 p. m., marching to Piedmont and returning to Westernport, disbanding at the carnival ground.

Concessions are providing entertainment and there will be pony rides tonight through Saturday. A dance will be held tomorrow night at the Potomac Club.

Court House Repair Contract Let To Wells

KEYSER, W. Va.—The contract for repairing the roofing and spouting of the Mineral County Court House and Jail was awarded to Arthur D. Wells, local contractor, at a meeting of the County Board Tuesday.

STATE OF MARYLAND VS. THE LONACONING SAVINGS BANK OF ALLEGANY COUNTY.

No. 13,311 Equity in the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland.

ORDER OF COURT

Upon consideration of the petition and affidavit of J. Millard Tawes, Bank Commissioner of the State of Maryland, Substituted Receiver of The Lonaconing Savings Bank of Allegany County, it is ORDERED this 4th day of August, 1948, by the Circuit Court for Allegany County in Equity, that said Substituted Receiver of said The Lonaconing Savings Bank of Allegany County, be and he is hereby authorized to advertise the unclaimed funds in his hands as Substituted Receiver in this proceedings, as provided in Section 233 of Article 16 of the Annotated Code of the Public General Laws of Maryland; and it is further ORDERED that said J. Millard Tawes, Substituted Receiver as aforesaid, by causing a copy of this Order to be published in two newspapers of general circulation published in Allegany County, Maryland, once a week for four successive weeks, prior to the 6th day of September, give notice to all persons entitled to the unclaimed funds in the hands of the Substituted Receiver, amounting to Six Hundred and Sixty-five Dollars and Ninety-three cents ($665.93), payable under distribution accounts filed in this proceeding, and shown in "Substituted Receiver's Exhibit No. 1, The Lonaconing Savings Bank of Allegany County," filed with said petition, that unless said funds are claimed or collected on or before the 13th day of September, 1948, said funds will be paid over to the County Commissioners of Allegany County for the use of the public schools of Allegany County, pursuant to the provisions of said Section 233 of Article 16 of the Code of Public General Laws of Maryland.

TRI-STATE DEATHS

CHARLES LANCASTER

FROSTBURG.—Charles Lancaster, 78, a native and lifelong resident, died yesterday morning shortly after he was admitted to Miners Hospital. He had been ill at his home for several weeks.

He was a son of the late Robert and Mary Pape Lancaster and had been a coal miner practically all of his life.

Surviving are seven children, John and Hillary Lancaster, Eckhart; Mrs. Henry Yates, Frostburg; Mrs. Harry Lloyd, Morgantown; Mrs. Harry Bowser and Mrs. Elizabeth Hemphill, both of Hagerstown, and Mrs. Hazel Valentine, Oldtown Road; one brother, Wilford, Frostburg, and a sister, Mrs. Rosie Mae Snyder, Eckhart.

A funeral service will be held Saturday at 3:45 p. m. at the home by Rev. Charles Meade, pastor of Eckhart Methodist Church. Burial will be in Eckhart Cemetery.

COSTELLO SERVICE

FROSTBURG.—A funeral service for Paul Costello, who died Sunday night at his home, 36 McCulloh Street, was held yesterday afternoon at the residence, with Rev. Walter D. Menrling, pastor of Zion Evangelical and Reformed Church, officiating. Pall bearers were Oliver Truly, Noah Beeman, Jenkin Bradley, Clarence Stevens, Norman Jackson and Henry Jones.

Burial was in Allegany Cemetery.

MARSHALL HILL RITES

FROSTBURG.—Last rites for Marshall E. Hill, who died Sunday morning at his home, 38 Linden Street, from a heart attack, were held yesterday afternoon at the residence, with Rev. George L. Wehler, pastor of Salem Evangelical and Reformed Church, officiating. Pallbearers were Marshall C. Skidmore, James Brode, Walter Hunter, William Kroll, Leroy Himmelwright and Edward Carter.

Burial was in Allegany Cemetery, where military honors were accorded by a delegation from Farrady Post No. 24, American Legion.

EDGAR BRUMBACK RITES

WESTERNPORT—Last rites for Edgar A. Brumback, 58, who died last Saturday morning, were held Tuesday afternoon at his residence, 326 Spruce Street.

Rev. Raymond L. Moore, pastor of Piedmont Trinity Methodist Church, was assisted by Rev. G. Stanley Schwind, rector of St. James Episcopal Church. Interment was in Philos Cemetery, Westernport.

Active pallbearers were Dewey Moorehead, Norris Ravenscroft, Reuben Broadwater, Collin Reeves, Howard Keplinger and James Foreman.

Honorary pallbearers were William Wilson, Fred Wilson, John Foley, Lester Sager, William C. Ravenscroft, Robert Garrett, R. Price Barncord, Cleve Linkswiler, Hudson Chaney and Frank Moyer.

MRS. ANNIE HADY

MEYERSDALE, Pa.—Mrs. Annie Deist Hady, 76, 128 Large Street, died Monday in Hazel McGilvery Hospital, Meyersdale. She had been in ill health for nearly a year.

She is survived by the following children: Mrs. Walter C. Koontz, Gary, Ind.; Mrs. Maude Anderson, Chicago, Ill.; Mrs. Frank Hoopes, Minerva, Ohio; Mrs. Robert Peck, Sr., Meyersdale, R. D. 1; Mrs. Frederick Groff, Michael Hady and George Hady, all of Meyersdale; William Hady, Somerset; Mrs. George May, Johnstown; Fred E. Hady and James Hady, Gary, Ind.; and Mrs. Henry C. Walters, Johnstown. She is survived by the following brothers and sisters: Charles Deist, Glencoe; Albert Deist, Steubensville, Ohio; Mrs. E. R. Beagle, Bedford, and Mrs. J. O. McDowell, Warren, Ohio. In addition she is survived by 27 grandchildren and 13 great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Hady was a member of Amity Reformed Church. The funeral was conducted at the Konhaus Funeral Chapel yesterday at 1:30 p. m. Rev. George T. Fitz, Johnstown, officiated. Interment was in Union Cemetery.

MRS. SUSAN REMBOLD

MEYERSDALE, Pa.—Mrs. Susan Kendall Rembold, 84, widow of John Rembold, died suddenly at her home, R. D. 3, Meyersdale. She was born February 14, 1864, the daughter of the late John C. Kendall and Elizabeth Miller Kendall.

She is survived by the following children: Leroy Rembold, Mrs. Herbert Tressler and Eugene Rembold, all of Nemacolin, Pa.; Mrs. Minnie Howsore, Hyndman; U. P. Rembold, Crucible, Pa.; and W. T. Rembold, R. D. 3, Meyersdale; 17 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren, and one sister, Miss Mattie Kendall, Meyersdale.

She was a member of the Pocahontas Reformed Church. The funeral was conducted Wednesday at 3 p. m. at the church. Rev. Ira S. Monn officiated. Interment followed in Hostetler Cemetery.

MRS. LOUISE MUIR

LONACONING.—A funeral service for Mrs. Louisa Hohing Muir, 81, 28 Allegany Street, will be held today at 2:30 p. m. at First Presbyterial Church, Lonaconing.

Mrs. Muir died Monday morning at her home following an illness of over three months. Her husband, Adam Muir, died in 1939.

Rev. C. H. Goshorn will officiate at the church services. Interment will be in Oak Hill Cemetery, Lonaconing.

JOHN WALTERS

LONACONING.—A funeral service for John Walters, 70, whose body was brought here to the home of his brother, William, St. Mary's Terrace, from Pennsylvania where he died Sunday morning, will be held Friday at 2:30 p. m. at First Presbyterian Church. Interment will be made in Oak Hill Cemetery.

THOMPSON RITES

GRANTSVILLSVILLE.—A funeral service for Miles C. Thompson, 74, who died suddenly Monday of a heart attack at the home of his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. George Edwards, will be held at 1:30 p. m. Friday instead of Thursday as previously announced.

The service will be at the Grantsville Methodist Church with Rev. D. J. Combs, pastor, officiating. Burial will be in the Brownsville, Pa., cemetery.

Pallbearers will be Kenneth, Clayton, James and Verl Edwards, Edward Bishop and Burton Glotfelty.

Driver Files Appeal From $10 Fine

KEYSER, W. Va. — Brooke D. Crites, local cab driver who was arrested over the weekend by City Police on a charge of reckless driving following an accident at the intersection of Water and Armstrong Streets, has filed an appeal from a $10 fine assessed by City Judge A. A. Jordan at a hearing Monday.

The taxi, driven by Crites, was hit by a car driven by Victor Buckholtz, Cumberland. Buckholtz was fined $5 on a charge of failing to give the right-of-way at the intersection.

Crites was represented by Attorney H. G. Shores.

Westernport Firemen Plan Parade Tonight

WESTERNPORT.—A firemen's parade tonight will feature the street carnival being held all week on the lot of Victory Post No. 155, American Legion, by Potomac Fire Company No. 2.

The parade will form at Jake's Place at 7 p. m., marching to Piedmont and returning to Westernport, disbanding at the carnival ground.

Kimble Says Fund For Welfare Work Up To People

Formation Of General Council Is Postponed

The amount of funds which will be appropriated for state welfare work by the General Assembly in January will depend entirely upon the people of Maryland, State Senator Robert B. Kimble said last night.

Kimble was one of the speakers at a public meeting held in City Hall by a citizens committee which has been studying problems of welfare assistance in Allegany County for several months.

Although invitations had been sent to numerous labor organizations and to members of the Cumberland Ministerial Association to attend the session, only two labor representatives were present, C. H. Fisher of Lodge No. 656, Brotherhood of Railway Carmen, and J. F. Campbell of Local Federation No. 7, B. and O. Shopcrafts.

Council Action Deferred

Because of the insufficient representation, formation of a general council to promote increased welfare appropriations in Allegany County was postponed until the next meeting, scheduled for Sunday, Setember 19, at 2:30 p. m. in City Hall.

Kimble recalled that the State Department of Public Welfare sought an appropriation of $2,650,000, but that at the special session of the Legislature last May that amount was cut to $500,000 as Governor Lane had recommended, despite several attempts on the floor of the Senate to maintain the original figure or set a compromise figure higher than the $500,000.

"How is it possible to call 29 senators and 123 members of the House representatives of the people when the governor is able to control them, dictate to them and compel them to do what he wants them to do?" Kimble asked.

Governor Lane's committee appointed to investigate the status of the State Department of Public Welfare reported that the department was operating on a sound basis, Kimble said.

"That report, which indicated that the department, if it was guilty of anything, was guilty only of not giving enough welfare assistance, was on the governor's desk before the special session," he declared.

Backs Townsend Plan

Stating that "the most humane method of providing for aged persons" is the Townsend plan, Kimble pointed out that the numerous industrial and governmental pension plans now in operation are supported through "taxes upon taxes," even though benefits of those pensions are not available at all.

I. C. Brant, chairman of the citizens' committee and president of Townsend Club No. 2 in South Cumberland, said that all Townsend supporters ask is "a fair and just trial in Congress."

Referring to problems of increased welfare for the county, L. E. Geiger, another member of the committee, urged that organized labor be called upon to support such action in the state legislature in January.

Miss Mary Ethel Rose, another member of the committee, read a prepared statement attacking the "insurance surrender" clause of the state law.

J. E. Howell, retired B. and O. railroad conductor of Keyser, W. Va., cited welfare cases in West Virginia to support his statement that Maryland welfare recipients receive about "three times" more than those in his state.

Conditions at the Allegany County Infirmary were criticized in talks by Mrs. Maurice Lepley, 517 North Centre Street, and Charles Morgan, Nikep. Mrs. Lepley and Morgan were formerly employed as cook and warden, respectively, at the institution.

Local Property Is Sold For $12,000

In a deed recorded in the land records ofice at the Court House yesterday, Eleanor C. Johnston conveyed a West Side property to Robert Little Ebert and his wife, Elta Mae Ebert.

Tax stamps affixed to the deed indicated the amount of sale was about $12,000.

In another deed filed, Miss Jessie Walker West sold a Johnson Street property to William C. Harrison and his wife, Mary J. Harrison, Ohio County, W. Va. According to tax stamps affixed, the amount of sale was about $8,500.

All Fire Companies Will Issue Permits

Permits for burning leaves within this city may now be obtained from each of the city's four fire stations, the Cumberland Fire Department announced last night.

In the past, all such permits were issued by Central Fire Company No. 1. The new system, firemen said, will allow each company to keep track of legal burning in its area and will be a convenience for the public since permits will be availabe from the area department.

Deed Restriction Causes Dismissal Of Brown Appeal

Court To Be Asked To Rule On Action

The Board of Zoning Appeals last night dismissed the appeal of A. L. Brown, 505 Greenway Avenue, for a permit to locate a proposed two-story brick structure to house a garage and five apartments on Lot 18 at the intersection of Ridgewood and Warwick Avenues.

Charles Paul Roeder, presiding at his first session as chairman of the board since the recent resignation of Joseph R. Mantheiy, cited a ruling of the board December 10, 1947, in dismissing the case.

Under the ruling, the board does not consider any appeals where the property involved is covered by deed restrictions.

Roeder pointed out the deed to the lot in question, which Brown testified he purchased in October, 1941, carries a restriction regarding operation of a business. Similar restrictions are included in deeds for land in the Johnson Heights section and will not expire until 1956, he said.

William L. Wilson, Jr., attorney for Brown, said after the hearing that an appeal from the board's decision will be filed in Circuit Court.

Fifteen witnesses attended the hearing prepared to testify in Brown's behalf, and about a dozen other persons, represented by Harry Stegmaier, local attorney, were present to oppose granting of the appeal. Brown was the only person to testify, however.

Brown's original application was withdrawn by his attorney at a session of the board last month. He filed a second application two weeks later "under protest," with an accompanying statement that he was making the application "under compulsion by threat of immediate arrest," and that by making it he did not waive his right to insist that he does not need a permit because he has been continuously operating a business at the location since 1936.

In testifying, Brown said he is in the truck painting and lettering business.

An appeal filed by Albert A. Doub, Jr., on behalf of the Allegany Build-

Avirett To Address Cresaptown Group

James Alfred Avirett, local attorney, will discuss legal problems which would be encountered in organizing a system of government at Cresaptown at a meeting of the Cresaptown Civic Improvement Association tonight at 8 o'clock at the Cresaptown School House.

In order to receive water service from Cumberland, the community would have to incorporate, form a special taxing area, or become a sanitary district, according to Gordon O. Garis, secretary. Avirett will discuss the points of each system.

A general report on progress made by the group to date will be read, and an explanation and discussion of the report will follow.

Reports on plans for future activities will be given, and committees will be appointed, including groups for membership, publicity, entertainment and by-laws.

A general discussion will end the meeting.

Two Join Marines

Two area boys have enlisted in the United States Marines, according to the local recruiting office. James E. Kesley, 1810 Oldtown Road, has joined for three years and Calvin W. Duncan, Romney, W. Va., enlisted for four years.

Marines Drill Tonight

Company "D," Marine Reserve, will drill tonight from 7:30 until 9:30 at the Training Center. This is the final drill before summer camp.

Events were held for boys in 50, 60, 70 and 80-pound classes.

Railroad Board Plans Hearing On WM Dispute

Davis To Represent Hostlers In Case

A hearing has been scheduled next month before the National Railroad Adjustment Board in Chicago on a dispute involving over $40,000 of time claims of Western Maryland Railway employes, Elmer E. Davis, president of the Railroad Industrial Union, reported yesterday.

Notices of the hearing scheduled September 16 at 11:30 a. m. have been sent to G. R. Haworth, vice president and general manager of the railroad, and to Davis.

The dispute which involves hostling service rules on the Western Maryland, amounted to some $40,000 in time claims when the case was filed 18 months ago, Davis said.

When the case was filed, the workers were affiliated with District 50, United Mine Workers Railroad Labor Industrial Union of Cumberland.

Since that time, the RIU, an independent union headed by Davis, has secured bargaining rights for road crews of the railway.

Davis said he will represent the workers at the hearing and added he was notifying the board that the RIU now has bargaining rights for the workers involved in the case.

Navy Reserve Officer Forms Received Here

Forms have been received to be used by all Naval Reserve Officers including WAVES in the execution of their permanent appointments in the Reserve, Lt. Cmdr. Charles B. Gray of the local Reserve staff, has announced.

Cmdr. Gray urged all members of the Reserve to call at the office in the Postoffice Building to accept their appointments. He said that they should bring their certificate of satisfactory service and their notice of appointment to their highest temporary rank.

Chest Budget Group To Present Report

The budget committee of the Cumberland Community Chest has completed its work and will report to the executive committee of the Chest in the near future, it was announced yesterday.

The committee, headed by David Kauffman, last week began reviewing requests and making awards to affiliated organizations for the 1948-9 Community Chest Drive.

Playground Leaders Sponsor Display

The display of arts and crafts completed by children at the various city playgrounds, scheduled at City Hall auditorium from 5 to 10 p. m. August 26, is being sponsored by Mrs. Harry S. Anderson, playground supervisor, and leaders of the respective playgrounds.

The display is not being sponsored by the Cumberland Playground Association as at first reported.

The Weather

Promised showers yesterday netted 0.37 inches of rain, but more are expected today. The thermometer reached exactly 80 yesterday fulfilling the weatherman's promise of little change in temperature. Late last night it was 64 degrees. A prediction of fair weather after the rain today should make the dampness more bearable.

10-Year-Old Boy Walks Nine Miles To Attend Kiwanis Sunshine Camp

Sam Wandless Was Set On Being Present

The Kiwanis Club must have something that little boys like in their Sunshine Camp at MacDonald Terrace. Sam Wandless, 10, Warrior Mountain, thinks so — enough to walk the nine miles from his home to Cumberland.

Ineligible to go this summer since he attended the three-week session last year, young Wandless turned up at the office of Miss Jeannette Bonig, executive secretary of Associated Charities, at 6 a. m. August 2 when the boys were scheduled to leave for camp.

Impressed by the determination of the boy, who arrived three hours before the 9 a. m. departure time, Miss Bonig got in touch with the Kiwanis Club, arranged for his physical examination and saw that he got to go to camp. What's more, Sam intends to go next year.

The camp for underprivileged boys between 9 and 12 years of age is directed by Boston E. Sherwood, assisted by Thomas Hutcheson, an Allegany High School graduate this June, and John Diuguid, who will be a junior at Allegany this year.

Director Sherwood said that eight or nine boys of the 24 attending have learned to swim in this session which will end Saturday.

Yesterday Sunshine Camp had a track and field meet judged by the director and the counselors. Winners were:

Softball throw: 50 pounds, Hedrick 1st, Nelson, 2nd; 60 pounds, Deter, 1st, Baker, 2nd; 70 pounds, Robert Pryor, 1st, Harden, 2nd; 80 pounds: C. Hadley, 1st, Bolyard, 2nd.

Youths To Be Tried In Auto Theft, Shooting

Trio To Face At Least Two Charges

Three county men were being held in Somerset County Jail, Somerset, Pa., last night for a hearing before Justice of the Peace F. S. Whipperman today on at least two Pennsylvania state charges.

The trio, accused of engaging in a 10-mile running gun battle with Pennsylvaia State Police from a stolen car Friday night on the Pennsylvania Turnpike, are Timothy Largent, 25, Midland; William L. Simpson, 19, Cumberland, and Donald M. Kennedy, 19, Corriganville.

Authorities said they would be charged with receiving stolen property, transporting property from an adjoining state, and probably with pointing and discharging a firearm with intent to kill, a felony under Pennsylvania law.

It has also been reported that the Federal Bureau of Investigation has interested itself in the case, as the automobile is alleged to have been taken across the state line, a federal offense.

The youths are reported to have stolen a car owned by Howard M. Spiker, 408 Decatur Street, and taken it to Bedford. Spiker notified Maryland State Police, who in turn alerted Pennsylvania State Police.

Pennsylvania authorities reported overtaking the car near the Allegany Tunnel. The youths then opened fire, the officers said, and after another five miles the stolen car burned out a bearing. Largent was taken into custody immediately, they said, but the other two fled and were finally caught Saturday morning after a night-long manhunt by a posses of 50 officials from Bedford, Somerset and Greensburg.

Murder-Suicide Verdict Issued In Shooting Case

Bridges Services Planned Saturday

Assistant State's Attorney Paul M. Fletcher announced yesterday afternoon that his office had completed its investigation of the tragedy which resulted in the violent death of a former Navy veteran and his second wife in Slabtown yesterday morning, saying it was "clearly a case of murder and suicide."

Dr. H. V. Deming, deputy county medical examiner, who arrived at the scene of the shooting yesterday at 2:20 a. m. with State Trooper A. M. Spioch and Deputy Sheriff William Chappell, identified the victims as Robert Leo Bridges, 33, who was temporarily residing with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Bridges, near Slabtown, between Mt. Savage and Frostburg, and his wife, Mrs. Wauneta Bridges, 19, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vance Lease, Cresaptown.

Verdicts of murder and suicide have been issued in the case, Dr. Deming reported, explaining that Bridges shot his wife through the head, killing her instantly, and then shot himself in the left temple with the Belgian revolver.

Turns Gun On Self

Authorities said Bridges grabbed his wife by the hair and shot her in front of the left ear. The bullet, Dr. Deming said, emerged behind the right ear, causing instantaneous death. Then, authorities said, Bridges turned the gun on himself. The bullet, they reported, entered the skull near the corner of the left eye and came out near the base of the skull.

Dr. William E. Mosley, Mt. Savage physician, said he was summoned to the Bridges home at 12:45 a. m. and arrived there a short time later to find Mrs. Bridges lying dead and her husband dying. Bridges, he added, died within three or four minutes after he arrived on the scene.

Authorities were told that Mrs. Bridges, an employe of the Cumberland Undergarment Company, left the house earlier Tuesday night to attend a movie while her husband remained at home to read the papers. She returned about 12:30 a. m. in an automobile driven by Ralph Hutzell, Mt. Savage, a B. and O. worker and pool room operator, and accompanied by her sister-in-law, Mrs. Dorla Spriggs, Slabtown.

When the car turned around, Bridges ran from the house with the weapon and yelled "halt," firing two shots in its direction. His wife and sister had already gotten out and Hutzell pulled away without looking back.

Bridges, authorities said, pushed Mrs. Spriggs aside and grabbed his wife by the hair. Then he shot her and, in less than five seconds, turned the gun on himself.

Recounts Tragedy

The man's parents gave the following account of what happened before the double tragedy:

Bridges had finished reading the papers and calmly remarked to his mother that "it's going to end tonight." Then he went upstairs and got the gun, a war souvenir given to his father by another son, and returned to downstairs. He stood in front of his mother and loaded the weapon.

Mrs. Bridges pleaded with him not to "do anything rash" but her son handed her the empty holster and remarked "you take this, mother."

With his parents in pursuit, he ran from the house as he heard the car pull up and turn around. Then he fired two shots and the fatal shootings followed.

Informed of the two deaths yesterday by Trooper Spioch, Hutzell

Bakery Contract Meeting Planned

Officials of Local 246, Bakery Workers Union, AFL, and Cumberland area bakeries will meet today to discuss a new contract, Harold M. Dixon, union president, announced last night.

The conference has been tentatively set at the Schmidt Baking Company plant some time today, he said.

Talks on a new agreement, to replace the pact which expired May 1, have been deadlocked for some time. The pact, however, remains in force during negotiations.

Celanese-TWUA Officials Sign New Agreement

Union Dues Increase Proposal Is Read

Officials of the Celanese Corporation of America and Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, CIO, yesterday officially signed a contract agreement covering some 8,000 employes of the Amcelle plant which Playford Aldridge, union president, termed "one of the best contracts in the TWUA."

The pact, which provides a 15 cents an hour wage increase, became effective August 8 and will continue for one year.

Signing for the firm were Fred T. Small, plant manager and vice president of the Celanese Corporation, and Edward R. Allan, superintendent of personnel, who negotiated the contract for the company.

Virtually all of the union signatures were affixed to the pact at yesterday's ceremony, including top officials of the local and the 16-member negotiating committee.

John G. Thomas, business manager of Local 1874, and Herbert Payne, TWUA rayon director, will also sign the agreement, the union said.

Complete agreement on the pact was reached last Thursday at the second of two membership meetings. In addition to the flat wage boost, the contract provides for a $12 flat payment to each worker in lieu of retroactive pay and continues the maintenance of membership and check-off clauses which have been in effect at the huge textile plant for a number of years.

The agreement is expected to increase the purchasing power of this area by more than $2,500,000.

Members of Local 1874 last night met to hear the reading of a proposal to increase the membership dues from $1.50 to $2 a month.

Action on the proposed change in the local's by-laws will be taken at special membership meetings to be held next Wednesday at 8 p. m. and Thursday at 10:30 a. m. in the Maryland State Armory.

Radio Operators License Tests To Be In October

An examination for all classes of radio operators licenses will be given at 9 a. m. October 14 in room 381, Cumberland Postoffice. Applicants for amateur licenses may also take the test at 1 p. m. the same day.

Application forms, which should be secured and completed prior to the examination, may be obtained by writing Engineer in Charge, Federal Communications Building, 508 Old Town Bank Building, Gay Street and Fallsway, Baltimore 2, Md.

Cumberland Delegation Attends AHEPA Meeting

Peter Dendrenos and Charles Charouhas, both of this city, are in Detroit, Mich., this week as delegates of Fort Cumberland Chapter No. 301, American Hellenic Educational Protective Association, to the 1948 convention of the order.

Also attending the convention as visitors are Anthony Antonakos, George P. Giatris, Frank and Richard Diamond, Mrs. Calliope Curtis, Mrs. Richard Diamond and daughter Helen; Mrs. Georgia Dendrenos, Miss Helen Giatris and John Richard Diamond.

B'nai B'rith To Have Annual Picnic Sunday

The Western Maryland Lodge No. 1507, B'nai B'rith, will have its annual picnic at 2 p. m. Sunday in Grove 1, Constitution Park.

On the program are swimming, races, children's games, baseball, softball and free refreshments. Harry Stein is chairman of the picnic committee, assisted by George Ossip, Melvin Sacks, Robert Gerson, Louis Seder and Louis Yankelevitz.

Paper Workers Cast Heavy Vote In Luke Election

Contract Talks To Resume Friday

Officials of Luke Local 676, United Paperworkers of America, CIO, estimated last night that about 1,350 of the 1,500 eligible employes cast ballots yesterday in a union security election held in Luke by the National Labor Relations Board.

Wayne Ritchie, president of the local, said the union is predicting an overwhelming victory in the consent election which will end today.

A similar election is being held at the Williamsburg, Pa., plant of the firm with some 300 employes eligible to vote there.

Voting at Luke is expected to be light today since an estimated 90 per cent of votes have already been cast, the union said.

The present contract includes maintenance of membership and check off clauses.

Union officials at Luke are preparing to attend a contract negotiation meeting planned Friday morning in Washington. Representing the Luke local will be Ritchie and Wilbur Johnson, Roy Cave and George Wolfe, vice presidents.

Although the present agreement expires Friday at midnight, it remains in effect automatically during negotiations.

Mill seniority is reported as the chief issue in the dispute.

Woman Injures Shoulder In Fall From Car

Mrs. Mildred Rohrer, 218 Columbia Street, was admitted to Allegany Hospital yesterday with an injured left shoulder suffered when she fell from a moving car.

The car was turning a corner on a downtown street and the door came open, causing Mrs. Rohrer's fall. She was reported in "fair" condition by attaches of the hospital.

Stanley Friend, 18, Oakland woodsman, was admitted yesterday to Memorial Hospital for treatment of an axe cut on his left foot.

Oscar O'Neale, 60, LaVale, was admitted yesterday to Allegany Hospital for treatment of a two and one-half inch laceration of the forehead suffered when he fell from a ladder while working at the People's Clothing Store, Baltimore Street. Hospital attaches said his condition was "fair."

Unity Conference Will Meet Tonight

The Western Maryland Labor Unity Conference will meet tonight at 8 o'clock in the Allegany Trades Council Hall, Paul L. Burley, secretary, announced last night.

Slated for action at the meeting is the official endorsement for candidates for presidential and congressional posts, he said.

The action was recommended last Saturday at a meeting of the Sixth district section of the Maryland League of United Voters in Hagerstown.

Will Allen, who has been named labor co-ordinator for the campaign, reported high AFL and CIO officials have indicated they will back Democratic candidates in the coming election, Burley said.

Jaycee Directors To Meet In Frederick

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Cumberland Junior Association of Commerce last night, State President David Kauffman announced that an all-state directors' meeting will be held at Frederick September 25 and 26.

The meeting, he said, will be open to all Jaycee members. A travel trophy will be presented the local organization having the most "man miles" represented.

In connection with the Jaycees good government program, brief talks over station WTBO will be presented by Jaycee members next week. The subject of the addresses will be "Obey the Laws."

BIRTHS

Memorial Hospital announced the following births yesterday:

Mr. and Mrs. James Lininger, Friendsville, a son.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold R. Miller, Cresaptown, a son.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvert L. Yaider, 747 Kelly Boulevard, a son.

Allegany Hospital announced the following birth yesterday:

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd F. Stahl, Terra Alta, W. Va., a son.

City Manager Plan: Manager Set-Up Makes History In Cincinnati

By RICHARD S. CHILDS
Chairman of the Council, National Municipal League

Cincinnati is the largest city with the Council-Manager form of municipal government (pop. 455,000). It has called itself "the best governed city in America" since it adopted the plan in 1926.

Before then it led all competitors for the title of worst governed city. Taxes were way out of proportion to the miserable service rendered. Debt was high and still rising. Nearly half of all taxes went for debts. Payrolls were loaded with incompetents.

The political boss ruled the city by long distance telephone from New York, where he ran a string of burlesque houses. The voters were so disguested they refused to approve bond issues for needed improvements, even though the streets were full of holes and deterioration of the city's entire plant was obvious.

Expenses Cut, Services Improved

The new administration did not spend more money. In its first two years it saved more than $1,500,000 yet greatly increased and improved its services. Cincinnati has now become a yardstick for the economy of good government as against bad.

Col. C. O. Sherrill was the first manager. At the end of his first two years public accountants concluded he had saved the city enough money to pay his own salary of $25,000 for 73 years. Not that he had a $1,825,000 surplus, but he had given the service provided by the old political government at that saving. The money was used to provide better service, to reduce the debt and reduce the taxes.

During the years 1933-1938, a period of depression when most other cities were going heavily into debt, the gross bonded debt of Cincinnati was reduced by more than $14,000,000, in spite of a disastrous flood which made heavy calls on the city's resources. In refunding operations in 1934, Cincinnati bonds were sold to yield an average of 2.55 percent, a record low for that period.

Electricity Bills Reduced

In 1934 Cincinnati obtained an electric rate settlement refunding more than $1,200,000 to consumers on bills already paid, and providing reductions amounting to nearly $9,000,000 from 1934 to 1938.

In ten years of politics Cincinnati built 54 miles of streets. In five years under a manager, 107 miles were built for the same amount of money.

Thomas H. Reed and Doris D. Reed, appraising Cincinnati's record under the manager plan for the consultant service of the National Municipal League, wrote in 1944:

Cables Being Laid Will Provide More Phone Service For This Area

Work on the first of a series of cable extensions in Cumberland and vicinity to fill requests for telephone service began this week, according to officials of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company.

A crew of seven men is installing a new underground cable from Allegany and Greene Streets to the present telephone office on Union Street, with 400 pairs of wire in the cable.

Another extension cable will be installed from the office underground to Allegany Street, diminishing from 1,200 pairs of wire to 400 at that point.

From Allegany Street a new aerial cable will be installed parallel to the existing cable to a point near Rawlings, to provide service for additional subscribers in the Bowling Green, Cresaptown and Pinto areas and surrounding communities.

About 2,500 additional telephone lines will be furnished through the project, officials said. They explained, however, that the number of lines does not mean that a similar number of new telephones will be installed, because of technical reasons.

The present work is expected to take about three months, the company said. Similar cable extensions are planned in the future toward Romney, W. Va., Oldtown, and west along Route 40.

District Officers Inspect Reserve Training Center

Capt. A. D. Alexis, USN, Fifth Naval District Public Works officer, and Cmdr. W. D. Horton, District C.B. Reserve officer, visited the Cumberland Naval and Marine Reserve Training Center under construction Tuesday, Lt. Cmdr. Charles B. Gray of the local reserve office, announced yesterday.

Capt. Alexis has recently taken over his present position and is on a familiarization tour of the Maryland District Naval Reserve training facilities.

Capt. J. P. Blundon, USNR, retired, Keyser, W. Va., gave a luncheon at the Cumberland Country Club Tuesday for Capt. Alexis, Comdr. Horton, Cmdr. Gray, and C. R. Nuzum, resident inspector of construction at the Training Center.

Kimble Says Fund For Welfare Work Up To People

Formation Of General Council Is Postponed

The amount of funds which will be appropriated for state welfare work by the General Assembly in January will depend entirely upon the people of Maryland, State Senator Robert B. Kimble said last night.

Kimble was one of the speakers at a public meeting held in City Hall by a citizens committee which has been studying problems of welfare assistance in Allegany County for several months.

Although invitations had been sent to numerous labor organizations and to members of the Cumberland Ministerial Association to attend the session, only two labor representatives were present, C. H. Fisher of Lodge No. 656, Brotherhood of Railway Carmen, and J. F. Campbell of Local Federation No. 7, B. and O. Shopcrafts.

Council Action Deferred

Because of the insufficient representation, formation of a general council to promote increased welfare appropriations in Allegany County was postponed until the next meeting, scheduled for Sunday, Setember 19, at 2:30 p. m. in City Hall.

Kimble recalled that the State Department of Public Welfare sought an appropriation of $2,650,000, but that at the special session of the Legislature last May that amount was cut to $500,000 as Governor Lane had recommended, despite several attempts on the floor of the Senate to maintain the original figure or set a compromise figure higher than the $500,000.

"How is it possible to call 29 senators and 123 members of the House representatives of the people when the governor is able to control them, dictate to them and compel them to do what he wants them to do?" Kimble asked.

Governor Lane's committee appointed to investigate the status of the State Department of Public Welfare reported that the department was operating on a sound basis, Kimble said.

"That report, which indicated that the department, if it was guilty of anything, was guilty only of not giving enough welfare assistance, was on the governor's desk before the special session," he declared.

Backs Townsend Plan

Stating that "the most humane method of providing for aged persons" is the Townsend plan, Kimble pointed out that the numerous industrial and governmental pension plans now in operation are supported through "taxes upon taxes," even though benefits of those pensions are not available at all.

I. C. Brant, chairman of the citizens' committee and president of Townsend Club No. 2 in South Cumberland, said that all Townsend supporters ask is "a fair and just trial in Congress."

Referring to problems of increased welfare for the county, L. E. Geiger, another member of the committee, urged that organized labor be called upon to support such action in the state legislature in January.

Miss Mary Ethel Rose, another member of the committee, read a prepared statement attacking the "insurance surrender" clause of the state law.

J. E. Howell, retired B. and O. railroad conductor of Keyser, W. Va., cited welfare cases in West Virginia to support his statement that Maryland welfare recipients receive about "three times" more than those in his state.

Conditions at the Allegany County Infirmary were criticized in talks by Mrs. Maurice Lepley, 517 North Centre Street, and Charles Morgan, Nikep. Mrs. Lepley and Morgan were formerly employed as cook and warden, respectively, at the institution.

All Fire Companies Will Issue Permits

Permits for burning leaves within this city may now be obtained from each of the city's four fire stations, the Cumberland Fire Department announced last night.

In the past, all such permits were issued by Central Fire Company No. 1. The new system, firemen said, will allow each company to keep track of legal burning in its area and will be a convenience for the public since permits will be availabe from the area department.

Deed Restriction Causes Dismissal Of Brown Appeal

Court To Be Asked To Rule On Action

The Board of Zoning Appeals last night dismissed the appeal of A. L. Brown, 505 Greenway Avenue, for a permit to locate a proposed two-story brick structure to house a garage and five apartments on Lot 18 at the intersection of Ridgewood and Warwick Avenues.

Charles Paul Roeder, presiding at his first session as chairman of the board since the recent resignation of Joseph R. Mantheiy, cited a ruling of the board December 10, 1947, in dismissing the case.

Under the ruling, the board does not consider any appeals where the property involved is covered by deed restrictions.

Roeder pointed out the deed to the lot in question, which Brown testified he purchased in October, 1941, carries a restriction regarding operation of a business. Similar restrictions are included in deeds for land in the Johnson Heights section and will not expire until 1956, he said.

William L. Wilson, Jr., attorney for Brown, said after the hearing that an appeal from the board's decision will be filed in Circuit Court.

Fifteen witnesses attended the hearing prepared to testify in Brown's behalf, and about a dozen other persons, represented by Harry Stegmaier, local attorney, were present to oppose granting of the appeal. Brown was the only person to testify, however.

Brown's original application was withdrawn by his attorney at a session of the board last month. He filed a second application two weeks later "under protest," with an accompanying statement that he was making the application "under compulsion by threat of immediate arrest," and that by making it he did not waive his right to insist that he does not need a permit because he has been continuously operating a business at the location since 1936.

In testifying, Brown said he is in the truck painting and lettering business.

Railroad Board Plans Hearing On WM Dispute

Davis To Represent Hostlers In Case

A hearing has been scheduled next month before the National Railroad Adjustment Board in Chicago on a dispute involving over $40,000 of time claims of Western Maryland Railway employes, Elmer E. Davis, president of the Railroad Industrial Union, reported yesterday.

Notices of the hearing scheduled September 16 at 11:30 a. m. have been sent to G. R. Haworth, vice president and general manager of the railroad, and to Davis.

The dispute which involves hostling service rules on the Western Maryland, amounted to some $40,000 in time claims when the case was filed 18 months ago, Davis said.

When the case was filed, the workers were affiliated with District 50, United Mine Workers Railroad Labor Industrial Union of Cumberland.

Since that time, the RIU, an independent union headed by Davis, has secured bargaining rights for road crews of the railway.

Davis said he will represent the workers at the hearing and added he was notifying the board that the RIU now has bargaining rights for the workers involved in the case.

10-Year-Old Boy Walks Nine Miles To Attend Kiwanis Sunshine Camp

Sam Wandless Was Set On Being Present

The Kiwanis Club must have something that little boys like in their Sunshine Camp at MacDonald Terrace. Sam Wandless, 10, Warrior Mountain, thinks so — enough to walk the nine miles from his home to Cumberland.

Ineligible to go this summer since he attended the three-week session last year, young Wandless turned up at the office of Miss Jeannette Bonig, executive secretary of Associated Charities, at 6 a. m. August 2 when the boys were scheduled to leave for camp.

Impressed by the determination of the boy, who arrived three hours before the 9 a. m. departure time, Miss Bonig got in touch with the Kiwanis Club, arranged for his physical examination and saw that he got to go to camp. What's more, Sam intends to go next year.

The camp for underprivileged boys between 9 and 12 years of age is directed by Boston E. Sherwood, assisted by Thomas Hutcheson, an Allegany High School graduate this June, and John Diuguid, who will be a junior at Allegany this year.

Director Sherwood said that eight or nine boys of the 24 attending have learned to swim in this session which will end Saturday.

Yesterday Sunshine Camp had a track and field meet judged by the director and the counselors. Winners were:

Softball throw: 50 pounds, Hedrick 1st, Nelson, 2nd; 60 pounds, Deter, 1st, Baker, 2nd; 70 pounds, Robert Pryor, 1st, Harden, 2nd; 80 pounds: C. Hadley, 1st, Bolyard, 2nd.

Youths To Be Tried In Auto Theft, Shooting

Trio To Face At Least Two Charges

Three county men were being held in Somerset County Jail, Somerset, Pa., last night for a hearing before Justice of the Peace F. S. Whipperman today on at least two Pennsylvania state charges.

The trio, accused of engaging in a 10-mile running gun battle with Pennsylvaia State Police from a stolen car Friday night on the Pennsylvania Turnpike, are Timothy Largent, 25, Midland; William L. Simpson, 19, Cumberland, and Donald M. Kennedy, 19, Corriganville.

Authorities said they would be charged with receiving stolen property, transporting property from an adjoining state, and probably with pointing and discharging a firearm with intent to kill, a felony under Pennsylvania law.

It has also been reported that the Federal Bureau of Investigation has interested itself in the case, as the automobile is alleged to have been taken across the state line, a federal offense.

The youths are reported to have stolen a car owned by Howard M. Spiker, 408 Decatur Street, and taken it to Bedford. Spiker notified Maryland State Police, who in turn alerted Pennsylvania State Police.

Pennsylvania authorities reported overtaking the car near the Allegany Tunnel. The youths then opened fire, the officers said, and after another five miles the stolen car burned out a bearing. Largent was taken into custody immediately, they said, but the other two fled and were finally caught Saturday morning after a night-long manhunt by a posses of 50 officials from Bedford, Somerset and Greensburg.

Murder-Suicide Verdict Issued In Shooting Case

Bridges Services Planned Saturday

Assistant State's Attorney Paul M. Fletcher announced yesterday afternoon that his office had completed its investigation of the tragedy which resulted in the violent death of a former Navy veteran and his second wife in Slabtown yesterday morning, saying it was "clearly a case of murder and suicide."

Dr. H. V. Deming, deputy county medical examiner, who arrived at the scene of the shooting yesterday at 2:20 a. m. with State Trooper A. M. Spioch and Deputy Sheriff William Chappell, identified the victims as Robert Leo Bridges, 33, who was temporarily residing with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Bridges, near Slabtown, between Mt. Savage and Frostburg, and his wife, Mrs. Wauneta Bridges, 19, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vance Lease, Cresaptown.

Verdicts of murder and suicide have been issued in the case, Dr. Deming reported, explaining that Bridges shot his wife through the head, killing her instantly, and then shot himself in the left temple with the Belgian revolver.

Turns Gun On Self

Authorities said Bridges grabbed his wife by the hair and shot her in front of the left ear. The bullet, Dr. Deming said, emerged behind the right ear, causing instantaneous death. Then, authorities said, Bridges turned the gun on himself. The bullet, they reported, entered the skull near the corner of the left eye and came out near the base of the skull.

Dr. William E. Mosley, Mt. Savage physician, said he was summoned to the Bridges home at 12:45 a. m. and arrived there a short time later to find Mrs. Bridges lying dead and her husband dying. Bridges, he added, died within three or four minutes after he arrived on the scene.

Authorities were told that Mrs. Bridges, an employe of the Cumberland Undergarment Company, left the house earlier Tuesday night to attend a movie while her husband remained at home to read the papers. She returned about 12:30 a. m. in an automobile driven by Ralph Hutzell, Mt. Savage, a B. and O. worker and pool room operator, and accompanied by her sister-in-law, Mrs. Dorla Spriggs, Slabtown.

When the car turned around, Bridges ran from the house with the weapon and yelled "halt," firing two shots in its direction. His wife and sister had already gotten out and Hutzell pulled away without looking back.

Bridges, authorities said, pushed Mrs. Spriggs aside and grabbed his wife by the hair. Then he shot her and, in less than five seconds, turned the gun on himself.

Recounts Tragedy

The man's parents gave the following account of what happened before the double tragedy:

Bridges had finished reading the papers and calmly remarked to his mother that "it's going to end tonight." Then he went upstairs and got the gun, a war souvenir given to his father by another son, and returned to downstairs. He stood in front of his mother and loaded the weapon.

Mrs. Bridges pleaded with him not to "do anything rash" but her son handed her the empty holster and remarked "you take this, mother."

With his parents in pursuit, he ran from the house as he heard the car pull up and turn around. Then he fired two shots and the fatal shootings followed.

Informed of the two deaths yesterday by Trooper Spioch, Hutzell

Avirett To Address Cresaptown Group

James Alfred Avirett, local attorney, will discuss legal problems which would be encountered in organizing a system of government at Cresaptown at a meeting of the Cresaptown Civic Improvement Association tonight at 8 o'clock at the Cresaptown School House.

In order to receive water service from Cumberland, the community would have to incorporate, form a special taxing area, or become a sanitary district, according to Gordon O. Garis, secretary. Avirett will discuss the points of each system.

A general report on progress made by the group to date will be read, and an explanation and discussion of the report will follow.

Reports on plans for future activities will be given, and committees will be appointed, including groups for membership, publicity, entertainment and by-laws.

A general discussion will end the meeting.

Navy Reserve Officer Forms Received Here

Forms have been received to be used by all Naval Reserve Officers including WAVES in the execution of their permanent appointments in the Reserve, Lt. Cmdr. Charles B. Gray of the local Reserve staff, has announced.

Cmdr. Gray urged all members of the Reserve to call at the office in the Postoffice Building to accept their appointments. He said that they should bring their certificate of satisfactory service and their notice of appointment to their highest temporary rank.

Chest Budget Group To Present Report

The budget committee of the Cumberland Community Chest has completed its work and will report to the executive committee of the Chest in the near future, it was announced yesterday.

The committee, headed by David Kauffman, last week began reviewing requests and making awards to affiliated organizations for the 1948-9 Community Chest Drive.

Playground Leaders Sponsor Display

The display of arts and crafts completed by children at the various city playgrounds, scheduled at City Hall auditorium from 5 to 10 p. m. August 26, is being sponsored by Mrs. Harry S. Anderson, playground supervisor, and leaders of the respective playgrounds.

The display is not being sponsored by the Cumberland Playground Association as at first reported.

The Weather

Promised showers yesterday netted 0.37 inches of rain, but more are expected today. The thermometer reached exactly 80 yesterday fulfilling the weatherman's promise of little change in temperature. Late last night it was 64 degrees. A prediction of fair weather after the rain today should make the dampness more bearable.

Local Property Is Sold For $12,000

In a deed recorded in the land records ofice at the Court House yesterday, Eleanor C. Johnston conveyed a West Side property to Robert Little Ebert and his wife, Elta Mae Ebert.

Tax stamps affixed to the deed indicated the amount of sale was about $12,000.

In another deed filed, Miss Jessie Walker West sold a Johnson Street property to William C. Harrison and his wife, Mary J. Harrison, Ohio County, W. Va. According to tax stamps affixed, the amount of sale was about $8,500.

30 Members Of Resources Board To Start Garrett Co. Tour Today

About 30 members of the Maryland Board of Natural Resources passed through Cumberland last night on their way to attend a two-day meeting today and tomorrow at New Germany.

State Forester H. C. Buckingham said last night that tours of various state operations are scheduled for the first day.

The meeting will open with a discussion of the six-year plan for improvements in the state, especially as it affects Garrett County.

After dinner at the Ski Lodge in New Germany, the group will go to a core-drilling operation carried on near Grantsville by the Bureau of Mines and Waters. Dr. Joseph P. Singewald will explain the purpose of the operation and its use in determining the geology of the county.

The group will then visit a fish hatchery, where Edwin Derry, wild life assistant of the Fish and Game Commission, will discuss future developments in hatcheries.

At the Swallow Falls recreation area, Joseph F. Kaylor, director of the Bureau of Forests and Parks, will explain proposed improvements and extensions in the recreation area.

The group will then be taken to a sample plot of woodland, where Dr. R. V. Truitt will discuss the work of the Department of Resources and Education.

Concluding the program will be a trip to a coal-stripping operation, where Dr. Singewald will explain the methods used.

The two-day meeting was called by John Clark, chairman of the board, as a continuation of the state's seventh annual conservation meeting last month at Solomons.

William H. Bayliff, executive secretary of the board, said the group would concentrate on three main problems:

Planning the amount of money to be asked for in the next state budget, proposing new legislation for consideration of the General Assembly, and putting the six-year conservation plan into shape.

All departments associated with the Board of Natural Resources will be represented, including the Planning Commission, Soil Conservation Service, Department of Information and Tidewater Fisheries.

Yesterday the group observed the regeneration of Mrs. Nellie Thrasher's farm near Jefferson in Frederick County.

Jefferson was the first stop in the group's three-day tour, designed to give the officials a first-hand view of what is happening to some of the state's natural resources.

City Manager Plan:

Manager Set-Up Makes History In Cincinnati

By RICHARD S. CHILDS
Chairman of the Council, National Municipal League

Cincinnati is the largest city with the Council-Manager form of municipal government (pop. 455,000). It has called itself "the best governed city in America" since it adopted the plan in 1926.

Before then it led all competitors for the title of worst governed city. Taxes were way out of proportion to the miserable service rendered. Debt was high and still rising. Nearly half of all taxes went for debts. Payrolls were loaded with incompetents.

The political boss ruled the city by long distance telephone from New York, where he ran a string of burlesque houses. The voters were so disguested they refused to approve bond issues for needed improvements, even though the streets were full of holes and deterioration of the city's entire plant was obvious.

Expenses Cut, Services Improved

The new administration did not spend more money. In its first two years it saved more than $1,500,000 yet greatly increased and improved its services. Cincinnati has now become a yardstick for the economy of good government as against bad.

Col. C. O. Sherrill was the first manager. At the end of his first two years public accountants concluded he had saved the city enough money to pay his own salary of $25,000 for 73 years. Not that he had a $1,825,000 surplus, but he had given the service provided by the old political government at that saving. The money was used to provide better service, to reduce the debt and reduce the taxes.

During the years 1933-1938, a period of depression when most other cities were going heavily into debt, the gross bonded debt of Cincinnati was reduced by more than $14,000,000, in spite of a disastrous flood which made heavy calls on the city's resources. In refunding operations in 1934, Cincinnati bonds were sold to yield an average of 2.55 percent, a record low for that period.

Electricity Bills Reduced

In 1934 Cincinnati obtained an electric rate settlement refunding more than $1,200,000 to consumers on bills already paid, and providing reductions amounting to nearly $9,000,000 from 1934 to 1938.

In ten years of politics Cincinnati built 54 miles of streets. In five years under a manager, 107 miles were built for the same amount of money.

Thomas H. Reed and Doris D. Reed, appraising Cincinnati's record under the manager plan for the consultant service of the National Municipal League, wrote in 1944:

Cables Being Laid Will Provide More Phone Service For This Area

Work on the first of a series of cable extensions in Cumberland and vicinity to fill requests for telephone service began this week, according to officials of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company.

A crew of seven men is installing a new underground cable from Allegany and Greene Streets to the present telephone office on Union Street, with 400 pairs of wire in the cable.

Another extension cable will be installed from the office underground to Allegany Street, diminishing from 1,200 pairs of wire to 400 at that point.

From Allegany Street a new aerial cable will be installed parallel to the existing cable to a point near Rawlings, to provide service for additional subscribers in the Bowling Green, Cresaptown and Pinto areas and surrounding communities.

About 2,500 additional telephone lines will be furnished through the project, officials said. They explained, however, that the number of lines does not mean that a similar number of new telephones will be installed, because of technical reasons.

The present work is expected to take about three months, the company said. Similar cable extensions are planned in the future toward Romney, W. Va., Oldtown, and west along Route 40.

District Officers Inspect Reserve Training Center

Capt. A. D. Alexis, USN, Fifth Naval District Public Works officer, and Cmdr. W. D. Horton, District C.B. Reserve officer, visited the Cumberland Naval and Marine Reserve Training Center under construction Tuesday, Lt. Cmdr. Charles B. Gray of the local reserve office, announced yesterday.

Capt. Alexis has recently taken over his present position and is on a familiarization tour of the Maryland District Naval Reserve training facilities.

Capt. J. P. Blundon, USNR, retired, Keyser, W. Va., gave a luncheon at the Cumberland Country Club Tuesday for Capt. Alexis, Comdr. Horton, Cmdr. Gray, and C. R. Nuzum, resident inspector of construction at the Training Center.
